Debate Plan to Give President Dictator Powers

SENATORS TALK OF SUSPENDING ALL STATUTES

Call Draft First Step in Program.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Opponents of the Roosevelt administration's conscription bill charged in the senate today that it is part of a New Deal program to establish a dictatorship.

Senator Pepper.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], provoked the dictatorship charge when he urged that President Roosevelt be vested with absolute power over the lives and property of all the people of the United States.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], asserted that Pepper is closer to the "insiders" of the Roosevelt administration than any other member of the senate, and charged that if congress passes the conscription bill it will be "following step by step" a 7-point program advocated by Pepper to establish a dictatorship.

Dictator Plank Sought.

The Montana senator also asserted that efforts were made before the resolutions committee of the Democratic national convention, of which he was a member, to incorporate a plank in the party's platform calling for war dictatorship powers for the President.

Apparently he referred to proposals made by Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture and Democratic nominee for Vice President, who was a member of the drafting subcommittee of the resolutions committee, and by Pepper, who was a member by proxy of the full committee.

The extraordinary debate in the senate on the question of making President Roosevelt dictator, and whether that is the program of the New Dealers, proceeded for more than four hours.

Fear Seizure of Power.

Senator Homer T. Bone [D., Wash.], said he never had expected to live to see the day when the United States senate would be "debating, calmly or otherwise, the question of making the President a supreme dictator in peace time."

Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], asserted that the program proposed by Pepper would confer upon the President all the powers ever exercised "by Hitler, Mussolini, Genghis Khan, or Nero."

The sensational charges and expressions of amazement made in the course of the day's debate reflected increasing apprehension in congress that President Roosevelt soon will make some startling move in the field of international and domestic politics.

Among other possibilities which the non-interventionists fear is that the President will proclaim an unlimited national emergency, under which he might undertake to exercise war-time dictatorship powers, and that he will release 50 or more of the navy's destroyers to Great Britain without requesting congress for authority to do so.

Pepper Urges Ship Sale.

In the course of the debate, Senator Pepper not only urged releasing American naval vessels to Great Britain, but said he would "interpose enough force on the side of Great Britain to see to it that this conquest [of Great Britain by Germany] is not consummated." Pepper denied that he favored a declaration of war against Germany, but declared that "a declaration of war, as I see it, has nothing to do with the matter."

The question of creating a dictatorship was raised during a speech by Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] who denounced the conscription bill as a long step in the direction of dictatorship. If the present "emergency" is as great as the advocates of peacetime conscription say it is, Senator Taft contended, "then we should

FILM NOTABLES NAMED AS REDS IN JURY INQUIRY

Listed in Testimony of Ex-Organizer.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14 (AP).—More than a dozen prominent Hollywood actors, actresses, and film writers were named in grand jury testimony, made public tonight, as members of the communist party and heavy contributors to its support.

The district attorney's office made public a transcript of testimony given last week by John L. Leech, a former Los Angeles county communist party organizer, before a county grand jury investigating communist activities.

Listed in Testimony.

Following are those named in Leech's testimony as members of the communist party, together with some of the screen productions with which they were prominently identified:

Fredric March, who appeared in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "A Star Is Born," "Trade Winds," "Anthony Adverse," and "Nothing Sacred"; winner of the actors' award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in 1932.

James Cagney, who starred in "Boy Meets Girl," and "Angels with Dirty Faces."

Franchot Tone, who played in "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Three Comrades," and "Lives of a Bengal Lancer"; named by the Motion Picture academy as one of 10 best actors of 1935.

Humphrey Bogart, who appeared in "The Black Legion," "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," and "King of the Underworld."

Jean Muir, who had title rôles in "Her Husband's Secretary," "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," and "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Clifford Odets, author of such stage and screen successes as "Golden Boy," and "Rocket to the Moon"; husband of Actress Luise Ranier.

Francis Lederer, who appeared in "One Rainy Afternoon," "My American Wife," and "The Gay Deception."

Frank Tuttle, who directed "Waikiki Wedding," "Dr. Rhythm," and "Paris Honeymoon."

Tania Tuttle, wife of Director Tuttle.

Frank Davis, who produced "Petticoat Fever," "The Devil Is a Sissy," and "Lord Jeff."

Gregory La Cava, who directed "What Every Woman Knows," "My Man Godfrey," and "Stage Door."

Lionel Stander, who appeared in "A Star Is Born," "Professor Beware," and "The Crowd Roars."

Lester Cole, scenarist, who collaborated on the screen plays "The Crime of Dr. Hallet," and "Secrets of a Nurse."

Buddy Schulberg, writer, and son of Producer B. P. Schulberg.

Frank Scully, writer.

Herbert Biberman, director.

Sam Ornitz, writer.

[Immediately following the release of Leech's list denials began to pour in from those named by him. Details on page 8.]

Leech was the principal witness before the grand jury. It indicted five men on charges of murder in connection with a water front slaying five years ago which he attributed to differences over communistic influences in a labor union.

"Study Groups" Alleged.

To further the work of the party among motion picture people and to obtain funds for party support, Leech testified, "study groups" in which tenets of the party were taught were organized among writers, producers, and actors.

The transcript showed that Leech testified Tone's contributions ran from $75 to $150 monthly.

"I have appeared at meetings at which Mr. Tone was present," Leech testified, "and have talked to him concerning party affairs and know he was on the list of regular contributors to the communist party. He was in the master list of 43 persons I have in my possession."

Leech said Producer Davis "made the largest contribution to my knowledge of any individual, $500 a month."

He testified Cagney had been a heavy contributor to party funds and was "both a member and contributor in 1934."

The grand jury today called as witnesses several of those named by Leech as party members. The nature of their testimony was not disclosed.

THE WASHINGTON DOCTRINE AGAINST AMERICAN MEDDLING IN EUROPEAN AFFAIRS

We should escape the periodical battering of propaganda to get us into European wars.

We should not have our people divided over European affairs in which we have no vital interest.

We should not be an accessory before the fact in the wholesale killing of people with whom we are supposed to be at peace.

We should not have our national unity divided by the alien sympathies of alien minded citizens.

We should not be obliged to put our ships under the Panama, Andorra, or Haitian flags to get around the so-called neutrality act.

We should not have our citizens of many European racial stems torn by the hatreds they came over here to get away from.

BOMB NAZI ARMY ALONG 100 MILE CHANNEL FRONT

SUBMARINE SINKS BRITISH ARMED LINER; 300 SAVED

LONDON, Aug. 15, Thursday (AP).—The 16,923 ton armed merchant cruiser Transylvania, once a popular West Indies cruise ship running out of New York, has been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine in the Atlantic, the admiralty announced today. The date of the sinking was not disclosed.

3 Lifeboats Capsize.

Between 30 and 40 sailors were believed to have been lost when lifeboats capsized in choppy seas. More than 300 officers and men were saved and landed at a west port in England. Among them was the commander, F. N. Miles. The ship's cat also was saved.

Most of the rescues were made by ships that picked up distress signals and dashed to the stricken liner, which remained afloat almost four hours after she was attacked.

Once Detained with Bremen.

The Transylvania, the seventh largest liner sunk in the war, had been taken over by the government from the Cunard Anchor Line. She was one of four ships detained by United States government order in New York harbor last August 29 for search by customs officers. Among the others was the German liner Bremen, which later ran the British blockade and reached Germany.

Blasts Light Up Sky of France Far Into Night.

SOUTHEAST COAST OF ENGLAND, Aug. 15, Thursday (AP).—Wailing alarm sirens heard across the English channel from the Nazi held coast of France early today signaled vast British counterattacks on Germany's blitzkrieg bases.

Reports reaching here, backed by what could be seen and heard across the channel, indicated the Royal Air Force struck its blows along perhaps 100 miles of the coast where Nazis are massed nearest to England. The attacks apparently ranged from Calais, 22 miles across the channel from Dover, to the big port of Le Havre.

Long after midnight and on toward dawn the screams of the sirens still could be heard. From a point at the southeastern tip of England the thud of exploding bombs could be heard as an undertone to the sirens' screams.

Great Flashes Light Sky.

Great flashes lit the sky and told of the thundering explosions with which the British bombers were paying back in kind for the pounding of southeastern England.

Searchlights pierced the darkness both on the French and English sides of the channel, which has become the no man's land of the battle of Britain.

Between Calais and Le Havre glowed the light of a huge fire.

An hour after the first sound of the attack, flashes in the sky indicated the bombings and the fire from enemy ground batteries were continuing unabated.

100 Flashes in Hour.

In one hour more than 100 bomb flashes were seen along the French coast. Other splashes of light that might have been flares or signals could be distinguished.

Overhead there was the drone of airplane motors. It was not immediately determined whether they signaled a hit back raid by the Nazis or were reënforcements for the British attackers.

NAZIS RAID AGAIN

LONDON, Aug. 15, Thursday (AP).—Striking north of the bomb pounded blitz belt along the south coast, Nazi raiders swept over northwestern England and north and south Scotland in attacks before dawn today.

The new raids were characteristic of the feeler flights thru the darkness that have preceded the mighty air assaults each of the last four days.

Yesterday's big blows were aimed at the vital south coast cities—Southhampton, Dover, and Hastings.

The German warplanes struck in serried waves, dropping bombs over the southeast and southern coasts, in the southwest, the Midlands, and even in Wales. But the channel ports again were hardest hit.

The air ministry announced that 26 German planes were shot down during the day, and that four British planes were lost.

[Germans claimed unofficially to have downed 22 British planes and lost 5.]

Nazis Strike at Balloons.

At Dover, the Nazis blasted away at British barrage balloons set up to protect the coast; at Southampton they poured down high explosive bombs, one of which fell 10 feet in front of an express train in a suburb, derailing engine and baggage car and injuring three passengers; at Hastings several fatalities were reported.

The hundreds of German dive bombers and fighters—300 in one thunderous flight swept over the southeast coast—did not attack alone. German naval units prowled English waters and were believed by British observers to be acting in a general effort to sweep the North sea and English channel clear of British mines and thus prepare the way for a sea-borne invasion.

Sink Two German Craft.

In one engagement in the North sea, two British destroyers were reported to have broken up a German flotilla of six trawlers and three torpedo-carrying speedboats, sending one trawler and one speed boat to the bottom while the others fled.

The fact that the engagement took place in the North sea appeared to support the belief of many observers that any attempt of the Nazis to invade England will be made on the northeast coast. The diplomatic correspondent of the Canadian Press quoted authoritative London sources as having said Germany has troop

Battle Greets Writer as He Enters Dover

BY H. TAYLOR HENRY.

DOVER, England, Aug. 14 (AP).—You're in the front line of the battle zone when the London-Dover train comes out of the last tunnel thru the chalk hills of the coast. I realized it today, riding on that train.

Daylight just had flooded the windows, after the tunnel's long gloom, and an incendiary bomb dropped barely a stone's throw from the right of way.

Forty Planes Overhead.

At least 40 German planes were overhead. Swiftly 8 or 10 more flame bombs crashed in a rough circle about the train. One set fire to a field. Farmers quickly put out the blaze.

When we pulled into Dover, the town was amazingly calm. The big midday air raid had just ended. All the way from the station to the Shalimar hotel on the waterfront, my taxi driver kept up a play by play commentary on the attack.

Misses "All the Fun."

"You just missed all the fun," he said. "More of them were over today than ever before. They got a few of our barrage balloons, but it was nothing to the hot time our fighters had waiting for them."

I reached the waterfront just as the seventh barrage balloon to be shot down came floating slowly to earth. Several townspeople had been hit by bomb fragments.

A policeman at a street intersection tonight watched a German scouting plane. He pointed and muttered, "Cheeky blighter!"

NAZIS DROP USE OF LUXEMBURG'S NAME IN LETTERS

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—References to "the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg" and the "country of Luxemburg" must be omitted in official correspondence in the future, Gustav Simon, head of the German civil administration in Luxemburg, declared today.

Asserting the constitution of the grand duchy had been abrogated as a result of the flight of Grand Duchess Charlotte and the government, Simon was quoted by the German news service, Dienst aus Deutsch land, as saying the new situation obligates Luxemburgers to loyalty.

Simon already has declared German the official language of Luxemburg, and Germans have emphasized the close ties of the little country with the reich. [There have been suggestions that these developments were preliminary to absorption by Germany.]

SURGEONS GRAFT ON TOE IN PLACE OF GIRL'S FINGER

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The successful "creation" of a new finger for a 2 year old girl from one of her toes—a surgical feat performed so skilfully as to make detection difficult—was described today in the August issue of Annals of Surgery.

The transplanting was done by Dr. Vilray P. Blair and Dr. Louis T. Byars of St. Louis, who grafted the toe to replace the first joint of the middle finger of the girl's right hand. So successful was the operation, the article said, that six weeks later X-ray pictures showed that color and circulation apparently were satisfactory.

Altho the joint remains straight now, the girl already has developed noticeable voluntary flexion and extension of the new member, and eventually, the surgeons hoped, normal movement of the finger would be possible.

Regulars Give Preview of War

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp McCoy, Wis., Aug. 14.—The American army's version of streamlined modern combat was demonstrated here today by the 5th division, regular army, for the benefit of National Guard and Reserve officers gathered for the 2d army maneuvers.

Under command of Brig. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, the 5th division, a streamlined triangular unit organized into combat teams, gave a demonstration of how it leaves bivouac, advances to a predetermined defensive position and occupies that position—all at 35 miles an hour.

[The term "triangular" denotes a division of three infantry regiments, contrasted to the four regiments [two brigades] of a "square" division.]

It was a full scale operation, extending over miles of the hilly terrain south of Shamrock, which lies northwest of Camp McCoy. While the visiting officers listened, Gen. Fredendall issued his order to the officers of his staff. Then, when the operations started, the guard and reserve officers went along with units of the 5th division which correspond to their own commands.

Strive for Realism.

Efforts were made, Gen. Fredendall said, to make everything as realistic as possible. Measures were taken for camouflage and concealment. The division command post and other headquarters units were in black tents pitched under trees to shield them from the eyes of imaginary enemy pilots. Trucks were parked in the woods. Antitank weapons and artillery were camouflaged with branches.

"Note particularly the brevity of our orders," the general told his listeners. "While it took six hours in the old world war to get orders from the division commander down to the platoon, orders are down to everybody here in about an hour and a half."

In an interview later, Gen. Fredendall discussed development of the triangular division—with its three infantry regiments—and the combat teams into which the division is organized.

Personnel of Combat Teams.

The 5th has three combat teams—called CT 2, CT 10, and CT 11, after the infantry regiments about which they are built. The CT 2, for instance, is made up of the 2d infantry regiment, the 3d battalion of the 19th field artillery, a platoon of the 7th engineer battalion, a platoon of the 7th medical battalion, a signal detachment, and a detachment of the headquarters and military police companies of the 5th division.

The other two teams are similarly organized. Each combat team can work alone.

"The triangular division was developed over a period of four to five years of intensive training at Fort Sam Houston, Texas," Gen. Fredendall said. "There are at present nine of them.

Idea Not New in War.

"The combat team idea is not new. It started in the world war where artillery battalions were used to support infantry regiments in the first division.

"The combat team, as we use it now, is good as long as the division is dispersed over a wide area, but the minute one combat team meets opposition, we swarm like bees around that opposition in order to overcome it. When this happens, the artillery, which until then has made up part of the combat team, reverts to divisional control.

"In other words, as long as the division is on a wide frontage, combat teams are desirable, but whenever the division takes up a defensive position or puts on a concerted attack, the control of artillery must revert to the division commander."

COFFEE GIFTS BOOMERANG ON U. S. REFUGEES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PETSAMO, Finland, Aug. 14.—One of the hardships which the 897 American refugees will have to bear when they sail from here Friday on the overcrowded United States army transport American Legion will be a shortage of coffee.

Members of the crew who have found friends in Petsamo, passengers whose relatives have journeyed up here to say good-by, and officers of the ship who wish to express their appreciation to the British officers and officials who have helped the refugees—all are making presents of cans of American coffee from the ship's stores. Coffee is the most prized and appreciated gift in Finland today because the war has cut off the nation's normal imports.

Due to these gifts the ship's menu is being changed and, instead of having coffee three times daily, the returning refugees probably will only have it at one meal each day.

concentrations in both Norway and Holland ready for the invasion.

A landing there would be handy to Britain's great industrial belt and would give the Nazis scope for a western offensive which, if completed, would cut the island defenses in two.

The raids kept the gray skies full of clamor. In a single 90-minute battle, 80 German bombers broke thru the coastal defenses, under the protective wings of a cloud of fighter planes, to drop bombs inland.

In another screeching engagement, 150 planes, attackers and defenders, were engaged.

British Raid in Germany.

The royal air force reported new and damaging blows at aircraft factories in Dessau and Bernburg, in Germany, and the bombardment of German munitions plants at Lunen and Grevenbruch on Tuesday night. Struck by British bombers, too, were objectives in Germany's industrial Ruhr and 14 airdromes in German and German-held territory.

Loss of the mine sweeping trawler Elizabeth Angela was announced by the admiralty. The communique said the trawler was sunk by enemy air attack with one fatality.

British officials announced that in the great battles of Monday and Tuesday, 140 German planes probably had been destroyed or damaged in addition to 140 already claimed to have been "definitely destroyed" in those engagements.

British Expect Attempt to Invade Northeast Coast

Naval action in the North sea yesterday in which British destroyers were reported to have broken up German flotilla strengthened beliefs that a German invasion would strike at the northeast coast to cut England in two. The day's bomb attacks, however, were concentrated along the south coast and in the midlands.

CLIPPER SIGHTS OIL 'SLICK,' CLUE TO SUNKEN SHIP

New York, Aug. 14 [Special].—A large oil "slick" about half a mile wide and five miles long indicating a destroyed ship, was sighted southeast of Horta, the Azores, today by the New York-bound Yankee Clipper of Pan-American Airways.

The Clipper turned off its regular course at the request of the Portuguese government to search for a vessel reported to have been torpedoed Tuesday morning. Capt. Robert Ford, the plane commander, radioed to officials that he was about 650 miles from Lisbon when he received a message from Lisbon asking him to look in the vicinity of San Maria and San Miguel islands.

Capt. Ford said his crew saw no signs of survivors, lifeboats or life rafts, other than the "slick." The plane returned to its course and landed at Horta one hour behind schedule. Twenty-three passengers and 2,598 pounds of mail are aboard the Clipper, which is scheduled to arrive tomorrow.

Hoarder of Gold Coins Fined $13,000 by Britain

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP). — Heinrich Emil Mendelssohn was fined 3,250 pounds [about $13,000] today for failing to offer for sale to the treasury gold sovereigns worth about $41,921, and 16,500 gold dollars. England, like the United States, has a law against gold hoarding.

King George Proclaims Sept. 8 a Day of Prayer

INDIA HOME RULE IMPOSSIBLE NOW, AMERY ASSERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The status of Great Britain's recent offer to India was the subject of extended debates in both the house of lords and the house of commons tonight. Emerging from the sessions was a statement of L. S. Amery, secretary of India, that Britain cannot agree to grant immediate home rule.

The government takes the position that the offer that Britain will consider a new constitution for India after the war in return for that country's wholehearted war support is both fair and generous.

Demands of the powerful All-India National congress for complete independence were rejected on the grounds that this body does not represent the entire country, especially the minority group of 90,000,000 Moslems.

GOERING GETS HIS NEW BATON IN A NEW UNIFORM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—The chief of the German air force, Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, today called on Fuehrer Adolf Hitler at the chancellery to receive his new reichsmarshal baton.

In honor of the occasion Goering donned a new uniform befitting the highest rank in the German armed forces. The tunic and breeches were a silvery gray. The heavily gilt shoulder straps displayed two crossed marshal's batons. The reichsmarshal baton is adorned with an orb similar to the imperial globe, insignia of the old German emperors.

Several of the new field marshals also were present at the ceremony to receive their new batons. Three of Goering's main lieutenants who were given the rank of field marshal recently were absent. It was explained that these field marshals, Erhard Milch, Hugo Sperrle, and Albert Kesselring, were not able to leave their headquarters in view of the "activities of the air force."

MAIL FROM U. S. CENSORED; WHY? ASKS BRITISH M. P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Vernon Bartlett, member of parliament, will ask the minister of information in the house of commons tomorrow whether he was aware that private correspondence from the United States containing comments on the British political situation had been censored here. He will also ask who ordered censorship. His questions were prompted by the censorship of two letters turned over to the editor of the News Chronicle by their recipients.

NAZI FLYERS RAIN BOMBS ON DOVER AREA; RIP DOCKS

Report 22 Planes Downed in 5th Day's Raids.

Box Score in Air Blitz

In five days of large scale German air raids on Britain the belligerents have made the following official—and conflicting—claims of planes destroyed:

	GERMAN CLAIMS. British lost.	Germans lost.	BRITISH CLAIMS. Germans lost.	British lost.
Thursday..	49	10	60	16
Sunday ...	93	21	65	26
Monday ...	89	24	69	13
Tuesday ...	132	28	78	13
Wednesday.	22	5	26	4
Totals ..	385	88	291	72

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—Germany's mighty air force carried a tempest of fire and metal across the channel into England's exposed southern flank for the fourth successive day of big aerial assault today.

Returning bombers described masses of floating wreckage of planes and balloons shot down off Dover—a possible sign of conditions ripe for invasion.

Biggest battles of the day were reported off this southeastern "hot" corner nearest the continent, where Germans said British fighters persisted in making futile attempts to stop the torrents of German bombers, dive bombers and battle planes and lost 22 of their Hurricanes and Spitfires to the Germans' 5.

Put 5 Day "Bag" at 385.

This brought Britain's total of destroyed planes, according to German bookkeeping, to 385 for the five big days beginning last Thursday. This was at a cost of 88 German planes, the Germans reckoned.

Despite the desperate British opposition, the Germans said, their bombers shrieked down on their objectives, hitting airports and wharves with minelike explosives which left towering fires in their wake.

Approximately a score of Britain's vaunted barrage balloons were shot down, the Germans declared.

German bombers started their work in the early hours of the morning from numerous bases in Germany, the Netherlands, and Belgium, taking advantage of thick clouds over the channel, to slip over the British coastline for raids far inland.

[British dispatches said the longest and severest raid of the war on the important industrial Midlands was carried out.]

Destroyers Reported Routed.

Destruction of British aircraft on Tuesday, which Germans totaled at 132, was accomplished in part by the bombing and firing of two score on the ground at British airports before they had a chance to get into the air, the Germans said.

They pointed to this as indicating an approaching parallel to the blitzkrieg that paralyzed Polish and French air fleets.

The high command reported a submarine chaser patrol had encountered a destroyer flotilla in the fog shrouded North sea and put it to flight after a "skirmish."

[The British said two destroyers chased six armed German trawlers and three torpedo boats behind a smoke screen, and that three of the boats were hit and two believed sunk.]

British Autos Kill Twice as Many as Enemy Bombs

LONDON, Aug 14 (AP).—Highway accidents in Britain were reported today to have killed more than twice as many people as German bombs last month. The July road accident total was 578, while enemy bombs accounted for 258 Britons.

TEARS FLOW AS LITH ENVOY TURNS BERLIN OFFICE OVER TO REDS

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—Lithuanian Minister Kays Skirpa tearfully surrendered his country's Berlin legation today to representatives of the Russian embassy.

With the 15 members of his legation staff who stubbornly declined for five days to let the Russians enter, he went out the front gate to join the growing army of Europeans in exile from their homelands.

Lithuania was the last of the three Baltic countries recently absorbed by the soviet union to surrender its legation here. The Latvians and Estonians had handed over their keys without much to-do.

FASCISTS CALL BRITISH AIR RAID 'COWARDLY' ACT

22 Killed, 50 Injured in Northern Italy.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 14 (AP).—Squadrons of long range British bombers thundered over the Alps and down on the great industrial cities of northern Italy early today, killing 22 persons, injuring more than 50 and stirring the rage of Fascists at what they called "a barbarous and cowardly attack."

The Italians said the British bombers crossed neutral Switzerland and scattered explosives and propaganda leaflets at random in the residential districts of Milan, Turin, Tortona, and Alessandria. The leaflets told Italians to wake up to their use as vassals "by your hereditary enemy, Germany," to "make Hitler stronger."

Authorities insisted there was no military damage.

[The British air ministry said the Caproni factory at Milan and the Fiat plant at Turin, two of Italy's most vital aircraft plants, were seriously damaged by the raids. The communique said the R. A. F. planes "smashed the factories" and set them afire. One pilot, homeward bound, saw "a dull glare from the Caproni works miles behind him. It was asserted all British planes returned except one, which was forced down at sea near the British coast.]

Hit Near Duce's Newspaper.

The heaviest attack was at Milan, where 12 persons were killed and 44 injured by 30 explosive and incendiary bombs. Two of the bombs fell near the building of Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia, but the paper was published as usual, the Rome radio said. The bombs blew a large hole in the street named Via Arnoldo Mussolini.

Still another British raid was carried out over Augusta, naval base in Sicily. Naval anti-aircraft was said to have shot down a British torpedo plane.

The surprise attacks on the larger cities, first since early in the war, brought home to the inhabitants their danger even from Britain.

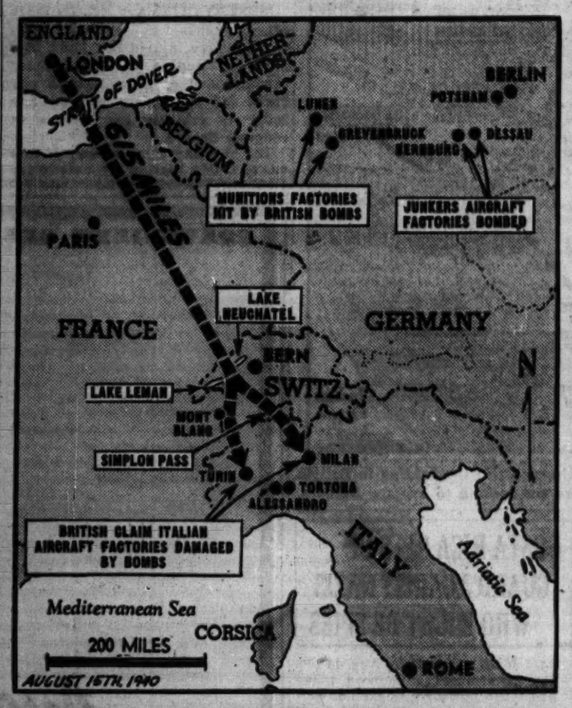
Split Into Two Forces.

Italian dispatches from Berne, Switzerland, said the British squadrons, accompanied by several "isolated" machines, flew over the Jura region of Switzerland, across territory between Lake Leman and Neuchâtel and then separated, some flying down past Mont Blanc and others thru Simplon Pass.

[The shortest route from London across northern France and Switzerland to Milan is around 615 miles. The British, however, described their round trip as a 1,600 mile, double crossing of the Alps. Independent dispatches from Switzerland said the planes sent thousands of Swiss tumbling out of beds toward air raid shelters when alarms were sounded between 11 p. m. last night and dawn today. No bombs were dropped in Switzerland.]

British Bomb Italian Cities

(Story in adjoining column.)



Broken line indicates route taken by British bombers that attacked Milan and Turin in Italy. German objectives of English flyers are also located.

How Both Sides Count Air Toll

[The following dispatches state the British and German versions of what information is required by each government before it lays formal claim to the destruction of an enemy airplane.]

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP).—The royal air force has dropped its earlier rule that no enemy plane would be marked down as destroyed unless two British pilots saw it crash.

In its place is a rule that the attacking British pilot must be prepared to pledge his word that he has destroyed the enemy plane, and it will be listed to his credit provided he saw it crash or break up in the air. This pledge, it is declared, is now a point of honor for the corps.

It was said that in the sort of continuous dog fight now going on over England it is impossible to follow the policy of corroboration.

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—Every German flyer who shoots down an English plane must have the verification of two witnesses before he receives recognition for the victory, military sources said today in explaining how they count British losses.

This is a German air force principle, they said, adding: "Every battle and pursuit squadron has been sternly instructed to report only such planes definitely shot down for which there have been two witnesses."

Such successes, it was said, are then reported in service messages via the air corps to the air fleet headquarters, then to the air force general staff for final check.

CHANNEL SMOKE SEEN AS GUIDE TO NAZI'S BIG GUNS

Expert Says Screen Is Range Finder Aid.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—It was rumored in Berlin tonight that German long range guns are keeping the British southeast coast under fire. These reports are neither confirmed nor denied. The Berlin radio, commenting today on American newspapers' published reports that the Germans are firing across the channel, said inquiry in competent quarters had brought no denials.

[British authorities have refused to confirm such reports. Their censors have permitted the reports to be cabled abroad.]

BY GUY MURCHIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—During the last two or three days newspapers here have been speculating about trails of smoke laid by German airplanes over the southeast coast of England. Some called it a rehearsal of sky smoke screens to hide bomber armadas.

Today THE TRIBUNE was given a much more likely explanation by an artillery expert, who believes there is almost certainly a connection between Monday's reported shelling of the English southeast coast by German long range guns and the smoke trails laid by German planes.

An Aid to Range Finders.

According to this authority, these lines of smoke laid in the sky were markers for range finders operating with German batteries on the French coast.

Two theodolites [instruments for measuring angles] set up wide apart on the French coast can be trained upon the smoke trail [the location of which is known] in a manner which gives on the base line of the theodolites the exact bearing of the target to the positions of the theodolites.

Calculation Is Easy.

Knowing the distance between the theodolites and two angles of the triangle, it is a simple matter to calculate the lengths of the other two sides of the triangle and the exact position of the target.

A correction for the difference in height between the smoke trail and the actual target can be made by the aerial observers after the guns fire the first time.

NEW STAFF CHIEF FOR AUSTRALIA'S ARMY APPOINTED

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 14 (AP).—Maj. Gen. John Northcott was appointed chief of staff of the Australian army today, succeeding Lieut. Gen. Cyril B. B. White, who was killed yesterday in an air crash in which nine others died.

Senator Philip McBride and Representative Arthur Fadden were sworn in as acting defense and air ministers, respectively. They succeeded Defense Minister Geoffrey A. Street and Air Minister J. V. Fairbairn who, with Sir Henry Gullett, vice president of the executive council, were victims of the crash.

As parliament adjourned in tribute to the victims, official circles hinted that important officials would not be permitted hereafter to travel together by plane.

CHUTISTS HUNTED IN BRITAIN AFTER ALARM IS GIVEN

Air Troops' Equipment Found in Midlands.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—English church bells—the signal to the nation that enemy troops have landed—rang out today when more than 50 parachutes were found in villages in the Midlands and Scotland. The government immediately put the whole country on the watch for German parachutists, and soldiers, home guards, and police started a search for possible aerial invaders.

Late tonight a ministry of home security communique said there was no evidence that parachutists had landed.

Chutes Able to Hold 400 Pounds.

Experts examining the parachutes said they were similar to those used successfully by troops invading the Low Countries from fleets of planes. They were reported to be capable of dropping 400 pounds and were fitted with harness to carry a man in service gear.

The government's action against the menace of the parachutists, by which the Nazis invaded France and Poland, as well as the Low Countries, was taken when 17 abandoned chutes were found in the industrial region of the Midlands, where saboteurs could cause serious damage.

All traffic in the area was stopped by police and home guards. A farmer who found several of the chutes said he could locate no trace of any men near them. Other such discoveries of parachutes had been reported earlier from two areas in England and one in Scotland.

"Scare" Theory Advanced.

The possibility was advanced that the parachutes had not been used by troops, but had merely been dropped by the Nazis to alarm the countryside.

Earlier it was reported that 11 German airmen [not parachute troops] had been captured in the Midlands after they had bailed out of crippled planes.

The ringing of the church bells today in a town where most of the chutes were found was the first time they have sounded for several weeks. Sounding of the bells has been reserved to give the nation a necessary alarm to combat invading forces and some pastors who had not even heard of the new security order have been sent to jail because they had allowed the bells in their churches to be rung for church purposes. Today was the first time the bells have rung as an invasion signal.

Nazis Scoff at Chute Reports.

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—British reports of finding German parachutes in the Midlands and in Scotland tonight, were termed by German sources "a midsummer night's dream."

"The English mind is full of fantasy," an official spokesman said.

CHILDREN HOME, LEOPOLD SEEKS 'LOST' BELGIANS

Acts to Return Throngs Who Fled Invasion.

BRUSSELS [via Berlin], Aug. 14 (AP).—A prisoner of war in his own castle, King Leopold of Belgium has his children with him again—after weeks of separation amid war's tumult—but he still awaits the return of hundreds of thousands of his countrymen who fled to France during Germany's invasion of the Lowlands.

About 1,500,000 Belgians were wandering refugees in France when the armistice was signed. They have been returning only gradually to their homes.

Sought Speedy Repatriation.

Even before the conclusion of the battle of France, Leopold did what he could to speed repatriation of Belgian refugees. He asked the president of Switzerland on June 13 to negotiate with French and German authorities for the return of Belgians across Swiss frontiers. Last month he won the Red Cross' cooperation.

The king's three children, Princess Charlotte, 13 years old; Crown Prince Baudouin, 11, and Prince Albert, 7, were detained for a while in France, apparently against the wishes of their father, who had given instructions to send them to Portugal.

Live in Royal Castle.

Also with the king now are his mother, the Dowager Queen Elizabeth, and his brother, Prince Charles. They are living in Laeken castle, near here, the usual residence of the royal family.

A Belgian refugee who had an audience with the king said:

"The king's health now is very satisfactory. He was ailing for some time, but he is all right now. He is not downhearted, and is happy to have his mother with him."

TOUR DISCLOSES NAZI BOMBS MISS BRITISH TARGETS

Writer Discovers Little Damage in Vital Port.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—In order to check up on reports of damage done by German air bombing to various ports in Britain, this correspondent has visited many of the towns hit in order to see for himself.

The conclusion is that German bombers so far have done surprisingly little damage in Britain and that the chances of an Englishman's being hit by a bomb at present are hardly greater than his chances of being hit by lightning. In fact, by far the greatest damage inflicted on a west coast port the writer visited was caused not by German raiders but by a thunderstorm. It was a freak case and happened during an actual air raid.

Lightning Destroys Balloons.

According to eyewitnesses, some of the barrage balloons were destroyed by lightning that night. No other damage was done that night.

The first air raid against this port, one of the prime targets of the Nazi raiders, occurred on June 15. Since then there has been an average of more than one raid daily and approximately 250 bombs have been dropped. Not a single bomb has struck the docks, the loading machinery, or damaged any part of the harbor, altho these obviously are the most important targets.

I saw a large number of places where the bombs hit, but the most serious damage was the partial wreckage of some small houses. Also, a piece had been knocked off a railroad station and a balloon lorry smashed.

Drop "Bombs" of Oil.

The newest type of bombs fell one night recently and appeared to be drums of fuel oil equipped with a detonator. These "bombs" evidently were designed to ignite oil storage tanks, but missed their mark and exploded with a flash.

The total number of hours lost in this port by munitions factory workers as the result of air raids is 79, according to the lord mayor, but, he added, this time was more than made up by overtime work of the patriotic workers so that the "air raids may have actually increased production."

This port receives 1,000,000 tons of oil and 1,000,000 tons of grain yearly and one third of all the copper, tobacco and cocoa consumed in Britain. Thus, if its docking machinery could be wrecked the German blockade would be greatly aided.

The fact that the Germans have not damaged this equipment suggests either that their air force is ineffective to an extent strangely inconsistent with their record on the continent or lack of a serious determination to force a blockade in this manner—perhaps because they hope to use this equipment themselves during an invasion.

People Indifferent to Raids.

The indifference of people to air raid alarms in this port is indicated by the fact that the lord mayor greeted a small party of news correspondents on the city hall steps during an alarm and interviewed them in a reception hall during it, drinking toasts in sherry.

When I left the city at night, another alarm was on. Relatively few people went to the shelters. Trains continued to run and one would hardly have known that German planes were above except for the brief warning. Statistics to date reveal that the chances of anyone being killed by a German bomb in England are only 1 in 50,000.

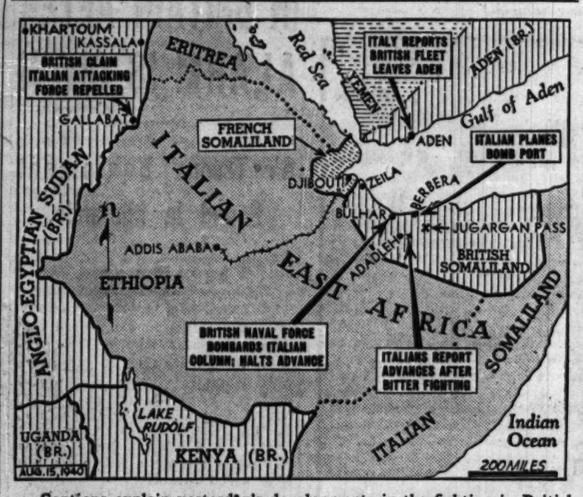
British Warships Aid Port Defense



Captions explain yesterday's developments in the fighting in British Somaliland, where the Italian invaders are seeking to capture Berbera.

BRITAIN CLAIMS FLEET ROUTS FOE IN BERBERA PUSH

Halt Italians on Land by Fire from Gulf.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 14.—British warships have turned their guns on the coast of their own protectorate of Somaliland to hold up Italians advancing there against the key port of Berbera, British bastion on the south shore of the Gulf of Aden.

Armored columns and troop concentrations were scattered by salvoes from light naval units offshore, British military headquarters reported, and the Fascist offensive was declared to have been stopped short of Bulhar, 40 miles west of Berbera.

Planes Show Targets.

The British communique said the fleet in attacking the Italians had been aided in finding their targets by Blenheim aircraft.

[A dispatch to Il Giornale D'Italia, Fascist organ in Rome, reported the British fleet at Aden, Arabian port across the gulf from Berbera, had left there, adding to the already "intense movement" in the gulf. The Italian drive against Berbera is to attempt to break British empire communications thru the Red sea.]

British ground forces reported Italian forces had been thrown back at Jurgargan Pass, 35 miles south, southeast of Berbera.

[The Italians acknowledged today that "bitter fighting" was in progress in British Somaliland east of Adadleh, which is some 60 miles west of Berbera, but added: "Our maneuvers, tho strongly opposed, continue."]

Action in Libya and Sudan.

The British also reported they had defeated Fascist columns in skirmishes both in Italian Libya and in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. In the Libyan engagement, it was declared that British troops had penetrated 35 miles into that Italian area, putting an Italian patrol to flight.

In the Gallabat area of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the British reported that after a brief fight, "the enemy made a hasty withdrawal behind his defenses, losing one officer and 32 other ranks." British casualties were six, the communique said.

Germany Bars Dancing Because of War on Britain

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (AP).—Public dancing was barred in Germany today, apparently because of the new offensive against Britain. During the Polish campaign there was a similar ban. Dancing was permitted during the winter months and then forbidden during the offensive in western Europe. Recently it was permitted two nights weekly.

COSTA RICA SETS UP GUARD AGAINST NAZIS WHO MIGHT BE SPIES

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 14 (AP).—The government announced today it had taken measures to exclude Germans who might try to enter Costa Rica for espionage or other unwelcome purposes. Lists of such agents were sent with instructions to Costa Rican consulates abroad.

Mexico Increases Its Guard.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Mexican attorney general's office has almost doubled its staff of secret agents in its campaign against "subversive activity" either by foreigners or Mexican elements, it was reported today. Operatives have been sent to all ports and important frontier points on the United States and Guatemala boundaries, it was said.

Suspected Nazi Agent Seized.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug 14 (AP).—Uruguayan police tonight arrested Karl Arnold, described by Argentine gendarmes as an agent of the German secret police, who fled from Argentina after he was ordered deported Friday. He was charged with violating immigration regulations and may be returned to Buenos Aires.

REGAINS BABY LOST MAY 10 IN NAZI AIR RAID

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Aug. 14 (AP).—The case of a baby boy claimed by two mothers after an air bombing of a maternity home in the Nazi conquest of the Netherlands May 10 was decided by a Hague court today. The court ruled the woman who now has the baby must give it up. She cried out that she "never, never" would yield.

The other woman, the plaintiff, said her baby was 10 days old when the maternity home was bombed and that she took the child to a window and handed him to a pedestrian who ran with the infant to an air raid shelter. There, according to the plaintiff, the other woman took the child.

The court heard evidence that two babies were killed in the defendant's room at the maternity home but none in the room of the plaintiff.

WOMAN IS SLAIN IN MEXICO CITY POLITICAL FIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15, Thursday (AP).—A woman was killed and seven persons were injured last night in a burst of gunfire as congressional candidates of opposing factions prepared for preliminary sessions late today to organize for opening of congress Sept. 1.

The shooting came as one of dozens of trucks bearing peasants to the capital to protect backers of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration presidential candidate, passed a group of citizens in an outlying section of Mexico City. As the group shouted "viva Almazan" for Gen. Juan Almazan, independent presidential candidate, pistols blazed.

Followers of Gen. Juan Andreau Almazan, independent candidate in the recent presidential elections who insists he defeated Camacho, meanwhile continued plans to set up their own congress. It will be the new congress' duty to proclaim the successful presidential candidate.

GERMANS BLAST AT AIR BARRIERS TO DIVE BOMBERS

Battle Balloon Barrage Over British Ports.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Military opinion here believes the increased tempo and volume of German air attacks against Brtain during the last fortnight indicates Fuehrer Adolf Hitler may be about to launch the long threatened invasion.

Especially significant is the fact that the German raiders, who heretofore had ignored the barrage balloons, have lately deliberately set out to shoot them from the sky. This can reasonably be interpreted as preparation for dive bombers to attack specific targets from low altitudes, which they could not do accurately while the balloons remained aloft. That the Germans still perfer dive bombing to high level bombing suggests they have not substantially revised their prewar estimate of the relative accuracy of these methods, which showed high level bombing to be only five-twelfths as accurate as dive bombing and 3½ times costlier in the number of pilots and crew members shot down.

Tests Support Dive Bombing.

The Nazis arrived at the above figures after exhaustive tests showed high level bombers hit an average sized target with only 1 out of 12 bombs dropped. Tests also showed that 20 per cent of these planes would normally be shot down during this operation. Thus, allowing the factor of saftey of 10 per cent for additonal losses, it was calculated that the Nazis must send 78 bombers carrying five men and one ton of bombs each in order to be certain of hitting a target with 5 tons of bombs.

On the other hand, similar tests showed it would take only 67 bombers carrying 2 men and a half ton of bombs each to achieve the same success because, altho the average expected losses of the dive bombers would be 25 per cent instead of 20 per cent, 1 out of every 5 of their bombs would hit a target.

Invisible Forest of Wires.

The modern barrage balloon, one of the defenses against dive bombers, floats at great heights above cities, ports, and areas needing protection. Used in large numbers, their purpose is to erect an invisible forest of steel wires, their mooring cables, which make virtually certain that aircraft flying beneath the level of the balloons will be hurled to the ground.

These barrage balloons are made with a rubberized silk cover and are filled with hydrogen gas. They are reported to cost less than $500 apiece.

Unless the Germans had good reasons for shooting them down, it would seem hardly worth the risk of planes and personnel.

Balloons Easily Replaced.

The balloon itself is easily replaced and damage rarely results to the more expensive motor truck, motor driven wench and cable which operate the balloon.

With the moon now waxing, the balloons will be easy targets as the moonlight is reflected from their silvery skin, making them visible for miles.

The majority of the experts believe the remaining few weeks of favorable weather this year must force an attempt at invasion soon, if at all.

COMMONS URGED TO KEEP A STRICT FOOD BLOCKADE

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP).—A motion declaring opposition to "any effort or proposals which may be made to permit food supplies to Europe to pass our blockade" was introduced in the house of commons tonight. It was indorsed by 15 members, about one-fourth of the membership.

Britain's blockade probably will be modified to permit Spain to receive restricted imports of raw materials, an informed source said today. The Spanish press recently has complained of interference with the normal supplies of oil and wheat.

J. A. Mander, Liberal, today asked in commons if it was "proposed to continue to supply oil and other articles for war purposes to Japan," R. A. Butler, foreign undersecretary, declined to reply.

$250,000 Gown

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Rita Hayworth of the movies modeling $250,000 gown which was made of chiffon and 40,000 pearls.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 14 [Special.]—Rita Hayworth, who jumped from the circus to movie stardom in a few months, today made another figurative leap back to her own comfortable sports suit after modeling a $250,000 dress of cultured pearls.

Rita made a formal appearance for the press last night in a creation of 40,000 pearls which had required six weeks' labor by 15 dressmakers.

PARIS IS WARNED TO TIGHTEN BELTS FOR HARD WINTER

City Is Told to Expect No Food Imports.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 14 [Delayed].—Paris received in the press today its first official warning that a hard winter faces Parisians. The newspapers printed an appeal from the prefects that citizens display "good sense and patriotism" in meeting the shortage of food.

Most ominous in the warning was this statement: "Paris and its suburbs for an indefinite time to come will receive provisions only from the national territory. Hence, a sure reduction in the amount of certain foodstuffs and even the suppression of the contribution made by those which our soil does not produce."

[Paris is in territory occupied by Germans. In recent propaganda broadcasts made from Berlin the Nazis asserted that the feeding of conquered populations in Europe would be up to Britain, which has maintained a blockade.]

The prefects appealed to every one to be careful with stocks on hand and to avoid all unnecessary purchases.

No Imported Foodstuffs.

There being on hand at present no accurate estimate of what France will produce in foodstuffs or how much of that can be moved to Paris, the average citizen is confronted with just one certainty—he will have to go without imported products. In France that means coffee, tea, chocolate, and some spices. France produces some of practically every other commodity.

It is certain, however, that there will be a shortage of sugar.

Britain to Conserve Butter.

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP).—The food ministry today banned sale of all kinds of cream, effective Oct. 1, to conserve the supply for butter and other "essential dairy products."

CAROL TIGHTENS GRIP ON NATION; WARNS ENEMIES

Acts to Put Down Internal Threats to Rumania.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 14.—King Carol is determined to make Rumania's new totalitarian political machine work. Where persuasion is not enough, it was revealed, authorities are clamping down hard to bring the country into line.

Authorities asserted today that the country is free from any threat of armed rebellion as a result of measures taken by the ministry of interior to see that no internal disturbance strengthens the hands of those countries demanding slices of Rumanian territory.

In a statement today the ministry warned that members of disbanded political parties who do not "fit in" with the present one-party rule will be sent to concentration camps. It denied that arms intended for the country's defenses are getting into the hands of illegal political groups.

Seize Hungarians.

The ministry also announced that five members of the Hungarian minority had been arrested for insults to the nation and for spreading propaganda and that five more will be tried by army courts for "spreading alarmist reports." The names of five more persons sent to concentration camps for spreading rumors also were made public. These brought the total so far announced to 23.

These measures were taken to bolster the government in settling territorial claims with Hungary and Bulgaria. Minority groups on one hand are getting excited about the foreign demands and the Rumanians on the other fear their country is to be forced to yield territory.

Word was received today that a Hungarian delegation had left Budapest for Turnu-Severin, on the Rumanian border, to open formal negotiations with representatives of Rumania for the return of the rich province of Transylvania.

Negotiations with Bulgaria, which were to have begun a week ago, have not yet materialized.

Greece Calls In Army Chief.

Dispatches from Athens, Greece, reported that Premier John Metaxas tonight conferred for hours with Gen. Papagos, army chief of staff, and members of his cabinet. It was believed that Greece was getting its defenses ready to meet any Italian military threat from the direction of Albania.

Italy has been conducting a strong anti-Greece campaign in its press similar to that launched by German newspapers before the Nazi invasions of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland.

Some observers also believed that Germany and Italy are demanding that Greece not only break away from Great Britain, which has guaranteed to support Greek independence, but also come into Italy's sphere of influence.

CUDAHY CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT; DENIES A REBUKE

No Intention of Leaving Service, Says Envoy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium who aroused a storm of controversy by his remarks about the British blockade and the behavior of American doughboys, received no rebuke from President Roosevelt, the ambassador said after a long conference with the President today.

Cudahy was summoned home to report to his superiors after his disputed London interview, which was denounced by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles as "unauthorized."

"I am authorized to say that there has been no rebuke administered to me," Cudahy said at the White House after his conference with Mr. Roosevelt, a close friend.

"I have no intention of resigning from the diplomatic service," added Cudahy. "I am fully satisfied."

Disparages U. S. Soldiers.

Cudahy was quoted in London dispatches as saying that Belgians faced starvation because of the British blockade and that the invading German troops behaved better than American troops might have under similar circumstances.

The dapper ambassador is scheduled to see Welles, who is acting secretary of state while Cordell Hull is vacationing, but Cudahy said there is no reason to expect that his talk with Welles will be at variance with the interview with Mr. Roosevelt.

"I had a very satisfactory talk with the President," he said, after spending nearly two hours at the White House. "There is no question of any rebuke, and I am now going home on accrued leave."

Cudahy reiterated without qualification a prediction he made in London that Nazi conquered Belgium is heading into a famine this fall.

Predicts Oct. 1 Rationing.

"It will be established beyond question that Belgium will be facing an iron ration not later than Oct. 1," Cudahy said. "This is inevitable, since Belgium is an importing nation, and supplies on hand will be exhausted before another harvest."

Cudahy stood unequivocally on that statement, but asserted that London newspapers had "victimized" him by drawing inferences without justification from that prediction.

"I was asked whether I proposed to recommend to my government that measures be taken to supply food to Belgium," Cudahy recalled. "I replied that this was none of my business—that it touched on governmental policy."

The ambassador said his return here was the result of orders to come home which far antedates the episode of his London interview.

"I had orders to report since June 19 and have followed those orders," he said.

BENDIX EMPLOYE SEIZED IN THEFT OF BLUEPRINTS

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 14 [Special].—A draftsman at the Bendix Products corporation was held today for grand jury action on a charge that he stole blueprints for a new kind of airplane carburetor from the factory's aviation division.

The defendant is Frank Lipke, 33 years old, who said he belongs to the Proletarian party which police described as a communist organization. He is a native of South Bend and the son of naturalized Germans.

The authorities' interest in Lipke was aroused by an unsigned letter received by the police department which accused him of sending a photostatic copy of Bendix blueprints to Moscow. Police raided Lipke's home at 2710 Hartzer street Friday night and found the plans the letter said he had taken and a quantity of what Police Chief W. K. Ingram termed radical literature.

The draftsman denied he had taken the plans for any un-American purpose or that he had sent a copy to Moscow.

Report Spanish Paper Urges Philippines Return

BERLIN, Aug. 14, via radio (AP).—A Madrid dispatch broadcast by the German radio today said the anniversary of Spain's loss of the Philippines to the United States was taken by the newspaper Alcazar as an occasion to renew Spain's claim to these islands, declared to be "more Spanish than ever." It was on Aug. 13, 1898, that Manila was surrendered to the American forces.

U. S. AND JAPAN RULE SHANGHAI BRITISH SECTOR

Marines to Guard Vital Commerce Area.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15, Thursday (AP).—An agreement has been reached dividing control of the British defense sector of Shanghai's International Settlement between American and Japanese forces, it was reported reliably today.

The future of the British sector following removal of British troops from Shanghai and North China was discussed by defense commanders in a four hour meeting.

Official quarters refused to confirm or deny the reports of an agreement, saying an official statement would be issued at 9 a. m. tomorrow [8 p. m. Chicago time, Thursday].

Marines Guard Business Area.

According to reports, the British sector would be split up as follows:

The 4th United States marines under Col. Dewitt Peck will take over the central district of the International Settlement, Shanghai's important downtown commercial and financial center.

The Japanese will take over West Hongkew, the area within the settlement north of Soochow creek, and also the extra settlement western district, where dual control already existed thru the presence of Japanese dominated Chinese police.

Japs to Be Lenient.

The Japanese, according to these reports, undertook to be lenient in their treatment of the areas to come under their control.

Japanese officials had expressed the hope the United States might follow the British example and withdraw the marines stationed in Shanghai, while spokesmen for the Japanese controled Chinese Nanking government have said they would not permit transfer of the British sector to United States troops.

Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet, who arrived here yesterday by submarine from Tsingtao, did not attend today's conference of defense commanders. He sent his flag lieutenant as observer.

OUSTED RED ARMY COMMISSARS GET NEW POSITIONS

MOSCOW, Russia, Aug. 14 (AP).—The former political commissars of the Red army whose jobs were abolished in a decree issued yesterday to "strengthen the discipline of the armed forces" will not have to join the army of unemployed. Defense Commissar Semen Timoshenko appointed all the former political commissars to new posts today as "assistant commanders for political affairs" at their old salaries. The ex-commissars now are subordinated to the military commanders. Formerly they were co-equals in authority with the commanders, whose orders they sometimes vetoed.

FALL FATAL TO AGED WOMAN.

WILLKIE WANTS A SHOWDOWN ON CLEAN POLITICS

Calls for Official Ruling on Democrat Funds.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 14.—In preparing to leave Colorado tomorrow for Indiana and the great test of his notification day ceremony at Elwood Saturday, Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, declared that the issue of machine controlled votes and corrupt campaign contributions which he had recently emphasized had been raised by the actions of the Democratic managers themselves.

The Republican nominee took a final fling at his opponents in this connection today, challenging the attorney general to make a ruling on whether the money accepted by the Democratic national committee from corporations for advertising in the party's campaign book should not be paid back.

Proposes Nonpartisan Board.

Willkie also advocated the setting up of a nonpartisan board to take over the enforcement of the Hatch act and other clean election laws.

"We want to keep our political life free from any control, either corporate or individual, by the use of money," he said. "I don't care whether this is Democratic or Republican money.

"The corrupt practices act was one of the great reform liberal movements of this country for which men like Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson worked. This was to prevent corporate gifts to political parties.

"To do this under the guise of advertising is more sinister than to have the gifts direct.

"I expressed myself on this point in Minneapolis, before I was nominated and before the Hatch act was passed, declaring for the limitation of contributions to $5,000."

Prepares to Fly East.

Willkie will leave the Broadmoor hotel, where he has spent the better part of a month since his nomination, at 9:45 a. m. tomorrow to take the lead of a big municipal rodeo parade in the downtown streets. Shortly after noon he will take a special airplane of the United Air Lines for Indianapolis. The first and only stop will be made at Kansas City at 4:35 p. m. It is said that a crowd of 15,000 will meet him at the airport there. He said he did not plan to make a speech.

He will go from Indianapolis to Rushville, Ind., Thursday night, according to present plans, and will remain there two or three days after the Elwood acceptance speech. He said he would stay at the home of his farm managers and family friends, the Misses Nora and Mary Sleeth, in Rushville. He has made no definite plans after this, but probably will go east for a week or more. The campaign will begin about Sept. 15 in the way of a nation-wide tour.

Puts Touches on Speech.

Willkie secluded himself in his apartment this morning to put the final touches to his acceptance address. He said that he would read it, one of the five or six times in his life that he has spoken from manuscript.

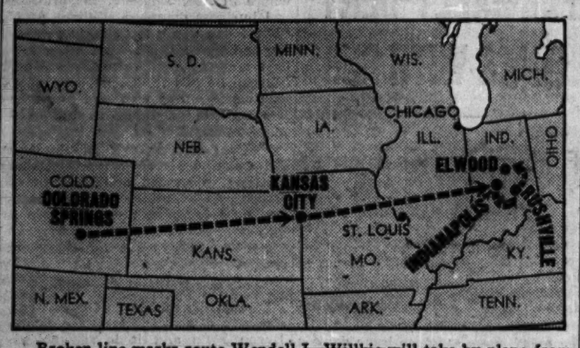
Willkie saw L. J. Taber, master of the National grange this afternoon. He was asked with whom he had primarily consulted during the preparation of his speech. He said he had talked it over with hundreds, with practically all his callers, but named specifically the following: On foreign affairs, Gen. Hugh Johnson, Anne O'Hare McCormick, and William Allen White; on farm problems, Earl Smith of the Illinois farm bureau, and Tabor; on labor, Claude Baker, president of the International Typographical union.

McNary Also Consulted.

On general topics he said he had talked particularly with Senator Charles L. McNary, his running mate; Congressman Joseph W. Martin Jr., Republican national chairman; Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota; John and Gardner Cowles, Des Moines and Minneapolis publishers; Russell Davenport, and Raymond Leslie Buell. There are others, he said, just as important in this connection, whom he did not recall at the moment. He talked today with Verne Marshall, editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

Willkie's Route to Notification City

(Story in adjoining column.)



Broken line marks route Wendell L. Willkie will take by plane from Colorado Springs, Colo., tomorrow to Indianapolis; thence he will go to Rushville and on to Elwood for notification ceremony Saturday.

FLYNN, IN ASSAILING WILLKIE, CALLS HIM MACHINE POLITICIAN

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Edward J. Flynn, often called "Boss Flynn" by Wendell L. Willkie in the Republican Presidential nominee's attacks on Democratic machines, asserted today that "straw boss" Willkie "has been a machine politician all his adult life."

In a formal statement, Flynn, chairman-elect of the Democratic national committee, asked whether Willkie would denounce Republican party bosses as he had Democratic and if, in view of his comments on the Democratic campaign book, he would suggest paying back "the modest $150,000 that the Republican campaign book of 1936 received for advertising."

"I wonder if he would include in his denunciation the Republican bosses in Pennsylvania, Grundy and Pew?" said Flynn. "What does he think of such Republican bosses as Bill Irwin of Ohio, or Boss Homer Capehart, the music box magnate of Indiana? Or, to get closer to home, will he inveigh against Boss Marvin of Syracuse, Boss Sprague of Nassau county, or Boss Jaeckle of Erie county, in this state? What about Boss 'Nocky' Johnson of Atlantic City, N. J.? Or Boss Frank McKay in Michigan?"

JAMES A. GALLAGHER DIES.

Belvidere, Ill., Aug. 14 [Special].—James A. Gallagher, 68 years old, one of the first mail carriers in this city and lifelong resident of Belvidere, died last night following an illness of 10 years. He leaves his wife, Emily, three daughters, and a son. He carried mail here for 37 years before retiring.

WILLKIE TO MAKE STIFF FIGHT, CLUB TOLD BY BROTHER

Seventy-five political, civic, and business leaders met in the Oak Park Arms hotel, Oak Park, last night, and formed the 6th Congressional District Willkie club.

Edward E. Willkie of La Grange, vice president of Libby McNeill & Libby and a brother of Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee, told the group Willkie will make a fighting campaign. "This is a contest between midwestern horse sense and emotion," he said. "My brother will pull no punches, and it will be a clean, honest fight."

Joseph A. Coyner, a delegate to the Republican national convention, and Fred A. Virkus, president of the Small Business Men's association of Illinois, were named co-chairmen of the club. Among those who attended were Mrs. Bertha Baur, Republican national committeewoman for Illinois; Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman; Ben L. Berve, state G. O. P. chairman, and H. Wallace Caldwell, county commissioner.

Former Convict in Holdup Shooting Gets 20 Years

Vernon Monder, an ex-convict who wounded a woman and a man in a shotgun holdup of a tavern at 1801 Madison street on June 4, was sentenced to 20 years in prison for robbery by Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz in Criminal court yesterday. Monder, who is 37 years old, was shot and captured after the robbery by Policeman Robert Husfield of the Warren avenue station.

DESIGNERS TURN TO BYGONE ERAS FOR NEW MODES

Modern Styles Recreated from Ancient History.

Originality—the all important quality in fashion designing—does not necessarily mean something new under the sun. What it does mean, often enough, is the adoption of an ancient idea to modern conditions.

Fashion experts agreed on this yesterday in commenting on the Tribune's American Fashions contest.

The experts recalled that the world's leading designers have been borrowing from history for countless decades.

Old Modes Born Anew.

They have snatched a neckline from the pure white muslin gowns of Mme. Recamier, a hoop from the skirt of Marie Antoinette, a ruff from the neck of Queen Elizabeth, a clinging drapery from the hips of Cleopatra and incorporated them in the fashions of new eras.

The pictures reproduced today on the back page of THE TRIBUNE are a case in point. They are reproduced as a tentative aid for young designers—not, however, as a drawing book model to be copied—to show how a noted designer, Hollywood's Orry-Kelly, this summer readapted costumes of the semi-ancients for 1940 wear.

Orry-Kelly designed the costumes for Brenda Marshall and Errol Flynn in the Warner Brothers production "The Sea Hawk"—16th century costumes of leather and velvet. Later he set to work with his pen and reinterpreted them in the slender, cleancut lines of the 20th century silhouette.

Costume Becomes Play Suit.

Thus Flynn's swashbuckling seafaring costume with laced leather jerkin is translated into a debonair playsuit with bared midriff, suede lacings, shoulder.

Miss Marshall's black velvet court dress, with its heavy gold paneling, square neck, and puffed shoulders, becomes, by the same translation, a full skirted black vetvet dinner dress with appliquéd plumes.

Midnight of Aug. 22 is the deadline for the entry of sketches in the design contest. Prizes totaling $7,500 will be awarded for the 25 winning designs.

OLD DEMOCRATIC PARTY DEAD, SAYS G. O. P. GOVERNOR

Gov. Baldwin.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 14 [Special].—The Democratic party has ceased to exist for hundreds of thousands of loyal and devoted Democrats, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut declared here tonight in the keynote speech at the West Virginia state Republican convention.

"The Democratic party, as most of us have known it in our lifetime, is dead," the executive asserted. "It's death knell was sounded in the Chicago convention. Today there is only the Republican party—the Republican-Democratic party of Thomas Jefferson—and the party of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Gov. Baldwin told his audience not to take any stock in the New Deal hope that the millions on WPA would vote the Roosevelt party ticket.

"Among the unemployed there is enormous dissatisfaction with Mr. Roosevelt's promises," he said. "They are sick of being on WPA. They're fed up with promises."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

R. C. A. ACCUSED OF HIRING CRITIC TO SILENCE HIM

Charges Enrage Senator at 'Bribe' Hearing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Testimony to support charges that the Radio Corporation of America has given jobs to critics to choke off their criticisms provoked a heated outburst from Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] today before the senate interstate commerce committee.

Senator Tobey.

The Radio corporation is under investigation before the committee as the result of charges that it used political influence and paid bribes to government officials to sidetrack an antitrust suit in the federal District court in 1932.

Accountant's Story Heard.

J. Austin Smith of New York City, an accountant, told the committee that he was given a job with R. C. A. at $35 a day after completing the first draft of an adverse report against the company. The report thereafter was pigeonholed and permitted to die, he said.

The accountant admitted, however, that he had been hired in 1936 by Patrick A. Powers of Westport, Conn., who subsequently filed a stockholders suit against the corporation, to write a deliberately misleading and damaging report against the company.

Powers, whom Smith described as a retired moving picture executive, based his suit on the accountant's report, according to records. He later agreed to an out of court settlement for an undisclosed sum of money and the stipulation that the author of the report be given a job with the corporation.

Senator Rips Witness.

Senator Tobey was scathing in his examination of Smith, as follows:

Q. [by Tobey]—Did you understand you were to write an honest report? A. [by Smith]—O, yes, but not necessarily an impartial one.

Q.—Were you told to stigmatize the corporation and characterize it in unsavory language so Powers could use your findings as a lever to force R. C. A. to come across? A.—Well, he didn't put it exactly in that language.

Q.—In plain English, you wrote a lying, slanderous report about the corporation and after that you got hired by R. C. A. at a high salary? That's cause and effect isn't it? A.—Everything I said in the report was true as I saw it then. But since then I've had reason to change my mind.

Q.—You mean, since then you've been working for the corporation.

"You and others like you," Tobey told Smith later, "who deliberately mislead and frighten small investors and helpless people with these statements ought to be put where you can5t make any more reports. And if corporations want to hire men like you, they should learn that they do so at their peril."

Parts of Report Read.

Smith's report, parts of which were read to the committee, said the decline of the corporation's vitality and disappearance of profits primarily are chargeable to the incapacities of the management, to its inability to foresee and avoid unprofitable situations and to its inability to retain and continue profits and profitable volume when required.

"The corporation," the report said, "entered 1936 with what its management describes as an 'excellent' financial condition, but with financial reserves at an exceedingly low ebb, with no rich parent to draw upon in case of emergency, and with a recapitalization plan requiring the expenditure of $27,000,000 for the retirement of capital, after which its working funds will be less than at any time in the last 10 years, with three unimportant exceptions."

Earlier the committee heard testimony from Rodmond Mahaffy, nephew of H. C. Mahaffy Jr., clerk of the federal court in Wilmington, Del., where the R. C. A. antitrust suit was pending when it was mysteriously continued in 1932 just before the trial was scheduled to start.

It has been charged that former Senators Daniel O. Hastings [R., Del.] and George Moses [R., N. H.] were paid by the corporation to use their influence to get the continuance until after the election of President Roosevelt. Further, it has been charged that Clerk Mahaffy was paid $15,000 to issue the continuance order.

Yesterday the clerk's nephew was alleged in affidavits read to the committee to have told various lawyers that he could influence the court's decisions thru his uncle and that he had helped write many of the court's decisions.

Charges Are Denied.

Today he denied the charges, saying he had no recollection of having ever talked to the lawyers. He admitted under questioning that he might have been intoxicated and not realized what he was saying.

"How much do you have to consume before you don't know what you are saying?" he was asked.

"Not much," he answered.

He admitted he was forced to resign from the Delaware bar because of shortages in accounts for which he had been appointed federal receiver. However, he denied he was discharged from a job with a New York law firm for dishonesty.

The hearing was continued until tomorrow.

Accused as Reds

Among the Hollywood notables accused in grand jury testimony of being members of the communist party are the following:

James Cagney.

Franchot Tone.

Francis Lederer.

Fredric March.

Humphrey Bogart.

Lionel Stander.

Clifford Odets.

Gregory La Cava.

FILM NOTABLES FORMALLY DENY LINKS WITH REDS

F. March Brands Accuser 'Unmitigated Liar.'

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14 (AP).—Some of the screen notables named in testimony before the grand jury investigating communism, as made public today, were quick to issue denials that they were members of the communist party.

Frederic March issued a statement saying that "speaking for myself, John Leech is an unmitigated liar" and that "I will welcome the opportunity to meet Mr. Leech face to face and call him a liar."

"None of the charges of this man, who, by his own admission, is an ex-communist and one time advocate of our government's overthrow by force and violence, is true in the slightest degree," March said. "I do not even know the man.

"I never have knowingly contributed a single penny to the communist or any other un-American cause.

"If I have been duped by any one, including Mr. Leech, at any time during the past, I want to be the first to know it.

"My record and conscience as an American and as a man are clear."

Bogart Dares Accusers.

Humphrey Bogart issued a statement saying:

"I never have contributed money to a political organization of any form. That includes Republican, Democratic, Hollywood Anti-Nazi league, or the communist party. Furthermore, I never have attended the school mentioned, nor do I know what school that may be.

"I dare the men who are attempting this investigation to call me to the stand. I want to face them myself and not by a proxy to whom I am only a name."

James Cagney was motoring somewhere in New England, his brother and business manager, William, said, "but I can speak for Jimmy in saying he is not a communist, never has been a communist, and never will be, because he is not in sympathy with that cause in any way, and he never has contributed funds to the communist party."

William Cagney said his brother did contribute money for food and clothing to women and children of striking California cotton field workers six years ago, "but that was a humanitarian cause, and Jimmy's contributions always are for deserving causes."

Blames Political Campaign.

Sam Ornitz said he had been "consistently attacking District Attorney Buron Fitts and it is sad he has elected to prey upon and slander innocent people just before the primary election, just because they oppose him."

Issue Denied in East.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—Francis Lederer and Jean Muir, Hollywood stars, tonight denied any connection with communism. Lederer took time between acts of "No Time for Comedy," playing at a summer theater here, to isue this statement:

"I am not a communist and never have been one. I am violently opposed to communism and everything it stands for. I have been violently attacked by the communists' paper."

At Schenectady, N. Y., where Miss Muir is to appear next week in a summer theater, Beauvais Fox, representing the actress, said: "She told me to say this is wholly false."

Actor Arthur Byron's Son Found Drowned

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 14 [Special],—Arthur Byron Jr., 34 years old, son of the Hollywood actor, was drowned today at Lakewood, Medical Examiner Walter Stinchfield reported. His legs paralyzed since he was 11, Byron was found slumped over the side of his motor boat.

OFFICE MERGERS TO DELAY OLD AGE PENSION CHECKS

Thousands of old age pensioners in Cook county have been notified that their September checks will arrive 8 to 10 days later than usual, and that the new date established in September will be maintained in the future.

Miss Ann J. Bigus, Cook county supervisor of old age assistance, said the delay arises from a revision of mailing lists necessitated by a recent merger of the various pension offices in the city and county.

Altho thousands of pensioners will have to wait a little longer for their checks next month, other thousands will get them a few days earlier, Miss Bigus said.

1,000 REHEARSE BIG MOMENT IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Great Chorus of Negroes to Be Heard.

Festival Tickets!

Tickets for the Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be held Saturday night in Soldiers' field, are on sale at 50 cents and $1 at The Tribune Public Service offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. All seats are reserved. Mail orders should be addressed to the Festival Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, and must be accompanied by a check or money order made payable to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

The Metropolitan Community church rang with harmony last night as one of the big moments of the Chicagoland Music Festival was rehearsed again and again. The Metropolitan church is at 41st and South Park way, and there the central unit of the Festival's great Negro chorus of a thousand voices prepares for its appearance in Soldiers' field.

Last night, under the direction of J. Wesley Jones, they sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Old Southland," and "In That Great Gettin' Up Mornin'." The "Southland" number was arranged especially for the festival by Jones.

Sing for Love of It.

The people who make up the Festival Negro chorus sing for the love of singing. They work hard all day, but no matter how weary they may be at the end of the day, they find their way to the rehearsals that during Festival week are being held in 28 Chicago and two Indiana churches for the colored.

They feel their music. Any one who has attended one of these rehearsals can see this. The faces are tired as the people take their places in the rising tiers of pews in the Metropolitan church. Then J. Wesley Jones takes over. He is tired too. He works long hours as an assistant superintendent of mail at the Chicago postoffice.

But when he starts them singing they forget their weariness. When Magnolia Lewis steps out to take her solo in "That Great Gettin' Up Mornin'," the tired look vanishes. She is happy. And the other singers are happy listening to her.

Great Individual Stars.

The Festival always has presented mass music events, and it has presented great individual stars. The first was John Philip Sousa in 1930. Since then there have been such names as Al Jolson, Alec Templeton, Rubinoff, and others. This year it will be John Charles Thomas, who made musical history in Soldiers' field with his appearance of 1934.

In addition there will be probably the greatest assemblage of massed choruses and massed bands in the history of the festival. The great spectacle of 8,000 performers on the field at one time brought the spectators to their feet last year. It was the first time such a grand entry had been attempted.

Two Men Given Credit.

Two men were responsible for the success of it. They are Capt. Howard W. Stube, bandmaster at Tilden Technical High school, and Fred W. Miller, field supervisor of the Festival. Just why this is a tremendous job is understandable when it is known that perhaps a third of the great cast is seeing Soldiers' field for the first time.

They have to be shown around. They must be rehearsed in their cues. They must be put on the alert to recognize these cues when they are given. The success of the grand entry depends upon the timing.

The Bengal Guards of Orange [Tex.] High school entrained last night for Chicago. There are 101 of these young women, and their special train is being made possible by H. J. Lutcher Stark, millionaire lumberman and oil operator.

They will arrive tonight in Chicago and will be the featured attraction at the Festival luncheon on Friday afternoon in the Stevens hotel. On Saturday afternoon they will be guests at Cubs park and that night will appear in Soldiers' field.

These pretty girls have dramatized the best features of musical show choruses, of drum and bugle corps and of precision marching units.

Win County Music Festival Finals

Roberta Holmer, Contralto. Lillian Vesely, Lyric Soprano. Dorothy Cornfield, Coloratura Soprano.

Irma Cooper, Dramatic Soprano. Elsie Imhof, Mezzo Soprano. Charles B. Fries, Bass.

Herman Struble, Lyric Tenor. Willard A. Greiner, Dramatic Tenor. Howard Berhalter, Baritone.

9 VOCAL WINNERS NAMED IN COUNTY FESTIVAL FINALS

Audience Breaks Rule to Cheer Soprano.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

A slim young woman with a soaring voice caused the audience to forget last night the rule of silence that has obtained at preliminary vocal contests of the Chicagoland Music Festival. Last night was the night of the Cook county finals for the 27 singers who won top places in district contests. The tournament was held in the Drake hotel.

Irma Cooper, north side winner in the dramatic soprano division, sang her first song, and a murmur of approval spread thru the ballroom. Called back by the judges to sing a second time, Miss Cooper set the crystal chandeliers tinkling with her glowing interpretation of "Ecstasy." Applause broke in an unrestrained crescendo. Even her rivals clapped. Popular and judicial approval coincided. Miss Cooper was pronounced the winning dramatic soprano.

Finals to Be on Saturday.

She was one of the nine selected to represent the county Saturday afternoon at the final festival tournament, to be held in the Drake hotel.

Miss Cooper, while studying music, has been working as a hostess in a loop tearoom. She also sings in the Union church in Hinsdale. Last year she placed second in the north district contest. She is 27 years old, and her home is at 1223 Astor street.

Howard Berhalter, who sang his way to victory in the north district contest with a chest swathed in tape to hold broken ribs in place, carried off baritone honors again last night. Young Berhalter, who is 25, clerks in his father's bakery and models for commercial photographers. His ambition is to sing in grand opera. He lives at 1423 North Clark street.

Ex-Track Star Wins.

A few years ago Elsie Imhof, secretary at the Professional Schools Y. M. C. A., took an A. A. U. championship in a 220 yard track meet. The same form carried Miss Imhof to triumph last night in the mezzo soprano division of the singing contest.

Willard A. Greiner, 28, of 4255 North Wolcott avenue, took dramatic tenor honors. Greiner is a bookkeeper and accountant. He sings with the men's choral group at the Lake Shore club and is soloist at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church.

Herman Struble, 31, of 1427 Byron street, who has participated in nine Festival contests, won first honors in the lyric tenor division. Charles Fries, 21, who came to Chicago a year ago from Pittsburgh, Pa., with a musical scholarship, was the winner in the bass section.

Winners in Other Divisions.

In the coloratura division a dark haired, vivacious miss of 18, Dorothy Cornfield, took first place. Dorothy was graduated last February from Sullivan High school. She'd like a career in the movies. Her address is 4818½ North Kimball avenue. Roberta Holmer, 19, of 420 South 1st avenue, Maywood, was judged the best of the contraltos.

The winner in the lyric soprano division was Lillian Vesely, 23, of 157 Addison road, Riverside.

TAX FIXING PROBE STARTS; STYMIED IN 20 MINUTES

State's Attorney Courtney's investigation into the fixing of Cook county personal property taxes started yesterday and ran along smoothly—for 20 minutes. Then it stopped.

Thomas L. Bugan, assistant state's attorney assigned to investigate tax fixing charges made recently by the Chicago Bar association, appeared at the county assessor's office and asked to inspect the personal property files. John E. Battle, chief of the personal property division, denied permission unless Bugan could name specific cases. Bugan couldn't.

John S. Clark, county assessor, said he understood Courtney wanted to investigate specific cases. He said he had not understood Courtney wanted to go on a fishing expedition into his files. He said the bar association should make public its full report.

The bar association two weeks ago prepared a report containing specific charges but this was suppressed and a general statement issued in its stead. Courtney asked last week for all reports on the matter. The full report was not given him.

SENATE DEBATES GIVING PRESIDENT DICTATOR POWER

Plan Would Suspend All Laws; Rule by Decree.

Reads Radio Address.

Senator Wheeler interrupted Taft to read a newspaper account of a radio address by Fulton Lewis Jr. over the Mutual system last night.

The radio broadcast quoted Pepper as frankly advocating totalitarian powers for President Roosevelt and as stating that other New Dealers subscribed to his views. The radio broadcast also referred to an incident at the Democratic national convention in Chicago, when Senator Wheeler was supposed to have accused Pepper of wanting to make the President a dictator.

When Pepper told the senate that he had no recollection of the incident, Wheeler gave his version of what happened. There had been a violent controversy at a meeting of the platform committee in the Blackstone hotel, according to Wheeler. When he and Pepper walked out of the committee room into the corridor, Wheeler said, he turned to Pepper and remarked: "You are proposing to make the President a dictator."

Dictatorship "Only Temporary."

"As I recall it," Wheeler continued, "the senator from Florida replied: 'Only temporarily.'"

When Pepper insisted that he did not recall making any such statement, Wheeler said: "I do not think I was casting a reflection or intended to cast a reflection upon the senator. But if he says to me that he did not make the statement, I would have to say that my recollection was that the conversation took place."

Pepper did not repudiate the radio broadcast in which he was quoted as advocating totalitarian powers for the President. He said there were some slight inaccuracies, but that the proposal attributed to him was not dissimilar to the seven point program he advocated in the senate on June 17.

Reads from Record.

Senator Wheeler thereupon produced the Congressional Record and began reading from Pepper's June 17 speech, as follows:

"First. Confer upon the President full wartime power to prepare and defend America.

"Second. Universal defense service, so that every citizen may be best trained and placed for the country's defense.

"Third. Confer upon the President the power to suspend all rules, regulations, and statutes—including army, navy, and departmental seniority regulations—which, in his judgment, interfere with maximum speed in the production, transportation or manufacture of defense materials.

"Fourth. Confer upon the President power to suspend the present debt limitation if in his judgment such limitation interferes with the maximum speed of the defense program.

"Fifth. Grant the President the authority to aid, in materials or credit, those countries and nations which in his judgment at this time constitute America's first line of defense.

"Sixth. The President and the congress to begin immediately the preparation and the adoption of a defense budget and a tax program adequate for the national defense.

"Seventh. Confer upon the President the power to take into custody for the duration of the defense effort all aliens whose freedom would in his opinion jeopardize the defense program."

Amazed at Scope of Plan.

Senator Bone expressed incredulity when the subject of giving the President power to suspend all laws was mentioned.

"That is an illimitable power," he said. "The President has some constitutional powers, but that would absolutely junk the constitution if he could set aside every law in the country. Assuming that he might use his best judgment, that is a power never before granted any president in the history of the country."

Senator Clark remarked that the Weimar constitution of the German republic contained a provision for the suspension of laws and assumption of dictatorship in case of emergency.

"I was just going to ask the senator," Clark said, "what happened to Germany and to the world when, under Chancellor Hitler, that provision of the Weimar constitution was put into effect, and all laws were suspended, and Germany went to government by decree, which, as I understand the seven-point program of the senator from Florida, is what he is advocating—suspension of all laws on decree of the President. What happened to Germany and the world when they put that provision into effect?"

Defends Hitler's Position.

Senator Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] interrupted, saying he had put the Weimar constitution into the record and that it showed, to his satisfaction, "that Hitler's rise to power was perfectly constitutional under the German constitution."

"That," said Senator Clark, "is the reason why I oppose so bitterly any step leading toward the establishment of a dictatorship in the United States, by constitutional means or unconstitutional means.

"It is frequently said that the Roman republic in times of danger and stress was in the habit of establishing a dictatorship. That, indeed, is true, and perhaps that worked well for a while. But one sorry day there came a time when a dictator did not turn back his power when the emergency was over, and the Roman republic was at an end, and I do not wish to see the American republic go the same way."

Killed in Plane

Arno Hamilton Kunath (left) and Willard Zimmerman.

A flying lesson ended in death for a pilot and his pupil yesterday when the small monoplane in which they were flying crashed from 300 feet in a clover field 1½ miles north of Round Lake, in Lake county. The pilot was Arno Hamilton Kunath, 30 year old, one of the owners of the Northwest airport at Des Plaines. His pupil was Willard Zimmerman, 32, a Northbrook park commissioner. Kunath, married and the father of three children, lived at 1007 Waukegan road, Northbrook. Zimmerman lived at 1244 Church street, Northbrook. The men had just made a landing. They had taken off again and were beginning to climb, with Kunath at the controls, when the plane faltered and nose dived to earth.

MANEUVERS PUT 56,808 NAMES ON 2D ARMY'S ROLLS

'Strength Report' Shows Who's at Camp McCoy.

Camp McCoy, Wis., Aug. 14 [Special].—The strength report—that daily personnel return which keeps the army informed of how many mouths it has to feed—for the first time today reflected the number of regulars, National Guardsmen and Reserve officers gathered here for the Second army maneuvers.

As compiled in the G-1 [personnel] office of the Second army staff, the figures revealed that there now are 5,091 officers, 59 warrant officers and 51,658 enlisted men in the scattered camps which house troops from seven states.

Still More to Come.

This makes a grand total of 56,808, which will be increased somewhat this week-end when other National Guard units, including the 202d coast artillery and 108th observation squadrons, arrive.

Today's total marks an increase of 17,973 in 24 hours, the three day concentration being completed yesterday.

A glance at tables of organization shows that the various units making up the troops of the Second army area are at maintenance strength—a total which varies in different states.

Comparison of Units.

The actual strength of some of the units, when compared with the peace and war strengths given in the tables, resolves into the following:

Division—	Actual strength.	Peace strength.	War strength.
33d [Ill.]	9,879	13,769	16,464
32d [Wis., Mich.]	9,899	13,769	16,464
37th [Ohio]	9,283	13,769	16,464

Advance Guard of Eagles Arrives for Convention

Nearly 5,000 members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles arrived here yesterday to attend the 42d annual convention of the order. They were the advance contingent of a crowd of 20,000 which is expected to attend the five-day grand aerie conclave, opening today. The annual meeting of the Illinois aerie of the order will coincide with the national convention. It will be held in the La Salle hotel.

TIME U. S. NEEDS TO ARM 2 MILLION CUT NINE MONTHS

Guns Ready in 1943, Says Knudsen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—William S. Knudsen, production coordinator on the National Defense Advisory commission, today revised his estimate on when equipment will be ready for a contemplated army of 2 million men and said it would be Oct. 1, 1943, instead of the "middle of 1944" as he stated last week.

In lopping off about 9 months from the time needed for preparedness, Knudsen corrected an estimate which he gave the joint tax hearing of the house ways and means and senate finance committees last Friday. Knudsen's long term estimate and the admission of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson that only 33 army airplanes had been bought out of 4,081 appropriated for by congress in June proved doubly embarrassing to the administration's boasts about rearmament progress.

Arm Only 1,200,000 Men.

In a letter to the house ways and means committee today, Knudsen said the defense commission is planning full equipment for only 1,200,000 men, "with critical noncommercial items for 800,000 more," and has no program for fully equipping 2 million men.

"With the proper additional funds allotted when the time comes, and depending upon circumstances which will warrant extreme pressure on the program, I am quite sure that the date I gave you of July 1, 1944, can be shortened by nine months," Knudsen wrote.

Help Middle West Firms.

The defense commission also announced that the army has adopted new policies in awarding contracts in an effort to spread rearmament orders on a wider industrial front and speed deliveries of war materials. The government will accept bids on an F. O. B. plant basis, taking delivery at the factory and removing the necessity for the contractor to include transportation costs in his bid. Another change will permit split bidding to enable bidders to contract for parts of orders.

This is expected to help concerns in the middle west and other inland territory which so far have not participated much in defense orders. Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], declared inland states have received only 1 per cent of recent contracts. A movement is under way to locate more defense plants in the middle west, where they would be safer from attack.

Recommend Reinstatement of Suspended Policeman

The civil service commission yesterday recommended the reinstatement of Policeman James McDonald of the Cragin police district. He was suspended July 21 for leaving his traffic post without being relieved. He has had 10 creditable mentions and four extra compensations since he joined the force in 1921.

WEST COAST WAR GAME HAMPERED BY LACK OF ARMS

With the 9th Corps in the Field, Yelm, Wash., Aug. 15 [Special].—The west coast phase of a series of nationwide army field exercises was in full swing tonight with nearly 40,000 men participating. It was evident here, as in other maneuver areas, that divisions were handicapped by shortages of modern equipment and that many officers and men have had so little realistic training in the art of modern war that they do not yet comprehend the tremendous difference that has been made by the development of motorization, both on the ground and in the air.

One division here that is particularly deficient in modern equipment and man power is the 3d crack regular infantry division of the west coast area. Many of the 3d's men and some of its equipment have been transferred to form cadres of new units, particularly of the new Alaskan force.

The "war" in this area is being fought by part of the nation's 4th army, commanded by Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt. The Red forces consist of about 14,000 men, while the Blues number 24,000. There was confusion on both sides last night as units jammed up on difficult roads, motor columns took wrong turns and communications were unsatisfactory.

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 14 (AP).—A story of piracy and ransom off the Chinese coast was reported today by the British coastal steamer Shen Hwa, halted by junks swarming with sea-rovers and looted of a $250,000 cargo. Pirates boarded the ship off Fukien province on Aug. 7. A number of Fukien natives were carried off for ransom. The vessel was halted on the very day she was released by Japanese warships which had detained her two days on charges of entering a "forbidden zone."

GUARD BILL HITS SNAG; ACTION IN HOUSE DELAYED

Adjournment Is Voted as Amendment Pends.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Sudden stiffening of Republican resistance in the house to a resolution which would give President Roosevelt the extraordinary peacetime power to order the National Guard into active military service for one year caught an overconfident Democratic majority in an embarrassing position late this afternoon. The resolution already has been passed by the senate.

Representative Miller.

Waging a last ditch fight against the administration measure, the Republicans forced their opponents to call the whole thing off for the day and ask for adjournment in the midst of debate on amendments designed to limit the President's authority under the resolution.

Democratic floor leaders had scheduled the measure for passage at today's session. All afternoon the New Deal steamroller was poised to push it thru when the time came.

Steamroller Stands Still.

But the time came and went and nothing happened. The steamroller wheezed a bit but remained immobile. Democratic representatives wandering off to their offices or standing around the corridors gossiping had left the vigilant bloc of Republicans in temporary control.

Only thru a last minute roundup of Democrats who happened to be handy were the administration forces able to carry their motion to adjourn. A few moments before Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], had been overwhelmingly shouted down when he sought to gag the opposition by limiting time for debate.

An amendment introduced by Representative William J. Miller [R., Conn.] was before the house at the time. It would forbid the President to send the Guard anywhere outside the continental limits of the United States and its territories and possessions.

Calls Proposal Safeguard.

Miller said his amendment was offered as a "safeguard" and was not intended as a criticism of "this President or any President."

Representative Thomas E. Martin supported Miller's amendment.

"The emergency today is one of time needed for training," Martin said. "It will be time after the National Guardsmen are trained to see whether they should be sent abroad, and if that is necessary it can be authorized in a minute. The President says the chances are 100 to 1 that they will not be used outsides the continent. I am not willing to bet 1 to 100 that they won't be."

As it now stands, the resolution authorizes Mr. Roosevelt to send the Guardsmen anywhere in this hemisphere and 8,000 miles overseas to United States possessions outside the western hemisphere, including the Philippine islands.

Full Guard's Use Foreseen.

In addition, the unprecedented legislation would give the President power to order the organized reserves of the army and the retired regular army personnel into a year's active service.

Only about one-fourth of the Guard's 242,000 officers and men would be mobilized initially, according to the statements of army officials. But it is expected the entire Guard would be ordered out by Jan. 1 and would be assigned to the training of the huge conscript army which the New Deal has asked congress to authorize.

The bill was passed by the senate by a vote of 71 to 7. In view of changes made in the senate measure by the house military affairs committee, the bill as passed by the house must go to a joint house and senate conference committee for adjustment before final approval by congress.

The house committee struck out sections in the senate bill requiring employers of guardsmen to rehire them at the end of their period of military service and making failure to do so a violation of the fair labor standards act.

Democratic leaders predicted that attempts will be made to restore this provision on the floor before the resolution is brought up for passage.

The house adopted, by a vote of 98 to 58, an amendment that would exempt from army service National Guardsmen under 18 years of age.

GIRL SECRETARY WILL TESTIFY AT SCALISE'S TRIAL

New York, Aug. 14.—Anna Kimmel, pretty brunette confidential secretary of George Scalise, ex-convict pander and former president of the Building Service Employés' International union, will be the state's first witness against her boss at his trial for grand larceny tomorrow.

This was announced today after a jury to try the ex-boss of 70,000 scrubwomen, janitors, porters, and elevator operators was finally completed in General Sessions court.

Miss Kimmel, who was known as "Miss Kay" in union circles because of her habit of initialing the boss' correspondence, is not regarded as a friendly witness for the people and her appearance is expected to touch off fireworks. She has been out on $20,000 bail as a material witness in the case.

Scalise's secretary will be examined on the making up of allegedly false vouchers thru which the union leader extracted large sums from the treasury in the main offices at Chicago every month.

W. C. T. U. VOTES TO OPPOSE BILL ON CONSCRIPTION

Members of the W. C. T. U., in the final session yesterday of their 66th national convention, in the Stevens hotel, adopted a resolution against peacetime conscription, specifically the bill now before congress for compulsory military training.

Mrs. Berthalee Broyles of State College, Pa., a Quaker, departed from a speech she had prepared as spokesman for the department of international relations for peace, to lead the fight for the resolution.

A minority, including several members of the executive committee, voted against the resolution.

GUARD MEMBERS THINK OF KIN AS THEY AWAIT CALL

Camp Beauregard, La., Aug. 14 (AP).—National Guardsmen, assembled here for military maneuvers beginning tomorrow, have the subject of mobilization uppermost in their minds.

Their principal concern, if called out for a year's active duty, revolved around what would happen to their dependents and to their debts. Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, checked the matter with higher officers who had talked with company commanders.

The general said estimates ran from 5 to 28 per cent of the Guardsmen would withdraw if the Guards are called out for a year's service and they are permitted to resign.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

THE WAR PLOT.

The American people are asked to believe that our government can sell 50 of its destroyers to the British government and still avoid participation in the war. It is inconceivable that any one can make such an assertion in good faith.

The sale of naval ships to a nation at war is an act of war and would be recognized as such by every government in the world. Once the sale had been made, our people would be told—and with reason—that they had won the enmity of Germany, Italy, and perhaps Japan and Russia as well, and that the one hope of escaping the worst consequences would be to declare war while there was still an England to serve as an ally.

This development must have been foreseen by the advocates of the sale and no doubt accounts for their proposal. They know that it would be exceedingly difficult to persuade congress to declare war in defiance of the platform commitments of both parties, and accordingly have devised this trick to get us in by the back door.

The opponents of the sale have been accused of pursuing a policy of appeasement. The charge is absurd. An act of appeasement, as the word is now used, involves the ignominious surrender of a right in order to avoid a conflict. But we have no right to sell the navy's ships to a belligerent. On the contrary, to do so would be a lawless act and a warlike act, which would establish us as the aggressor. Those who talk loosely of appeasement in this connection must believe that any attempt on the part of this country to carry out the obligations of a neutral is to be condemned as cowardice. In short, they are determined to get us into the war.

They want war for a variety of reasons, but chiefly because they want the third term and dictatorship. They want to continue on the government pay roll. They want to have the power to boss every economic relationship in the country. They want to gag the press and subject the citizens to military discipline. The New Deal has failed signally to bring about the economic recovery which was promised. War would divert attention from the New Deal's errors and failures.

FARLEY'S FOLLIES AND OTHERS.

Mr. Ickes, the distinguished philatelist and secretary of the interior, has been found in the gum of a collector's item. When the first sheets of the national parks' commemorative stamps were pulled from the presses at the bureau of engraving and printing, he and other dignitaries were present. Mr. Ickes bought two sheets of each of the 10 denominations, ungummed and imperforate. Later he asked if the sheets could not be gummed, and the bureau obliged him.

Stamp dealers in Washington are speculating on the value Mr. Ickes may have added to his items by freaking them. Stamp collectors are possessed of an interest which might be called passionate. They are intelligent and well informed people. Outsiders may not understand their devotion. Collectors are understood only by each other. People who put ships in glass bottles have something they do not share with the rest of the world.

A collector's zeal for stamps, or beetles, or hooked rugs might have an escape value for fatigued or overburdened minds in places of authority. The conscience in the White House might have been quieted by more midnight hours with the stamp book than with the state department's foreign cables. Still it might have been worse without the stamps. They are useful also to get around an awkward corner with an embarrassing visitor.

The social value of the stamp collection is conceded, but in Washington life there is too much temptation to monkey with the bureau of engraving. There is an overstrain apparently if a collector is in a place of authority and has opportunity to roll his own, particularly if he can appoint an obliging postmaster general like Jim Farley or be his associate in the cabinet. Mr. Farley printed stamps to commemorate everything except Huey Long.

The next time the Hatch law is amended, something might be done about this. The collectors need not be declared ineligible for office, but they might be required to deposit their stamps in the treasury department and take a pledge for duration of service.

OIL AND COAL.

The Illinois geological survey reports that the oil produced in this state in 1939 was worth more than the output of its coal mines.

This is a gratifying reminder that a great new source of wealth has been created here, but it would be stupid to pretend that the oil discoveries have not produced a new difficulty for the already overburdened coal industry. Oil is a competitor of coal and from many points of view is a superior fuel. If the miners and mine owners are not to see further inroads in their markets they must fight to preserve any advantages which they possess.

This will not be easy. The competition is keen and will become keener. The coal industry, which a generation ago felt itself to be in a position of security with a commodity to sell for which there was no important substitute, now finds itself facing a declining demand. In addition to oil, natural gas has invaded the industrial areas, and at the same time improvements in furnaces and stokers have reduced the quantity of coal required to produce a given unit of power. The problem of finding customers for coal, and therefore of providing work for coal miners, is not going to become any easier in the years ahead.

It is for that reason that the miners of this state ought to be actively opposed to the government's intervention in the coal business. The government has undertaken to regulate prices and has declared its intention of raising them. That will mean a new competitive advantage for the substitute fuels and a new incentive to owners of homes and factories to install more efficient furnaces with a view to reducing their coal purchases.

INVITING A KNOCKOUT.

The Douglas Aircraft company has announced a 20 million dollar program of expansion. All the additional facilities are to be located in the southern California coastal area, near the present plants. Some of the buildings are already being erected and orders for much of the machinery have been placed.

At his recent appearance before the house ways and means and the senate finance committees, William S. Knudsen of the advisory commission on defense said that wholly new factories for war materials would be located in the interior of the country, where they would be less vulnerable to attack. Because of the need for haste, he said, manufacturers are not being discouraged from expanding existing plants even in exposed situations.

The distinction between a wholly new plant and an addition to an existing one is not easily drawn. So far as airplane factories are concerned, they are concentrated today precisely where they ought not to be and it is a serious mistake to permit any considerable expansion in these localities. There are no advantages in the coastal factory sites which are not counterbalanced a hundred times by disadvantages, economic as well as military.

We manufacture most of the military engines on the east coast and a very considerable part of our planes on the west coast. Should war come, we would surely have to use much of our limited supply of aircraft and of our antiaircraft weapons to defend these factories. Britain's peril today is increased because many of her airplane factories are within bombing distance of the German bases across the channel. Britain's disadvantage was more or less unavoidable because the island is small, but there is no such excuse for us. We can locate our airplane industry a thousand miles from either coast and in so doing we gain rather than lose manufacturing efficiency.

There is no good reason for manufacturing airplane engines 3,000 miles from the factories where airplanes are assembled. By doing so we run the risk of having no planes for our engines or no engines for our planes if either set of factories is knocked out. Both types of plant should be located in the great central valley of the country where the danger of bombing raids is small and the advantages of the defense are correspondingly greater.

And that goes, too, for the manufacture of all essential war materials. We ought to avoid every avoidable risk of enemy attack on our industrial power.

THE ARMY IS INVITED TO THINK.

Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford gave the officers of the 2d army some sound advice in his address to them at the opening of the army's maneuvers in Wisconsin. He warned them not to be lulled into the feeling that the war in Europe has exhausted all the ideas pertaining to warfare and invited them to seek, by the exercise of initiative, to produce results greater than those possible from mere imitative action.

There is a great danger that our defense program, both in arms and tactics, is suffering injury from too close and uncritical imitation of the German war machine. The Germans had, or were reported to have, some 70 or 80 ton tanks, presumably designed to break the Maginot line and lesser fortifications. We have no Maginot line either to defend or attack, but our army has ordered some 70 ton tanks. The army may have an idea for the use of these tanks, but on its face the order looks as if we are ordering them because the Nazis have some.

The United States army has not been particularly receptive to new ideas. The jealousies of old established services have all too frequently frustrated attempts to develop new weapons until the value of such weapons has been demonstrated abroad. Too many senior officers have, far from encouraging independent thinking and suggestions from their juniors, actively squelched such initiative.

Lieut. Gen. Ford is one of the top ranking officers of the army, approaching the age of retirement. That the suggestion that our army can use some original thinking should come from him is most encouraging. It is a good thing for the army and demonstrates Gen. Ford's competence for the command assigned him.

Editorial of the Day

NEW CALEDONIA'S WAY.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

New Caledonia has just announced that it will fight Germany.

New Caledonia is a French possession in Oceania, some hundreds of miles from Australia. It has a population of approximately 57,000 people, with three times that many head of live stock. The dispatch, announcing that the country would not follow the French government's instructions and surrender, indicated that New Caledonia might contribute quite a stout little bit toward the war against Nazi world dominion.

But let's have a closer look at New Caledonia. It is there that the world's wildest wild men live, extreme primitives who are of great interest to anthropologists. The scientist who isn't eaten by cannibals before he can complete his studies usually comes away from New Caledonia with a lot of interesting material. The population consists of 28,700 Melanesians and Polynesians, about 7,000 Javanese, 5,300 Tonkinese, 623 convicts; a large number of indeterminate people of mixed blood classed as "free," and about 180 French settlers of all ages.

New Caledonia probably reached its decision to disregard the Pétain government and take its stand against Germany in this way: The chief French official having slept badly the night before, anyway, wandered down to his office about midday and found that bad news had arrived. He puffed out his cheeks, cussed a few times, saying "Name of a name!" and "Zut, then!" and "Those dirties!" And then he buttoned up his tunic, straightened his cap and announced: "No surrender! Vive la France!"

ABSENCE.

Written by the 13 year old son of Author Negley Farson ("Way of a Transgressor"), who is at Lake Geneva, Wis., staying with his godmother, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, "for the duration."

O, to have a little look
At England once again,
To walk once more in London's streets
Or down a village lane.
To see anew the little house
In which I used to live—
O only just a little look,
And anything I'd give.

It Seems Like Yesterday.

August, 1940. . . . And ten years ago you were reading Margaret Barnes' Years of Grace, Axel Munthe's The Story of San Michele, and Charles Norris' Seed. You were quoting Dorothy Parker's Laments for the Living and humming The Peanut Vender. You were dancing to Guy Lombardo's orchestra to the strains of Little White Lies and I'm Dancing with Tears in My Eyes, and your favorite song was Body and Soul, sung throatily as Libby Holman sang it in The Little Show. You had never heard of the rhumba or la conga. You still had a favorite speakeasy.

* * *

You were wearing skirts considerably longer than in the 1920s. They had, in fact, come down with the stock market prices. You were changing your type to one more feminine and less hoydenish. Your favorite perfume probably was Chanel No. 5, and Black Narcissus was popular. A girl had "it" or s. a., and "oomph" would not be invented for another nine years. At the movies you were seeing Ronald Colman in Raffles, Will Rogers in So This Is London, Richard Barthelmess in Dawn Patrol, and Ann Harding in Holiday. Elmer Rice's Street Scene was appearing in the loop, and Lysistrata was being widely quoted.

* * *

Miniature golf was the rage, and it was probably the only successful business venture of the moment. There were 30,000 of them thruout the country. Backgammon was just beginning to be fashionable, and a Chicago Racquet club expert, Dr. O. E. Van Alyea, had written a book about it. There were apple salesmen on every corner. You were listening to Amos and Andy every evening at 7 o'clock and saying, "I'se regusted" and "Check and double check" when you wanted to be funny.

* * *

Mabel Walker Willebrandt was in the headlines as frequently as Mme. Perkins is today, and it was nearly three years before prohibition would be repealed. Endurance flyers were making new records daily, and Capt. Hawks had flown from coast to coast in 12 hours, breaking all previous records. Lindbergh was awarded a medal by congress. President Hoover canceled his vacation to the Rockies because of the great drouth thruout the land. Cotton sold at 11 cents. Calvin Coolidge was syndicating 200 words daily from Northampton. Breadlines were as long as today's movie cues. Banks were crashing, and President Hoover's popularity was as low as the stock market figures.

* * *

In England Winston Churchill had launched a drive to oust the MacDonald government. In France André Maginot was warning against further cuts in French armament, and Germans were cheering Arthur Henderson's stand at the league of nations assembly for disarmament first and federation afterward. In Germany, too, Chancellor Bruening was pledging a policy of peace. The last allied troops of occupation left the Rhineland, and at the elections the National Socialist party, led by A. Hitler and standing for ultranationalism, restricted foreign policy, and anti-Semitism, elected 107 deputies. American Gold Star Mothers laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Paris and thought their sons had died to save the world for democracy.

Ten years ago, and one era was at an end and another was just beginning, an era which was to culminate in undreamed of horror and happenings more fantastic than an Orson Welles broadcast. Governments and countries were to fold like so many Broadway productions; a procession of horrible and spectacular national tragedies was to lead to a Hollywoodlike scene in an old railway coach dragged from a museum to the forest of Compiègne, and a movie newsreel shot of English school children hiding under their desks, their fingers in their ears during air raids, was to give some idea of the pass to which the world had come.

TRINIDAD.

[Hartford (Conn.) Courant.]

Of the two dozen or so Trinidads in Latin America none is so bleakly remote as is the tiny island 680 miles off the coast of Brazil in whose neighborhood two armed merchantmen exchanged shots the other day. Its existence is shown on few ordinary maps. In peacetime it is uninhabited. A quick search thru the records indicates that it has figured in the news only three times in at least 50 years—the first time when its sovereignty became a matter of dispute between Great Britain and Brazil, the second when the British auxiliary cruiser Carmania sank the German armed merchantman Cap Trafalgar near it in the last war, and the third when the recent brush between the British Alcantara and what is believed to be the German ship Narvik occurred.

But tiny and obscure tho it is, it has achieved a certain reputation because of the mere fact that of the few men who have set foot on it two were indisputably great. The first was the Portuguese admiral, Tristan da Cunha, who discovered the island in the course of a trip to India by way of what was then the Portuguese colony of Brazil. The second was that astonishing individual, Edmund Halley, who landed there to make astronomical observations during his survey of terrestrial magnetism. [The name of Halley's ship is too good to forget; she was the Paramour Pink.]

In wartime it is apparently an unhealthy place for a civilian, but it sounds like the ideal spot for a man who wants to get away from it all in time of peace. It is only four miles long by two broad, but it is well watered, its soil is reported to be fertile, and its climate is said to be delightful. When the war is over Brazil would probably be delighted to rent it at a reasonable rate to some philosopher in search of an adequately lonely place in which to meditate on the follies of mankind.

The French are now active trying to find out who was to blame for their defeat. But nobody has yet gotten around to mentioning Hitler.—Hartford [Conn.] Courant.

An astronomer thinks our satellite, the moon, will leave us presently, and who are we to blame her. The neighborhood is terribly run down.—The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

LATE SUMMER COLDS AND VACCINES.

COLDS are annoying, as well as menacing. Not only do they typify low reserve, but they make of every sufferer a sower of bad seed. They oblige us to act as centers of infection, spreading our germs to all and sundry.

Those which occur in the warmer season may be even more difficult to conquer than the winter variety. Perhaps we are laboring under the false conception that they are unlikely to be complicated by pneumonia—and hence we give them little attention. While this may be true in part, many hang on longer and we seem to be able to throw them off with less dispatch.

Enough has been said about the cause to make us thoroly familiar with the way this ailment is acquired. Some drop in resistance brought on by overfatigue, indigestion, or too much or improper food may tip the scales just enough to allow the causative virus to begin its vicious rôle. Then it is that the squatters move in—bacteria that are found always in the nasal passages. Within a day or two they start to multiply by leaps and bounds. Inflammation, swelling of the mucous membrane, excess secretions, pus, and toxins then follow in order.

What can we do for the acute siege? Drink adequate quantities of fluids, keep warm and quiet, and increase elimination. If the bronchial tubes are even slightly affected, breathing steam impregnated with tincture of benzoin compound will be of value. Rest in bed is always in order and must be insisted upon if the thermometer registers a fever of one degree or more.

But to prevent these episodes there is fair evidence that vaccines may be helpful. A study of a series of two thousand or more employés in an industrial concern presents significant findings. The individuals were given mixed vaccine by mouth and their experiences during 12 months were compared with the record of the previous year. Calculations were made of the total days of illness, the severity of colds, absence from work, etc.

Each dose was made up of killed germs, such as the pneumococcus, influenza bacillus, streptococcus, and one or two others. The quantity was large and the tablets were coated so that digestion within the stomach would not take place. In other words, the drug was carried well into the intestinal tract before its neutralizing properties were set free. One "pill" daily was prescribed for the first week and then two each week for the next six. In those who were still bothered, the regimen was repeated about two or three months later.

What happened? There were about the same number of mild attacks in which the sniffles vanished by morning. The greatest benefits were noted in those who were cold addicts—who would no sooner recover from one bout before another would start. In only 13 of several hundred persons who previously had been confined to bed with a four or five day illness was the régime without effect. What otherwise would have amounted to considerable time lost was changed to practically full attendance with but inconsequential discomfort.

Perhaps the principal achievement was the almost complete eradication of bronchial involvement, pneumonia, and sinus flare-ups. These were observed but rarely and the total amount expended in physician's fees was correspondingly curtailed. Some account must be taken of the fact that every one knew that the experiment was in progress and, in all probability, far more care was exercised, better hygiene was practiced, exposures avoided more scrupulously, and more rest secured.

PRICKLY HEAT.

F. C. writes: Is prickly heat due to too much acid in the blood? What can be done for this condition?

REPLY.

Excessive perspiration or evaporation from the surface of the skin is responsible. Soaking for 10 or 15 minutes in a tub of warm water, to which a handful or two of cornstarch has been added, is an ideal remedy. After drying thoroly, be generous in the use of talc. Do not wear sweat soaked clothes any longer than necessary.

WEAK FINGERS.

W. H. writes: Is it natural not to have much strength in the smallest fingers?

REPLY.

The strength of the fingers varies according to use. The first, second, and the thumb are stronger than the third and fourth. Exercises will develop the entire hand—piano playing, for example.

"MIND YOUR CAR, MISTER?"

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Yesterday I [a visitor in your city] went to White Sox ball park. Arriving there in my car, I was greeted by hawkers peddling parking space on the public streets. As I backed my car into the curb I was assisted in the process by two of them. Eager hands reached in on both sides to close the car windows. I locked the car and turned to go, but a hand was thrust before me. "Twenty-five cents," said the owner of the paw, deliberately barring my path.

"For what?" said I.

"For minding your car—you never know what might happen to it if you don't pay to have it watched." The threatening tone suggested punctured tires on my return.

"I'll pay after the game if the car is all right," I replied and walked off. My helpful friend was there to collect and did, when the game was over.

May I suggest that if Chicago wishes to rent the streets adjacent to its ball park it could do so profitably by the use of parking meters, instead of permitting this revenue to go to its embryonic blackmailers as at present.

I was the victim of a similar practice at Wrigley field on a visit here two years ago. The continued existence of this method of petty extortion is not a credit to the police force of your city.

A VISITOR.

KNEW WILLKIE AS A BOY.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 12.—I knew Wendell Willkie well as a fine and decent boy brought up by a great mother who taught all her children to be that way. Young Willkie was always the ideal student. Thus he retained all that he learned. What he tells you is his own and from the heart and not "read off" speeches.

He is sincere because he came up the hard way. The road of honor—straight and narrow—paved with hard labor and sacrifices. I know his mind well and know he is strongly opposed to royalty, special privilege, and the third term, which definitely smacks of royalty.

I believe Willkie will try to practice the Golden Rule instead of talking about it.

A HAY FEVERITE WARNS.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—I want to warn your readers of bogus hay fever clubs. Several years ago an enterprising advertising company in Chicago organized such a club. The fee was $1. The only results obtained were that our mail boxes were filled with all kinds of advertising on remedies, resorts, ventilators, and the like. The results hoped for were those stated by the letter in today's paper. I just want to warn you, for I was a member.

HAY FEVERITE.

HOMEMADE FUEL.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—In today's TRIBUNE E. J. B. mentions fuel made of old paper [newspapers, etc.] soaked in water and squeezed dry.

I tried this years ago and found it a very good fuel, giving a quick, hot fire similar to wood, but—if I remember right—burning slower than wood.

People could save money by making their own fuel this way, but try to find somebody who wants to spend the time and effort to do it! In the city you can get enough old paper for nothing to manufacture several tons of paper fuel, but nobody to do it. In the country many would be willing but lack the raw material. Of course, a crude press for pressing paper briquets would have to be rigged up.

Mixing coal dust—which also can be had for the taking—with the paper pulp will produce a fuel equal to the best coal.

J. A. K.

Elmhurst, Ill., Aug. 12.—In answer to E. J. B.'s inquiry: I successfully used the method of soaking papers, forming them into balls, and letting them dry, as a substitute for coal in Germany during the last war. While they did not throw very much heat, they kept the fire over night. We used to place three to four of these paper balls on the fire in the large tile stoves just before retiring at night and in the morning add new coal.

It proved very satisfactory. However, I don't know whether the method can be applied for hot blast stoves or furnaces.

WALTER LANGE.

"CIRCUS" IN FULL BLOOM.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The colorful, one-ring circus in Jackson park at the Midway is now in full bloom. The ring is a beautiful lawn, 175 feet across, inclosed by a loose stone wall 2 feet high. The performers are outside the ring and consist of a vast and beautiful array of garden flowers, a feast for the eye and a Mecca for camera fans. The flowers are so hidden by shrubbery that many flower lovers may pass them by. The butterflies, bumble bees, and humming birds have found them. There are hornets in the crevices of the wall and moles burrowing under the sod.

BRAZIL HOOSIER.

OUR KINDLY POLICEMEN.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—As a long time subscriber to THE TRIBUNE I feel I am entitled to express my thanks and appreciation thru Voice of the People for the humane and courteous treatment extended to myself and other semicripples by our Chicago crossing police. In this connection I wish particularly to commend the officer who took me in tow at 3:45 p. m. today and saw me safely on a No. 22 car at Adams and Clark streets.

J. A. BEGGS.

TWO DIFFERENT THINGS.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—There seems to be a general confusion in the public mind in regard to conscription. Many think it and universal military training are one and the same thing, but they are very different.

Conscription is a war measure and is rightly applied only in time of war, while universal military training is a measure to be applied in times of peace so that all our male citizens shall be prepared to defend their country against all aggressors. Universal military training is greatly needed now in our country, but there is not the least need for conscription at this time.

Congress should at once throw the Burke-Wadsworth bill out the window and pass a law imposing some kind of universal military training. First, let there be the training of the boys in the public and parochial schools of our country. Secondly, those out of school age should be required to give a certain amount of their time each year to military training. This training could be assigned to vacation periods and to weekends.

ERNEST BRADSHAW.

THE ARMY AND JOE LOUIS.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—We read in the papers Joe Louis' expression of his willingness to fight for his country. At the same time an article declared vacancies for 9,000 marines.

But just let Joe Louis, a perfect physical specimen, but colored, try to fill one of those vacancies. Do you think he'll be accepted? I know he won't.

Let him try, after that, to be an enlisted man in the navy, then in the air force. Nothing doing. In the army he will be accepted, providing he doesn't want to join a branch other than the infantry. He would be eligible for one of two infantry regiments.

C. MORAGNE.

A WORD FOR THE OLDER BOYS.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Time and again I have read letters in these columns on the growing tendency to shun work for the dole. They seldom ring true. In Saturday's TRIBUNE, J. Y. says one of his employés gave up his job so he could sit at home and draw $18 a week compensation. It may be, but I'd bet an old cigar butt that one can't just throw up his job and draw unemployment compensation.

Yes, J. Y., if you and other employers would give some of us older boys a chance you would find that we prefer work to the dole.

A VETERAN.

IT DOES SEEM ODD.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Odd, don't you think, not one word of protest from the administration against the taking over by Russia of the small, peaceful democracies of Europe?

GUTTERS.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My next door neighbor has a leaking gutter. Last winter my walk was icy and a few times my children fell and hurt themselves. He contends that he is entitled to three feet of ground on our side. Is this true?

T. V.

REPLY.

The rule is stated as follows in 67 C. J. 886: "Where an easement has not been acquired by grant or prescription, the owner of a building is required to take care of rain water falling on the roof by providing and keeping in serviceable condition gutter and spouts sufficient to carry off such precipitation as may reasonably be expected, and if by reason of his neglect water is shed from his roof on to or against the wall or building of another he is liable for any injury caused thereby." TODAY IN HISTORY

Aug. 15, 1769

Napoleon Bonaparte born in Corsica. As a child his favorite toys were a drum and a sword. He attended a military school in Paris, and was appointed to an artillery regiment at the age of 16. As a youth he aspired to free Corsica from French rule, but upon the advent of the French revolution he adopted it as his cause. His family, of noble lineage, had opposed France, and his father, a lawyer, had taken part in the rebellion of Paoli.

NO. 1 SALES TERRITORY

...and, no foolin', we did plan it that way!

WHY do you suppose Collier's has today the biggest circulation in its long history?

Why do you suppose Collier's revenue for the first six months of 1940 has broken all past six-month records?

Why do you suppose that Collier's—of all the multi-million weekly magazines published over a long period of years—is the only one that is at its all-time peak today both in circulation and advertising revenue?

Such things don't happen by accident. Not with other weeklies pushing for business, and selling a total of more than 10 million copies a week.

We knew what we wanted and went after it—picked our writers and subjects, styled our magazine for the kind of up-and-comers that make a No. 1 sales territory by a sales manager's standards.

Did we hit the target?

Look at that list at the right.

There's a multimillion group of folks with eager interests and active wants—young enough to have children, and successful enough to enjoy the more abundant life.

And remember: these are not our figures. They're all picked from surveys made by others—including our competitors in the weekly field.

To be sure, there are other good magazines. We don't claim to be the oldest, newest or biggest.

But if you pick your magazines for their market-potential, it's easy to see which magazine rates No. 1 place on your list today.

HOW'S THIS FOR THE NO. 1 SALES TERRITORY IN THE UNITED STATES?

Collier's today has 2,890,058 circulation. But it takes more than circulation to make a market. It takes people with active wants and the buying power to satisfy them. By these standards the Collier's record is:

No. 1 in percentage of readers between the ages of 26 and 45 inclusive—the buying age.

No. 1 in number of people over 18 years old in reader families.

No. 1 among new-car buyers, and in percentage of circulation going to car-owning families.

No. 1 among buyers of mechanical refrigerators costing over $150.

No. 1 among buyers of radios costing over $100.

No. 1 among buyers of watches costing over $50.

No. 1 among buyers of life insurance policies over $5,000.

None of these figures are taken from surveys made by or for Collier's—we've let others prove our point. And no other combination of weekly magazines can reach more than 29.7% of this market.

More important facts that everyone knows—

You are days closer to Collier's great market than to any other weekly's market because of Collier's new fast closing dates.

Your sales message in Collier's is flashed against the finest background. Collier's alert, vital editing, streamlined makeup and the constant use of more color than any other weekly assure this.

COURT WILL RULE TODAY IN DRIVE ON UNION RACKET

Urge Naming Harry Ash Barkeep Receiver.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Circuit Judge Robert Jerome Dunne was asked yesterday to appoint Harry A. Ash, former assistant attorney general of Illinois, as receiver for the Bartenders' and Beverage Dispensers' union, local 278. This request was part of the program formulated by Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney to drive criminals and racketeers out of organized labor. Judge Dunne said he would act on the request today.

Harry A. Ash.

Ash was said to have the approval of Courtney and William J. Campbell, United States attorney, who is cooperating with the state prosecutor and the mayor in the offensive against the criminals they say are entrenched back of labor union fronts. Ash is also acceptable to both factions of the union, it was disclosed during the day.

Appear Before Grand Jury.

While this matter was in progress three other union officials went before the grand jury, but refused to testify because they said they feared to incriminate themselves. They are James Blakely, secretary treasurer of the Miscellaneous Hotel and Restaurant Employés union, and John Lardino and Michael Lee, other officials of the same union.

Blakely is said by police to be a lieutenant of Danny Stanton, partner of Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti in the ownership and management of many labor unions. Nitti is the successor to Al Capone as head of the old bootleg syndicate.

Three Freed on Bond.

Levirt J. [St. Louis] Kelly, colored, head of several unions whose membership consists of Negroes, will be taken before the grand jury tomorrow. He was arrested Monday afternoon. Meanwhile, Arthur W. Wallace, boss of the painters' district council, and three other members of his union arrested Tuesday were freed on bond. They were notified to appear before the September grand jury as the present grand jury will end its work tomorrow.

Police Commissioner Allman and his chief raider, Capt. John Howe, said they were too busy in court yesterday to make additional raids on unions, but said every crooked union official could expect arrest on sight.

Courtney and his collaborators said they were concentrating yesterday on the bartenders' union case. Courtney had an assistant in court and the crime commission was represented by an observer. The Chicago Association of Commerce, thru its president, Oscar Mayer, said it was back of Courtney in his efforts to aid George B. McLane, business agent of the union, who asked the court's protection from the Nitti gang.

Asks Court to Act.

"We asked this court to appoint a receiver for the bartenders' union," Attorney A. C. Lewis informed Judge Dunne when the case was called yesterday morning. "We asked that an election of officers of the union be held under the court's protection.

"The defendants in this case have agreed to the appointment of Mr. Ash as the receiver. Mr. Ash is a man of high standing and is capable of handling the affairs of the union."

"We agree to the appointment of Mr. Ash," said Attorney Harold Levy, representing the other faction of the union. In previous court appearances Levy had hotly opposed the petition for a receiver for the union.

Ex-Italian Consul Among 152 Winning Citizenship

Giulio Bolognesi, former Italian consul here, was among 152 persons admitted to American citizenship by Judge William H. Holly in federal court yesterday. Mr. Bolognesi, who is 61 years old, lives at 24 Scott street. He is president of a cheese company.

Wins Divorce

MRS. EVELYN HOULIHAN.

Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan awarded a divorce yesterday to Mrs. Evelyn Houlihan, 25 years old, of 3419 Jackson boulevard, after she told him that she did not object so much to her husband's insobriety as to his efforts to appease her by bringing home gifts of wearing apparel which he told her he had appropriated from the wardrobe of a girl friend.

Mrs. Houlihan said that her husband, John, 28, of 3000 Flournoy street, would come home laden with hats, lingerie, and stockings, explaining that he had a rich friend who wouldn't miss these articles. Mrs. Houlihan said that she never accepted the peace offerings.

She was granted $10 a week support for a daughter, Barbara, 5. The Houlihans were married Nov. 9, 1934, and separated last May 27. Mrs. Houlihan was represented by Attorney Norman Becker.

CHARGE $832,709 SALTED PEANUT MAIL FRAUD PLOT

31 Indicted by the U. S. Grand Jury.

Hundreds of small investors stopped dreaming yesterday of wealth to come in an unending stream of pennies from machines that sell salted peanuts. The dreamers signed their names to complaints upon which the federal grand jury indicted 31 persons accused of an $832,709 swindle.

The principal defendants are Harold E. Taylor, 53 years old, who formerly lived at 10907 Longwood drive in Beverly Hills, and Albert G. Burns of Oakland, Cal. All the defendants were indicted before Judge William H. Holly on charges of conspiracy and using the mails to defraud.

Story Told in Indictments.

Taylor was president and treasurer of the Manufacturers' Research Insitute at 624 South Michigan avenue and its two subsidiaries, the Lessors' Machine corporation and the Service Placement corporation. Burns was vice president and sales manager of the institutions

The parent company was organized in 1936 to manufacture penny peanut vending machines, according to the story told in the indictments by A. Bradley Eben, assistant United States attorney; Richard J. Purcell, postal inspector, and Cornelius J. Haugh, accountant for the Securities Exchange commission.

Promised 20 Per Cent Profit.

The government charges that small investors were persuaded to buy the machines at $35 each, on the promise that the owners never would even have to look at them. The lessors' corporation was to lease the machines from the owners, and the service corporation was to put in the peanuts and take out the pennies.

The investors were promised a minimum of $7.20 a year from each machine, which is 20 per cent on the investment, according to the prosecutors.

Profits were paid for a few months. In 1938 all the corporations went bankrupt.

DIES AT BOXING MATCH.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 14 [Special]—Alonzo Williams, retired Pennsylvania railroad engineer, died of a heart attack last night while watching boxing matches at the local Izaak Walton league arena.

MILK DRIVERS' OFFICIALS SUED OVER PICKETING

Dairy Asks $100,000 for Loss of Customers.

Suit for $100,000 damages against officials of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local 753, was filed in the Superior court yesterday by the Maywood Farms company, a wholesale dairy at 102 Lake street, Maywood. The bill, drawn by Attorney William H. Sloan, alleged that the company lost many of its retail clients in 1936 and 1937 thru picketing of these clients' stores by union agents.

The picketing ended March 27, 1937, when Judge Walter Stanton in Superior court issued an injunction against it. But, according to Oscar E. Miske, head of the Maywood farms, several customers have been lost permanently.

Milk Sold Over Counter.

The company's customers sell milk over the counter and therefore do not employ any of the union members for home deliveries.

Defendants named in the bill are Robert G. Fitchie, former president of the union; Steve Sumner, former secretary treasurer; Fred C. Dahms, a former business agent; Henry Weber, now president of the union; Thomas Haggerty, secretary treasurer; James Kennedy, vice president; Joseph R. Patterson, trustee, and F. Ray Bryant, Albert C. Richards, Peter Hoban, and Gus Moline, business agents.

Conspiracy Is Charged.

The bill alleged that officials and members of the drivers' union, on Feb. 1, 1936, "entered into a combination and conspiracy among themselves to wilfully and intentionally discourage and destroy the business of the sale of milk and dairy products thru stores, by the plaintiff and other dairy companies similarly engaged, and to accomplish this result by sending union members to these stores to threaten the owners that they would be picketed unless they ceased buying and reselling the plaintiff's products."

The bill listed seven customers in western and southern suburbs who, it was alleged, were forced to stop buying from Maywood farms because of picketing.

DROWNS AS CANOE UPSETS.

George J. Tolman, 38 years old, of 3524 Wabansia avenue, drowned on Tuesday in Clearwater lake near Sayner, Wis., when his canoe overturned, it was learned yesterday. He was fishing with John Kieser of Berwyn, who swam ashore. Both men were employed by a printing company here.

SUES C.I.O. UNION SECOND TIME IN 48 DAY SITDOWN

Hosiery Company Files State Court Action.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 14 [Special].—Damages of $1,171,957 were asked by the Apex Hosiery company today in a new suit filed against the C. I. O. union whose members conducted a 48 day sitdown strike at the company's plant in 1937.

The suit, directed against the American Federation of Hosiery workers was filed in Common Pleas court. It asked that a trial jury fix punitive damages in addition to losses to buildings and machinery.

The company won a verdict in the United States District court here in April, 1939, assessing $711,932 damages against the union's No. 1 branch and its president, William Leader. The federal jury found the strike interfered with interstate commerce in violation of antitrust laws.

Upheld by High Court.

However, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals set aside the verdict last November and was upheld in this decision by the United States Supreme court in a 6 to 3 decision last May which held that the antitrust laws had not been violated.

The federal appeals court advised the company to seek redress in Pennsylvania state courts.

The labor dispute, which brought the first court award ever returned against a union for damages in a sitdown strike, threw the Apex company's 2,500 employés out of work and impaired its 5 million dollar a year hosiery business, 80 per cent of which is conducted in interstate commerce.

On May 6, 1937, when the C. I. O. union had only eight members among the 2,500 employés, its leaders demanded a closed shop contract with the company. When the company refused, the union ordered the sitdown strike.

Courts Denounce Lawlessness.

Both the Supreme court and the Circuit Court of Appeals denounced the strikers' lawless acts which halted production in the company's plant for more than three months.

"The record disclosed," the Supreme court's majority opinion said, "a lawless invasion of petitioner's plant and destruction of its property by force and violence of the most brutal and wanton character, under leadership and direction of respondents and without interference by local authorities."

"Judicial condemnation of such tactics cannot be too severe," said the Circuit Court of Appeals. "Such strikes serve labor's cause badly indeed, and the public good fares worse before such a display of lawlessness."

The Supreme court's opinion said it was not denied that the union violated the civil and penal laws of Pennsylvania.

LAST OF ROBBER GANG SENTENCED TO YEAR TO LIFE

Walter Kania, last of a quick trigger bandit gang of eight, was sentenced to one year to life imprisonment yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski in Criminal court.

Kania, who is 29 years old, was convicted by the chief justice of the robbery in which $900 was taken in 1936 from the Chicago Tubing and Braiding company at 317 South 2d avenue, Maywood. The bandits shot and wounded Chief Richard H. Bailey of the Maywood police in their getaway.

The other members of the gang were rounded up and sent to prison soon after the shooting. Two of them, Frank [Bones] Korczykowski and Andrew Bogacki, were sent to the electric chair for a murder. Kania remained at large until July 18.

Arthur Meeker Gray with Guard Unit at Camp McCoy.

Arthur Meeker Gray is missing the Old Spanish Days fiesta at Santa Barbara this summer, for he is with his National Guard unit at Camp McCoy in Sparta, Wis. His sister, debutante Joan Gray, and Horace Jr. and their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray, are in California, however, for the gala days, as are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, who are spending the summer at Constantia, their Montecito home. The fiesta starts today with a parade and pageant, but there have been preFiesta parties all week.

Mr. and Mrs. Meeker will return to their Lake Shore drive apartment about Oct. 1 and shortly after that their son, Arthur Jr., expects to move out to his new home in Wayne. He has bought a yellow brick house which his brother-in-law, Ambrose C. THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

The pompadour is THE hair fashion of the season, but it has countless versions that give the individual a chance at becomingness rather than blind adaptation. At the left: The waved pompadour with hair all around the head brushed and waved upward. Right: The modified pompadour with back hair long and soft, front hair curled upward with a definite break at the right hand part. Both of these, with proper shaping and waving, are practical and easy to manage.

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 14.—Mildred Dilling, noted harpist, came here recently to appear on a Bing Crosby broadcast and to give Harpo Marx a few lessons on the side. It had been a hurry-up summons from Crosby, with just enough time to load the harp in the baggage car ahead and take a train from New York. Miss Dilling felt she must practice on the way, so she also took along a comparatively small Irish harp, which she played in the Pullman ladies' room. She had barely begun her first practice session when a woman dropped in and exclaimed, "Oh, so you're a Gideon, too!" Miss Dilling discovered she was in the midst of a trainload of Gideon society convention delegates—so for the rest of the trip she and her Irish harp led the daily hymn singing on board.

Attracting almost as much attention as Dorothy Lamour rates on the "Moon Over Burma" set is Miss Lamour's pretty secretary, Patty McCarthy. Dorothy is determined to get the young lady into pictures and the newest move in her campaign has been to have Miss Patty get a set of glamor portraits at the Paramount photo gallery. The pictures will be sent around to producers. And it might work, you know. Carole Lombard did the same thing with her assistant a few years ago—a girl named Margaret Tallichet.

Another new face in the Paramount portrait gallery is Richard Halliday, the story editor. It seems that Mary Martin has her dressing room walls decorated with autographed portraits of Cole Porter, Edgar Bergen, Robert Taylor and Pinky Tomlin—and she decided that after three months of marriage she'd better have a picture of her husband.

Gale Beatty, in charge of fan mail at Warner Brothers, says movie stars' mail isn't what it used to be. Ten or 11 years ago Colleen Moore was averaging 15,000 letters a week. Errol Flynn, current studio fan mail champ, doesn't receive nearly that number of letters in a month. Twelve hundred letters a week is plenty for any star.

Beatty says this drop isn't because people are less interested in stars. It's because in the old days the old high pressure was used. Nancy Carroll was Paramount's queen, Miss Moore ruled at First National, and the popularity contest between the girls was close and hot. So their respective publicity departments helped them get mail.

Most of the letters addressed to Hollywood come from children. When school starts the mail drops off. Four-fifths of the communications are brief complimentary notes coupled with requests for pictures. There are some begging letters, mostly asking for clothes. A very small amount—which is never turned over to the actors, but to the U. S. postoffice—is objectionable or obscene.

Every once in a while a little dandy of a letter turns up. Recently a woman wrote Errol Flynn asking him to save his pared toenails for her. Humphrey Bogart recently got a request for an autographed shirttail. Miss De Havilland recently received an envelope containing a pinch of garlic salt, with a note stating that the stuff was magical and if she ate it she could get Jimmy Stewart to propose to her.

Flynn is saving this letter from a girl:

"Could you please send me a picture of your phiseke. I have two pictures of your face, but that's nothing. Nice faces are ordinary. But phisekes, I mean you know phisekes that look like Charles Atlas or Johnnie Weissmuller are something, and I collect them. Pictures of them I mean. I asked James Stewart, David Niven, and Nelson Eddy. None of them answered. You know what I also like about you. I like the way you kiss. Send me a picture of you and Lili Damita kissing each other. I asked Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Tyrone Power, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Brian Aherne, and Mr. and Ronald Colman to send me pictures of them kissing each other. None of them answered."

This Is Sally's Party Day with Jacks and Jills

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Party day is here at last, boys and girls, and we're off to the Jack and Jill Studios this afternoon!

I know that the fifty boys and fifty girls who've been invited will hardly need this little reminder, because I'm sure they've marked this as a red letter day—but I just want to warn you not to get so excited that you leave your invitations at home.

I expect you to bring them with you, so tuck them away safely when you start out. "Prodigies On Parade," presented expecially for us by the Jack and Jill players under the direction of Marie Agnes Foley, is going to be lots of fun, so don't be late.

Next week I'm going to meet another group of boys and girls—my guests at the Palace theater party. I don't know just who they'll be, but I'm going to find out today. I'll read all the letters you've written asking for invitations to see "The Boys From Syracuse" and "The Saint Takes Over," and select the winners today; so if you've a note in this big stack on my desk, keep your fingers crossed until you get your Sunday TRIBUNE which will contain the names of the fortunate fifties!

Great Ovation Given Stock and His Orchestra

Concert in Grant park Wednesday evening, Aug. 14, 1940, by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Frederick Stock, conductor; John Weicher, violinist. The program:
Overture to "Euryanthe".....Weber
Tone Poem, "Don Juan".....Strauss
Concerto for Violin, E minor..Mendelssohn
Symphony No. 2, E minor..Rachmaninoff

BY CECIL SMITH.

Last evening's Grant park concert provided a magnificent and stirring testimonial to the admiration and affection with which the Chicago public regards Dr. Frederick Stock. For Dr. Stock's first appearance this summer at the head of his Chicago Symphony orchestra, thousands upon thousands of listeners filled the seats and stood in solid phalanxes in the open stretches beyond.

The audience, in festival mood, was quick to sense that Dr. Stock's mastery both of his orchestra and his music was lifting the occasion far above the level of ordinary outdoor musical events. Sustained applause greeted the finish of each item in the program, and the end of the concert brought forth a great ovation. And yet the audience was as remarkable for its attention as for its enthusiasm. While the music was played, the great throng sat in such intent concentration that its very silence was impressive.

It was fitting that Dr. Stock should be in charge of the orchestra's final summer concert. It was also valuable to call his extraordinary gifts to public notice only a few weeks before the Chicago Symphony orchestra, in October, enters upon its 50th anniversary season.

Certainly nobody could have listened to last night's performance of the Rachmaninoff symphony—injured tho the second movement was by a cut made necessary by radio timing—without realizing that he was hearing one of the imposing musical figures of this generation. In its eloquence, its rhythmic resiliency, tonal balance, and structural cogency, Dr. Stock's intrepretation possessed the qualities of true greatness. The orchestra played with tremendous drive and vitality, and with complete responsiveness to their conductor's uniquely expressive and flexible beat.

John Welcher, concertmaster of the orchestra, shared in the success of a gala evening, playing the Mendelssohn violin concerto. With Dr. Stock's perfectly coördinated accompaniment as a background, he gave one of the best performances of his career. His playing has all the virtues of good tone, first class workmanship in every technical detail, and impeccably schooled taste.

What he needs most is a firmer conviction of his own value to an audience. His essential modesty leads him to lean over backwards in the attempt to keep any special personal conviction out of his playing.

Huge Jingling Earrings Fall's Newest Fancy

BY REA SEEGER.

Dramatics for the first fall dresses consist of the biggest earrings ever skewered into pink ear lobes. Huge chunky affairs of bright gold metal, smooth or carved; hoops, not the flamboyant gypsy baubles but the smooth sophisticated creations of the "femme fatale," are ear accents of the hour. Silver as well as gold metal, shimmering pieces studded with semiprecious stones like peridots, pink amethysts, jade, rose quartz, and the stunning combines of copper with topaz are a few of the finds.

Colored enamel flowers, five petal beauties, come in pairs ready for ear duty. Bows of colored enamel are other ideas. Leaves realistically outlined and patterned, big discs jingling with small balls, jet with dusky gold beads the size of seeds, seed pearls with jet, square cut simulated rubies, emeralds, sapphires, and topaz set in simple gold metal prongs are the latest contribution for adornment. Each is a big effective eye catcher device with which to highlight an otherwise ordinary costume.

The gold earrings offer the widest assortment of new designs and size. Bow knots, Chinese filigree balls, pendants copied from the complicated Javanese jewelry, modernistic stuff like triangular wedges inset with semiprecious jewels or rhinestones, startling but smart contrasts of gold with copper and silver, the three cleverly played one against the other, and thin wire effects in graceful twists and lacings . . . all this is loot for the bauble collector.

Murder Is Not Mute

By Audrey Newell

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Patrick Doyle of New York is vacationing in a small town when, while walking in the woods of the estate of Adolf Wunsch, ex-brewer, he stumbles on a skeleton. He reports to Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, rejects the bribe Briault offers to keep the matter quiet, and goes to the police. Returning to the scene with Policeman Madden and Judge Blain, he finds the skeleton gone, but by trailing fresh footprints they find where it has been hastily buried. Dr. Blake, the coroner, says the skeleton is that of a teen age girl who was murdered. Doyle is asked to help solve the mystery. Further search of the Wunsch grounds near where the skeleton was first discovered results in finding blue yarn, a watch clasp, slipper heels, and a bullet. Doyle learns that beautiful Paula Briault married Wunsch for his money three years ago, and has led a miserable and lonely existence ever since. He has allowed her brother and mother to live with him, his 18 year old daughter, Texie, and his aged father, but he dominates the household, giving Paula charge accounts but no money. Miss Doty, a trained nurse, cares for the elder Wunsch. Over a year ago Wunsch, realizing that Paula was trying to marry Truman to Texie to solve his financial problems, sent Texie to Europe for an extended tour, with Mrs. Briault as chaperon. Lately Wunsch has been driving to town with Pellins, his chauffeur, every night, and Paula, becoming suspicious, put detectives on his trail. Helen Voss, Texie's best friend and companion, has not been heard of since Texie sailed. Doyle learns that the blue yarn came off a sweater belonging to Truman and that the watch clasp, identical with the clasp on the watch Wunsch gave Paula as a wedding gift, belonged to a watch Wunsch gave some one 13 months after his wedding. When Doyle tells Paula about the watch clasp she faints. Doyle questions Wunsch concerning Helen Voss and Wunsch denies knowing where she is, but Doyle finds an old clipping saying she left the Wunsch household to attend the Gare Business school. Paula wakes and asks for Doyle, but Miss Doty gives her a drug that puts her to sleep. She wakes at 1 in the morning and calls Doyle on the phone. Just as she gets him she sees a dark figure at the window and a shot is fired. Doyle rushes over immediately and finds that some one tried to kill Paula. Wunsch's father mumbles something incoherent about his cane.

INSTALMENT XXII.

MATCHING BULLET.

Dr. Blake went out taking Miss Doty with him.

Doyle said briskly, "We'll have to talk fast."

"It's no use now." Paula's tears were still flowing. "I don't want to talk about it.

"Yes, you do. Tell me."

"I'm too upset," she said. "I don't know what I want to do."

"You don't understand," she said. "What I was going to say to you wouldn't help. Not the way you mean."

Doyle queried anxiously. "You were going to tell me about the wrist watch, weren't you?"

She shook her head feebly. "No."

He did not heed her denial. "You were going to tell me the name of the girl who wore that watch?"

"You're wrong," she insisted. "I don't know who wore it."

"You know your husband paid for it, don't you?"

She spoke sharply, frantically. "He didn't. He didn't." Then she struggled to sit up. "I'll have to go thru with it."

She dabbed at her eyes as her tears continued to fall. Doyle couldn't decide whether she wept with fright or sorrow or just nervous reaction. It was not until later that he was to realize what dreadful grief unnerved her.

Paula's first words brought Doyle to the edge of his chair.

"I telephoned to ask how much you want?" she said.

"How much what?" Surely, he thought, he had misunderstood her.

"Money."

"For what?"

"For getting off this case."

"You mean that with your life in danger, you want me to drop the case?"

She nodded with bitter indifference.

"I see." He looked at her blandly. "But I can't drop the case. It would look queer. Judge Blain might guess I'd been bribed."

"You're on a vacation," Paula said. "You can go on pretending an interest in the case. But when your vacation ends you can just say you haven't discovered anything and go away."

"But I have discovered something." He was watching her closely, but keeping his voice low and easy, not balking her—just talking as tho he was willing enough to do what she asked, but couldn't see how to manage.

"You can forget those things," she suggested. "Just tell me how much you want. I may not be able to get it all at once, but you can trust me to pay whatever you think is fair."

Doyle shook his head ruefully. "You're just like your brother," he said. "You sure do stick your chin out." He could see she didn't have any idea what he meant, tho at the mention of Truman she winced. "Whom are you shielding, Mrs. Wunsch?"

She took refuge in silence.

"You want me to drop the case," Doyle said, "because your husband is involved in it. You're shielding him."

"No," she said, "I'm not."

"Prove it to me."

"How?"

"Tell me the name of the murdered girl."

She leaned wearily back against her pillows. "I don't know."

"It it Helen Voss?"

Now her dark eyes turned slowly to him, and she studied him for a long moment during which her tears ceased to flow. He could see that she was thinking, turning something over and over in her mind.

Then she spoke. "Md. Doyle. If you'll drop this case—now—this minute never ask another question about it—I'll give you another case to work on."

She paused, giving him a chance to speak. But when he did not, she resumed hurriedly. "This will prove to you conclusively that I am not shielding my husband. I want you to trail him. There's some woman in New York to whom he goes. Every night. Even tonight when I was so ill." Her hands twisted at the coverlet. "You get the facts. I'll pay you well. And there'll be a bonus when I get my divorce and my alimony."

"That's quite an idea," Doyle said noncommittally.

"Will you do it?"

He grinned at her. "I'm not such a fool."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because you want me to trail your husband for adultry and let him get away with murder."

"You still insist I'm shielding him," she protested. "I tell you I'm not. Would I protect a man I want to divorce? Can't you see how ridiculous that is?" She forced a laugh at the absurdity of the idea, and then she began to sob. By the time Dolye had summoned Dr. Blake, Paula was sitting up in bed screaming with laughter.

While the doctor calmed Paula, Doyle, ignoring Miss Doty's black looks, examined the elegantly furnished boudoir.

The shattered lamp engaged his attention first. It lay in splinters of porcelain and shreds of silk behind the stainwood cabinet which served as a bed table. The bullet, striking the lamp, had been deflected downward and had ploughed an ugly groove across the cabinet's inlaid top. Then it had ripped thru the wall paper and buried itself in the plaster. Doyle dug it out with his pocket knife and put it in his wallet to give to Judge Blain. A cursory examination suggested that it was strikingly similar to the bullet they had found in the woods.

Doyle stepped out on the balcony thru one of the end windows, pulling a lighted floor lamp after him as far as its cord would allow. He angled the light on the bullet hole in the center window screening. But there were no shreds of cloth or other revealing matter on the ragged ends of wire where the barrel of a gun had been pressed. Nor were there any apparent fingerprints on the window framing, nor footprints on the marble floor.

Doyle took his stand behind the center window, stuck his finger thru the punctured screening, and sighted along it. He had an unobstructed view of Paula lying on the daybed, and he could draw a nice bead on Miss Doty bending over her. It was surprising that the shot had missed its target. Mrs. Wunsch's screams must have come just as the murderer pulled the trigger, causing him to deflect his aim toward the right.

The detective adjusted the lamp light to get an idea of the extent of the balcony. He was disheartened to see that it extended right and left from Mrs. Wunsch's boudoir windows, the entire rear length of the house, overlooking the gardens.

He moved at random to the left and passed under unlighted casement windows. Then a group of three French windows opened into a bedroom, in which he could see a night lamp burning, and one of a pair of beds turned down, but not slept in. The Wunsches' bedroom, Doyle surmised.

Now more casement windows—these lighted. He decided that the casement windows, all placed above eye level, lighted bath and dressing rooms. French windows again, lighted, opening into the room with leather chairs where Wunsch had received him yesterday.

That brought him to the end of the balcony. He leaned over the balustrade and peered around the angle of the outer wall, looking down onto the glass roof of the conservatory. There was a heavy copper leader running from roof to ground. Doyle regarded it gloomily. As if there weren't enough exits and entrances to the damn balcony without his possibility.

Passing Paula's boudoir windows to the right, he came upon a series of three French windows which were dark, closed, and locked. Then casement windows, also dark. Three more French windows, dark and locked. More casements, lighted. Three French windows, open and lighted, showing a bed-sitting room, masculine in aspect. Briault's room.

Doyle went back and checked all the open French windows. Every one was screened, and the screens could not be manipulated from the balcony. Not that this meant much. No more than the locked windows did. For it would not be difficult for the murderer to raise a screen or unlock a window, step out on the balcony, take a shot at Mrs. Wunsch, run back to the room he emerged from, lock the window or lower the screen.

Then what? Why, then he'd hide the gun, of course. And rush out into the hall. That's what every one in the house had done, he was sure, when they heard the shot.

★ Your Stars Today ★

By WYNN

Thursday, Aug. 15.

Today starts well, with possibility of good ideas and solutions to problems. But by afternoon, the wise lad and lassie will settle into the old rut—avoid fast grabs at half baked notions. Avoid quarrels, contests, and showdowns.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead till next birthday can be upsetting, chaotic, limiting—or steadily, gradually opportune, depending on your willingness to change, make amends, pay off, work harder. Danger: July 24-Aug. 13; Dec. 17-28; Apr. 22-May 5, 1941.

Tomorrow.

Take it easy; avoid letting the nerves get too tight.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The present version of "The Way of All Flesh" is a remake of Paramount's original film of 1927 in which Emil Jannings was starred. The title is as misleading now as it was then, for the story has nothing to do with Samuel Butler's famous novel, and is not nearly so good.

The plot tells of an honest and virtuous bank cashier, a happy husband, and the lucky father of four idyllic children, who is sent to New York to deliver $100,000 worth of bonds. Since he carries the bonds around in his coat pocket, it is easy for an experienced siren to obtain them and turn them over to a gang of crooks.

A fortuitous circumstance makes it appear that the cashier is dead. From a safe distance, therefore, he maintains his anonymity and watches his wife grow old and his children grow up. One son becomes a great violinist, and the scene in which the unkempt old father hears his son make his New York concert debut provides a generous bath of sentiment.

While the story seems an insignificant one to have revived, it is acted reasonably well. Akim Tamiroff, in the Jannings rôle, looks well in a beard, and gives a warm, if slow paced, characterization. Gladys George plays his placid wife capably; but why are the movies forcing her into routine assignments and burying her superb gift for comedy?

The photography in the main is adequate enough, but the picture was evidently produced with one eye on the budget, for stock shots of New York scenes and obvious painted backdrops abound.

Party at Knollwood.

Following a mixed foursomes golf program at the Knollwood club this afternoon a charcoal dinner will be served. Dancing will follow.

The Housewife

You'll find it a simple matter to tenderize a steak or to cube it if you provide yourself with a gadget made especially for both purposes. It is shaped like a hammer with a sturdy wooden handle. The head part has a steel pounder or tenderizer on one side and on the other are tiny sharp knives that are pushed out when you whack it down on the meat. This cubes the steak for you. This convenient item is of stainless steel and is reasonably priced.

WILMETTE

WILMETTE Op. 1:

Pageant Tells Story of Negro Career Women

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Contributions of Negro women to the progress of their race found eloquent illustration in the Career Woman's day yesterday at the American Negro exposition in the Coliseum.

From the old time mammy, called by a young college-bred Negro woman "the first link uniting two great families of the human race," to Jane Bolin, who last year was appointed judge of the Federal court in New York, the story of Negro women was told by the women themselves.

Dr. Mary G. Evans, pastor of the Cosmopolitan People's Community church, opened the day's program. Willia G. Brown, woman aviator, and women in a dozen other professions and occupations also spoke. A fashion show illustrated activities of Negro women in that field.

A pageant, written and staged by Mrs. Theodore F. Crawley, University of Illinois graduate, dramatized the story of Negro women from Phillis Wheatley, 18th century poetess, to Marion Anderson. The NYA singers, Chicagoland Music Festival winners, provided a musical accompaniment.

The story was told, too, in exhibits. The National Council of Negro Women displayed in its booth the first college diploma granted to a Negro woman, Mary Jane Patterson, who was graduated from Oberlin college in 1862. Stunning statues by Augusta Savage, Negro sculptress, flanked the entrance to this booth.

Here, too, was exhibited a roster of distinguished Negro women, among them, Sara Loguen, who received a medical diploma from Syracuse university in 1876; Harriet Tubman, scout for the Union army; Sojourner Truth, pioneer suffragist; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, founder and president of Bethune-Cookman college and founder of the National Council of Negro Women, and Mrs. Maudelle Bousfield, principal of Phillips High school in Chicago.

Tall, handsome Mrs. Etta Moten Barnett, one of the hostess committee, who sang "The Carioca" in the motion picture, "Flying Down to Rio," led the way to the art exhibit. Elizabeth Catlett, young student of sculpture under Grant Wood, had won first place in the show with her smoothly chiseled "Negro Mother and Child."

The day was a highlight of Woman's week at the exposition, dedicated not to the Marion Andersons of the race, but "to the unknown woman of all time who dreams her dreams, keeps faith with her ideals, and carves her destiny out of whatever life offers.

"We phrased that dedication to include all women, white as well as Negro, who have worked and struggled to help our people," explained Mrs. Wendell E. Green, chairman of Woman's week. It was Mrs. Green who, on 10 days' notice, organized a sponsoring committee of 1,000 women.

Vivacious, smartly gowned Mrs. Green herself is a former president of the Douglas League of Women Voters. She has done post graduate work in social science at the University of Chicago, and is active on the inter-racial committees of the Chicago Church federation and the Woman's City club. Her husband, a lawyer, is on the city civil service commission.

Careful Handling Necessary in Case of Young Smoker

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Quit smoking! Hey! Step on it, it's still burning." Then, in a whisper: "Dad took me out in the garage and whipped me last week when he missed some cigarets out of his box and found I'd taken them."

And the three 15 year olds sauntered nonchalantly into father, looking so innocent that butter wouldn't have melted in their mouths!

Smoking is just one more thing with which young people want to experiment. Besides, it gives them that grownup feeling. At the same time that we understand this, we still don't want them to acquire the smoking habit, provided they are going to acquire it before they get their growth. So what are we going to do about it?

I'm not going to attempt to give any specific advice, since parents differ on this subject and my way would not work for all of them. But one fundamental suggestion I am going to offer. It is this: Whatever you do, avoid handling this thing so that your boy defies you, or deceives you, which is even worse.

Avoid threatening. Avoid commanding him. Keep things open and above board between you.

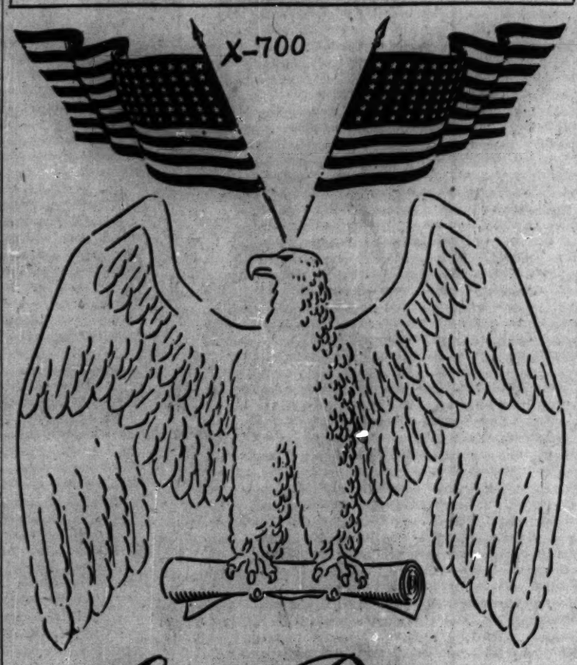
American Eagle Embroidered



God Bless ★AMERICA★

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here is a new and unusual bit of embroidery that every loyal American should have in his home. Our American eagle makes an ideal wall hanging, serves as a pillow top, or may be used as the emblem in the center of a fire screen. The hot iron transfer pattern includes detailed illustrations and the design measures approximately 14 by 17 inches when completed.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the American eagle, No. X-700, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I held the following hand during a recent game of rubber bridge and made a small bet which is to be decided by you.

♠AK10954 ♥AQ1064 ♦A7 ♣—

"My partner's hand was:

♠8 ♥K975 ♦KJ1065 ♣974

"The bidding [both sides vulnerable] was as follows:

I	PARTNER
2 spades	3 no trump
3 hearts	5 hearts
7 hearts	Pass

"A high club was opened, which I trumped. I led the ace and a small spade, trumping in dummy, entered my hand with the ace of diamonds, and led a third spade, next hand playing the jack. I suspected that the spades were split, but trumped with the king and then led a heart, and as the suit broke, my hand was solid. Will you please criticize both bidding and play? E. H., Chicago."

The final contract was excellent, altho it was arrived at rather deviously. I have no fault to find with the opening two spade bid, altho it was somewhat on the light side, but North had the values for a positive response, three diamonds. North compensated for his actual weak response by jumping to five hearts on the next round, but even so, South had to strain considerably to go to a grand slam. This would have been a far sounder bid on South's part if North had previously mentioned the diamond suit.

But while criticism of the bidding can be only moderately severe, and academic at that, declarer's play cannot be let off so lightly. True, he made the contract, but largely [as he himself points out] because the heart suit broke beautifully. Suppose this had been the entire layout:

Actually, since my correspondent trumped the third round of spades with the heart king, it would not have taken this 4-0 break of trumps to defeat him. A quite likely 3-1 break might have been equally fatal. For purposes of thoro analysis, however, let us assume that all four trumps were in the West hand [as shown in this diagram], and it will be observed that extreme pains and care must be taken by declarer to give himself the best possible chance. After he ruffs the opening lead of the club king his best and safest line of play is to cash one spade honor, then ruff a low spade with one of dummy's low trumps. He should reënter his hand with a low trump to the ace. If East shows out, it is obvious that no more spades can be ruffed, since dummy's K-9 of hearts are vital to the picking up of West's jack. But, it must be noted, declarer is still a long way from being defeated on this hand; in fact, he still has two excellent strings in his bow. He should go about his business finessing against and picking up West's heart jack, then should lay down his other high spade honor in the hope that the suit was originally split 3-3.

West's failure to follow the third round destroys this chance, and then declarer is forced to fall back on his last hope. That, of course, is to lay down the diamond ace and finesse against the queen on the one remaining chance that the diamond suit can be brought home solidly. The crucial point is that declarer must not get himself into a position where he must depend on the heart jack conveniently dropping on the second round of the suit.

The old earl of Sandwich gets all the credit for inventing the food named after him, but if he hadn't liked meat between slices of bread, somebody else would have set the sandwich custom, I'm sure. It seems quite natural to combine meat or some other good filling with bread to make an edible which may be eaten conveniently with the fingers.

The famous earl probably would snort contemptuously at the modern party sandwich, a dainty, two-bite concoction dear to the hearts of tea and cocktail partygoers. But he would approve these family style luncheon sandwiches, served with the crusts left on the bread.

HEARTY LUNCHEON SANDWICHES.

Use sandwich bread when possible. White, whole wheat, cracked wheat, rye, cheese-flavored and other plain breads make the best sandwiches. Raisin, cinnamon, nutbread, and other of the fancier breads make better party sandwiches than everyday ones, but are good with sweet or bland fillings.

1—MUSHROOM SANDWICHES: Slice fresh mushrooms into a little melted butter in a skillet and sauté two or three minutes, until lightly browned. Chop or grind, and season with salt and pepper. Use on bread which has been spread on one side with olive sandwich filling, and on the other with butter. A lettuce leaf may be included in each sandwich. The mushrooms may be left in slices, if desired.

2—RADISH AND CUCUMBER SANDWICHES: Call these "health sandwiches" if you like. Spread whole wheat bread with butter, add a lettuce leaf, then cover all over with sliced crisp radishes and crisp cucumber slices. Add a little thinly sliced green onion, if you like. Sprinkle with salt and put the sandwich together with a small amount of mayonnaise. Don't make these sandwiches too far ahead of time or they'll lose their crispness, which is their greatest appeal.

3—CHEESE AND CHIPPED BEEF: Chop chipped beef finely and mix with cream cheese. Season with horseradish and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Add a lettuce leaf and put the sandwich together with a slice of white and a slice of whole wheat bread.

4—HAM AND WATERCRESS: Butter the two slices of bread and cover each rather thickly with chopped watercress. Put together with a ham salad spread.

5—SLICED TONGUE SANDWICH: Use canned tongue or boiled tongue. Slice it thinly and cover a slice of buttered bread. Spread lightly with horseradish, add a leaf of lettuce, and put together with a mayonnaise covered second bread slice.

One Tailored, One Dressy

TWO DRESSES FOR GIRLS.

Two moods are expressed in the duet of patterns today. Both are designed for the subdeb, but one is tailored and the other rather dressy. The jumper may be made of woolen or silk, preferably in a small check, and the blouse with narrow bows may be of silk or cotton. It's a grand school costume. The other dress, with its contrasting collar and huge bow, has interesting pocket detail on the skirt and puffed sleeves, the cuffs of which match the collar.

Style No. 3192 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires ⅞ yard of 39 inch material for blouse; 1¼ yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Style No. 3401 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 35 inch material, with ¾ yard of contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

WILSON'S Weekly MEMO by GEORGE RECTOR

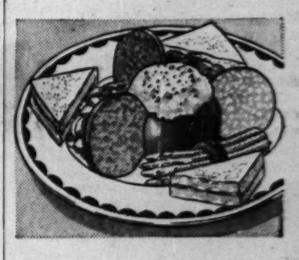
The hot days of August are known as the dog days. To my way of thinking, it would be more appropriate to call them the "hot dog days," as this is just the time of year when one most appreciates Wilson's Certified Frankfurters for picnics, week-end outings or quickly prepared family dinners. Use mustard-lined buns for "kennels," of course!

George Rector
Food Consultant
Wilson & Co.

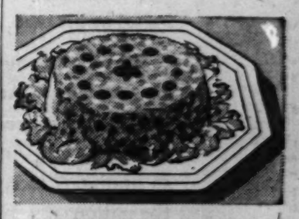


All-Sorts Luncheon Plate

For this delightfully appealing luncheon or supper plate, at least three kinds of Wilson's Certified Ready-to-Serve Sausages are needed. Certified Bologna, Cervelat and Liver Sausage make a good trio but there are many other kinds from which to choose, all made of fine quality meats and perfectly seasoned with pure, wholesome spices.

EASY TO FIX

For each serving, cut a small section from the top of a firm, ripe tomato and heap with cottage cheese, sprinkle the top with chopped chives. Make 3 incisions in side of the tomato and insert a slice of Wilson's Certified Ready-to-Eat Sausage in each. This will leave 3 vacant places on the plate. In one, place a mound of potato salad; in the second, a bunch of asparagus tips put through a pimiento ring, and in the last, an assortment of appetizers such as ripe and stuffed olives and a couple of radishes. Place bread and butter sandwich triangles opposite each slice of sausage to complete the whole-meal plate.



VACATION SALAD

Here is a quickly prepared salad that is substantial enough to take the place of a hot meat course on a sizzling August day. Simply dice enough Wilson's Tender Made Ham to make 2 cupfuls. (It is ready to serve just as you buy it—no cooking, no shrinkage, and so tender you can actually cut it with a fork.) Combine ham with 1 cup of canned or fresh diced pineapple and ¾ cup chopped celery. A 3½ oz. jar of Wilson's Certified Boneless Chicken is a splendid addition, but not essential. Mix with ½ cup of Wilson's Savory Mayonnaise and pack salad in a bowl or plain mold and chill for at least an hour. Turn out on lettuce leaves and pour ¾ cup of Wilson's Savory Mayonnaise evenly over salad. Garnish with slices of ripe and green olives.

Russian Dressing

Combine ½ pint jar of Wilson's Savory Salad Dressing with ¼ cup chili sauce, 2 tablespoons Wilson's Certified Tender Made Deviled Ham, 2 tablespoons of celery, finely minced, and 1 pimiento, minced. This makes 1½ cups of dressing that is simply delicious on chilled tomatoes, combination salad or grapefruit and orange salad.

"It is for us, the living..."

AROUND THIS GIANT, brooding figure of Lincoln, in the month of August, 1940, the men and women who have inherited his great Republic stand in silence as deep and meaningful as his own.

For the Lincoln Memorial is America's most moving shrine. And here, under the spell of a personality so great that its living presence can almost be felt, Americans are rereading words as luminous today as in that other day when the nation was so gravely endangered.

"It is for us, the living, rather, to be here dedicated to that unfinished work... to the great task remaining before us... that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

▶ It is a touchstone... that marble wall with its inscription. It reveals character, purpose, and attitude in everyone who stands before it.

You catch a fragment of talk between a young man and an older woman...

"Gee, mother, a fellow should be glad to do something at a time like this!"

"Just the same—I can't bear to think of you as a soldier! Our only son."

• • •

Yet six months from now, if her boy goes into training, that mother will have forgotten that she ever grudged his service to her country.

The boy will come home from camp a man ...with the self-reliance, the responsibility, the understanding of his fellows that make a man, and a leader of men.

She herself will have found a way to give service of her own. And she will discover, as a great American philosopher long ago pointed out, that what the human soul wants most in this world is the opportunity for loyalty.

▶ What will bring about this change of attitude—this victory of strength over weakness, of the greater loyalty over the lesser? Events? The example of others? The acts and words of great public men?... Partly.

But high among the list of influences that are turning passive patriotism into active loyalty are the country's more farsighted newspapers.

Consider this question of military training in peacetime. Public-opinion polls show that a majority of Americans believe it necessary. But no other part of our defense program quite so urgently needs universal support—a speed-up of the usual democratic process by which the minority is converted to the viewpoint of the majority.

This is where most of the nation's newspapers are doing, and will continue to do, a great job. Not by editorials primarily—nor by any "coloring" of the news. Simply by digging out all the essential facts and telling them...

▶ Reporting the extent and immediacy of the national peril—and so dispelling the complacency which has been the ruin of so many other free nations...

Reporting the number of trained men needed to make, service, and operate the war machines we have ordered—and thus getting rid of the dangerous notion that we can defend ourselves with machines alone...

Reporting the government's many-sided projects for housing, feeding, training, doctoring and distributing its brand-new soldiers.

"With us," wrote Lincoln to a friendly Frenchman, in 1862, "every soldier is a man of character, and must be treated with more consideration than is customary in Europe."

It is still true today. The three-fold task before the press is to show us that Uncle Sam will take care of the boys the best he knows how; that their talents and abilities will be used with as little disruption as possible of normal civilian lives and careers; that if war comes, they will be far safer trained than untrained.

▶ To the Weekly Newsmagazine, the manpower element in defense seems of the most crucial and urgent importance. And whether recruiting is on a volunteer or a conscription basis, as soon as it begins in earnest, TIME will present to the nation an organized week-by-week report on progress.

▶ In TIME's new department—National Defense—the converting of civilians into soldiers will be examined, checked, and totalled as often as it is practical to do so. Nor will TIME's report stop with mere numbers. It will probe, impartially and thoroughly, the caliber of their training—and pass its conclusions along to you.

Men and machines; machines and men. In a modern war, one is useless without the other. TIME will keep an eye on both...will, as always, tell the truths gathered by the world's best reporters about this issue which is so vital to the lives and liberties of all of us.

In these days of crisis, the free press is more than ever a vital force in making our democracy a living, working success. Therefore, TIME is seeking, in this series of advertisements, to give all the readers of this newspaper a clearer picture of what the press in general, and TIME in particular, are doing to keep the people of this nation safe, strong, free, and united.

WHITE SOX GET ONE HIT; LOSE TO INDIANS, 4-0

ALL-STARS' SMOOTH AIR ATTACK THREATENS PACKERS

COACHES PRAISE RECEIVING SKILL OF KAVANAUGH

L. S. U. End Called Hutson's Match.

Bandsmen, Attention!

COLLEGE musicians on vacation in Chicagoland who wish to join the All-Star band for the ceremonies between halves of the game between the All-Americans and Green Bay Packers, Aug. 29, are requested to write immediately to G. Cliffe Balnum, Fisk hall, Northwestern university, Evanston. Mr. Balnum is especially anxious to hear from former members of the All-Star band.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Lightning sometimes does strike twice in the same place.

In 1937 it was Gaynell Tinsley, fleet Louisiana State end, who grabbed Sammy Baugh's forward pass and scampered thru the Green Bay secondary defense to whip the Packers, 6 to 0, in the annual All-Star battle with the professional champions.

On Aug. 29 the Packers again come to Soldiers' field. They will meet another Louisiana State end, Ken Kavanaugh, who, according to the All-Star coaches and fans who have seen him in action, is every bit the ball hawk that Tinsley was three years ago.

The Baugh to Tinsley aerial combination whipped the Packers once. Nile Kinnick to Kavanaugh may do it again.

Convinced of Kavanaugh's Ability.

Those who have watched the double daily practice sessions in Dyche stadium are convinced that Kavanaugh also will match the expert pass receiving of Green Bay's star, Don Hutson. There also seems to be no question that Kavanaugh is a better defensive end.

"Kavanaugh can grab any ball thrown in his direction," Lowell [Red] Dawson, Tulane coach, a member of the All-Star staff, said yesterday. Dawson knows Kavanaugh's ability from experiences in the annual L. S. U.-Tulane scraps.

"Ends either are born with uncanny ability to judge a pass, or they don't have it," Dawson continued. "The ability to change position and direction and the agility to come out of a group of defenders with the ball mark Kavanaugh's work. He is every bit as good a pass receiver as Hutson—and that leaves the result of the passing battle up to the accuracy of the All-Star throwers."

On Fire in Practice Sessions.

Kavanaugh is quiet and unassuming off the field, but in the practice periods he has the dash and fire so typical of the air game developed in southern universities. He played left end for Louisiana State for three years and his height—6 feet 4 inches—and his weight and speed—he's 203 pounds and runs like a sprinter altho he never competed in track—are sufficient reasons for his stardom.

Last fall Kavanaugh scored nine touchdowns. Not all were results of passes thrown by his back field mates. Twice he intercepted enemy tosses to score. He doesn't recall how many yards these touchdown runs totaled, but he is certain they added up to a lot of fun.

Ben Erie was Kavanaugh's line coach at L. S. U. and Bernie Moore, head coach, is a former member of the All-Star coaching groups. Moore was on the 1937 staff headed by Gus Dorais of Detroit.

Hutson His Prep Days Hero.

Kavanaugh comes from Little Rock, Ark., where he starred at end under the coaching of E. F. Quigley. Pine Bluff, Ark., which is Don Hutson's home, is only 90 miles away. Hutson was Kavanaugh's hero during his high school days.

"Hutson's senior year at Alabama was my last year in high school," Kavanaugh recalled yesterday. He added that he looked forward to the game with the Packers since it will

Feathers, Laws Join Forces to Beat All-Stars

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 14.—Six years ago in Soldiers' field two little half backs dug in against the huge Chicago Bear line and twice penetrated within twelve yards of the professionals' goal in the first Chicago Tribune All-Star game in 1934.

Today these two backs, Beattie Feathers of Tennessee and Joe Laws of Iowa were together again in a back field combination with every indication that they might be starters in an All-Star game once more when the Green Bay Packers meet the collegians on Soldiers' field, Aug. 29.

Packers Take Two Drills.

Laws and Feathers, who first teamed as starting half backs in the 1934 East-West game, then led THE TRIBUNE'S first nation-wide poll, were placed in a back field with Full Back Clark Hinkle and Bob Adkins, rookie blocking back from Marshall college, as the Packers engaged in two drills today, preparatory to the first intra-squad game Friday night. With Don Hutson, veteran Packer end, they will be the only players who will have participated in three Chicago All-Star games.

Feathers is a newcomer to Packer ranks. He was signed as a free agent after he had been released by Brooklyn to which he was traded by the Bears in 1938. He is not a stranger to the world champions, however, for it was against them that he piled up much of his yardage as a Bear rookie in 1934 when he set an all-time National league record for ground gained in one season. Following in the wake of Bronko Nagurski, one of football's greatest blockers, the former Tennessee sprint champion gained 1,056 yards that year.

Relies on Ex-All-Stars.

Placing him in a back field with Hinkle and Laws indicates that Coach Curley Lambeau plans to rely heavily on former All-Stars in the Chicago

Green Bay's Packers never lack for talent. This trio is expected to cause the All-Stars plenty of trouble the night of Aug. 29 in Soldiers' field. HOLD INQUEST TODAY IN DEATH OF HOLLOCHER

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 14 (AP).—Coroner John O'Connell announced an inquest will be held tomorrow in the death of Charles J. Hollocher, former captain and shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, whose body with a bullet wound in the neck, was found lying beside his automobile here early today.

Constable Arthur C. Mosley said a new shotgun, which he learned Hollocher had bought Tuesday from a mail order store, was under the former ball player's arm and a note found on the dashboard of the car said: "Call Mrs. Ruth Hollocher."

Mrs. Hollocher told authorities her husband had complained lately of severe abdominal pains.

After six years with the Cubs, Hollocher left the team in 1923 without notifying his manager, altho he was captain and apparently at the height of his career. He complained of ill health, but his departure aroused considerable comment at the time.

With the exception of the 1931 season when he was a scout for the Cubs, Hollocher remained out of baseball and made his home in St. Louis. He had been working recently as a theater watchman and investigator for the St. Louis county prosecuting attorney.

Colored Racing Driver Is Fatally Injured in Crash

Matthew Millard, 25 years old, 649 East 50th street, colored, a racing driver, was fatally injured last night when his midget racing car overturned during a contest at Raceway park, 129th street and Ashland avenue.

HAMBLETONIAN IS CAPTURED BY SPENCER SCOTT

Wins $23,077 in Straight Heats; Remus 2d.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP).—The hard luck man of trotting finally broke his jinx today.

After finishing in the money in 10 of 12 Hambletonians, barely missing out on two of them, Fred Egan, Lexington, Ky., veteran, drove C. W. Phellis' Spencer Scott of Greenwich, Conn., to a straight-heat victory in trotting's most famous stake.

With 30,000 looking on in Good Time park, the son of Scotland stepped off the first mile in 2:02 and the second in 2:03 to justify his position as favorite. He won like a champion, taking the lead soon after the start in each heat and setting the pace all the way.

Uses Whip Near Finish.

Egan was forced to go to the whip both times to finish in front of the fast-closing Remus, and Kuno, champion juvenile of 1939. Remus, owned by Paul Bowser of Boston, Bill Dickerson of Goshen, and his trainer-driver, Harry Short of Columbus, O., trailed by a half length in the first heat and a full length in the second.

Kuno, flying the silks of Dunbar Bostwick, polo star of Westbury, Long Island, was a half length back of Remus in the opening test and a length and a half behind in the second.

The crowd played Spencer heavily in the first heat, and backed him still more in the second test and in the result pool. He paid only $3.40 for $2 in the result pool and $3.30 in winning the second mile, after returning $5.10, $5.40, and $4.20 across the board in the opening dash.

Victory Worth $23,077.15.

Phellis, retired chemist and one of the country's foremost trap shooters, received $23,077.15, the winner's share of the richest Hambletonian in eight years. The value of the race was $43,658.45. Remus' owners split $8,391.69 and Bostwick pocketed $5,035.01 for Kuno's performance.

The other three money awards went to Queen Victoria, Bill Strang's New York-owned filly, which finished fourth and seventh in the respective heats; Mrs. Edith Mix's Princess Pert of Sherbourne, N. Y., with a fourth and ninth, and Joseph Neville's Milestone of Delaware, O., which was sixth in the first heat and fifth in the last. Nine competed.

Wagering for the day and the Hambletonian broke all parimutuel betting records for light harness racing in New York state. A total of $91,421 passed thru the machines on the nine races. Of this amount $42,368 was wagered on the Hambletonian. The Hambletonian society also announced it had awarded the stake to Good Time park for another five years. It was first raced over this triangular track in 1930.

CONN AND PASTOR BOUT POSTPONED FOR ANOTHER DAY

New York, Aug. 14 [Special].—The Billy Conn-Bob Pastor fight, postponed last night, was set today for Sept. 6 in Madison Square Garden, instead of Sept. 5 as originally announced. The change was made to avoid possible conflict with an All-Star football game in the Polo Grounds Sept. 4. In the event of rain, the football game can be postponed until Sept. 5.

Altho the Conn-Pastor postponement has disarranged his plans, Promoter Mike Jacobs has not abandoned hope of presenting a heavyweight title fight before the outdoor season ends. He still is considering the possibility of an October date with Conn, Pastor, or Pat Comiskey fighting Joe Louis and expects to decide this week.

How temporal sunshine;

The heart can obtain
A century's sunshine
To lighten the rain.

And in a second
The soul can extract
Enough of life's goodness
From hideous fact

To carry it gayly
O'er earth's barren sod:
Eternal these moments
We're granted by God.

WEBB SINGLES OFF AL SMITH IN THIRD INNING

Chicago Slips to 5th; 59,068 See Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14.—The White Sox, unwillingly of course, made another contribution tonight to the pennant cause of Oscar Vitt's rebels, otherwise known as the Indians. Baffled for the fourth time this season by Al [Lefty] Smith, the Chicagoans escaped the embarrassment of a no-hit game by one single. They tumbled back into the second division of the American league by a few points before 59,068, the largest crowd in night baseball history. The score was 4 to 0.

By losing, the Sox traded places with the oncoming Yankees, who took fourth place by half a game.

While one member of the vast Smith family, Al by name, incidentally cast out of the National league because of a sore arm which eventually healed, was fabricating his 13th victory under the Municipal stadium bulbs, another left handed Smith was having his troubles. It was Edgar, the Chicago southpaw who, while not hit freely, permitted enough distance to get into some of the enemy's six blows that he never had a chance to dodge being whipped for the fifth time this year by the first placers.

One Chicagoan Reaches Third.

The Sox, who thru four straight games had enjoyed running wild on the bases and winning at the same time, didn't even have a chance to run tonight. Cleveland Smitty not only was stingy about hits, but about pitching gratuities. He walked only one man, who was promptly smothered in a double play. Two other Chicagoans survived because of errors, one just prior to the lone hit, of which Jim Webb was the author in the third inning. The hit sent Bob Kennedy, beneficiary of one of the errors, to third and he was the only visitor to reach that station.

Al Smith.

Edgar Smith, as it turned out, was sufficiently jostled in the first inning to absorb a beating. That Lou Boudreau fellow who helped to annihilate the barrel chested southpaw recently in Chicago, got in only one blow tonight, but it meant something. He tripled with a mate on base in the first inning and scored on an error by Webb. The other big punch came in the third, when Roy Weatherly boomed a homer to right in the wake of a pass.

Boudreau Gets Busy.

The Chicago Smith's first inning ceased being a success after he fanned Ben Chapman, who led off. Weatherly had two strikes before he bashed a single into center. Boudreau arched his triple beyond Mike Kreevich's reach in right center, Weatherly scoring. Boudreau also went right on home when Webb's relay of the throw-in sailed high over Bob Kennedy's head. Hal Trosky and Beau Bell were retired easily.

The Sox didn't get a man to base until one was out in the third when Boudreau sent a bouncing throw to Trosky on Kennedy's grounder. Trosky isn't talented in handling such items and Boudreau was assessed an error. E. Smith flied out, Webb singled over short for the only hit off A. Smith and Kreevich lined to Boudreau. The home third brought more grief to Chicago Smitty in the 800 Play Over Medinah Courses in Showers.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A. N. [Al] Andersen, a former champion of the home club, led a caravan of 800 golfers over the three courses yesterday at Medinah in the 13th annual Camel Trail, largest of all established American invitation golf tournaments. Playing No. 3 course, Andersen splashed his way around thru intermittent showers in 38—37—75, four above par.

It also remained for other former Medinah title holders to head the big parade over courses 1 and 2. Elmer A. Kurzka, a mite of a golfer with a healthy swing, led on No. 1 with 40—36—76, while Dave Adams, a veteran, toured No. 2 in 39—39—78.

SHOT PUT BREAKS 2¾ MILE RECORD IN LUCIEN LYNE

Beats Cheick Rama by 10 Lengths; Temulac 3d.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Washington Park continued its revival of distance racing with yesterday's Lucien Lyne handicap, and Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put strengthened his bid for supremacy in this type of competition by setting a North American record. He finished the two and three quarter mile event in 4 minutes, 48 4-5 seconds, getting home 10 lengths in advance of his nearest rival, Lexbrook Stable's Cheick Rama. Mrs. G. B. Scallon's Temulac was third, six lengths farther back.

Shot Put's performance was all the more impressive because he was carrying top weight of 126 pounds. The previous record of 4:50 3-5 was set by Just Right, a 6 year old, carrying only 94 pounds. It was made at Tia Juana March 1, 1925. Shot Put is a 4 year old.

This was the third of a series of distance events, graduated in length, which are run on successive Wednesdays. Two weeks ago Shot Put finished third to Misrule at a mile and a half. When the route was increased to two miles and a quarter last Wednesday, Shot Put won by three lengths.

Four Miles to Be Climax.

The distance will be stepped up to three and three-eighths miles next Wednesday. It will be the first time since 1876 that a race at this distance has been run on an American track. The following week, the series will be climaxed by an event called the Marathon championship handicap at four miles.

Shot Put was the favorite in yesterday's betting, returning $5.40, $3.40, and $2.60 for win, place, and show. Tho several of his six rivals came out of the race in considerable distress, Shot Put didn't seem a bit unduly fatigued as he trotted back to the judges' stand.

Court Counsel, a 4 year old colt which has been out of the money only twice in his last nine starts, has been running under such a variety of colors lately that it's a wonder he's able to recognize himself. But he ke

GIANTS, BEES DIVIDE.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 14 (AP).—King Carl Hubbell was the peerless one again today, pitching the Giants to a 12 inning, 5 hit, 1 to 0 victory in the first game of a double header. Manuel Salvo, a Giant castoff, beat his old mates in the second game, 6 to 0, as he scattered eight hits. Melvin Ott, who had been benched for not hitting, stepped in as a pinch hitter in the 12th of the second game, singled, was sacrificed to second and went home on Frank Demaree's single.

Report Indians Plan New Move Against Vitt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14.—The Indians, who recently petitioned Owner Alva Bradley to hoist Manager Oscar Vitt out of his job, are reported to be making preparations to hit the warpath again.

Aroused over losing three out of five at St. Louis over the weekend, the Indians are reported to have another delegation ready to visit the owner, Alva Bradley, who may or may not listen to the malcontents. Information from the rebels' headquarters indicates they want Catcher Rollie Hemsley named in Vitt's place. Coach Luke Sewell is said to have the boys expressing a preference for him. Both Bradley and Vitt denied a report that the latter would step out at the end of the season.

Thornton Lee, who has two Indian scalps on his 1940 belt, will seek a third tomorrow when the Sox meet the Indians in the series final at League park. Al Milnar will work for the first players.

White Sox Get One Hit; Lose to Indians, 4 to 0

The Chicago Smitty was shaken up a bit in the fourth. After Bell had popped to Webb, Kennedy perpetrated a garden variety of fumble on Ken Keltner's bounder, but in behalf of the Indians' batting averages the scorer termed it a hit. Roy Mack then flied to Kreevich and Rollie Hemsley drove Keltner to third by doubling down the left field line. But Cleveland Smitty flied to Julius Solters, who returned to action tonight after a three week absence because of a leg injury.

The second Chicagoan to reach base encountered his piece of luck with none out in the fifth. He was Taft Wright, who drew a walk but his stay on base was short. Mike Tresh struck out and Kennedy grounded to Boudreau for a double play. The Sox continued to drop in order until after Tom Turner, batting for E. Smith in the ninth, popped to Keltner. Then Webb flied to Bell, but Weatherly cruised into the right fielder and knocked the ball from his hands. Webb went to second on Bell's excusable error, but Kreevich flied to Chapman, and Joe Kuhel ended the game with a tap to Trosky.

The Indians' last hit showed up in the eighth when Chapman singled to right. He was rubbed out on Weatherly's double play grounder to Webb.

COLORED NINES DUE TOMORROW; PLAN WORKOUTS

Members of the two colored squads which will play Sunday afternoon in Comiskey park in the eighth annual East-West game will arrive tomorrow morning for preliminary drill.

The East team, comprising stars of the Negro National league under the management of Felton Snow of Baltimore, will attempt to tie the series at four victories each. The West squad, made up of players from the Negro American league, went ahead last year by winning, 4 to 2. Andy Cooper of the Kansas City Monarchs is the West's manager.

It is expected that the pitching assignments for the first three innings will go to Hilton Smith of Kansas City for the West and Ray Brown of the Pittsburgh Homestead Grays for the East. Smith pitched three perfect innings in last year's game. Brown has been brilliant all season and at one time had a winning streak of eight in a row.

Other pitchers on the West squad, all new to the annual game, are Randy Bowe of the Chicago American Giants, Lefty Calhoun of the St. Louis Stars, Jimmy Johnson of the Toledo Crawfords, Red Howard of the Birmingham Black Barons, and Gene Bremer of the Memphis Red Sox.

Football Dodgers Get Cassiano, Pittsburgh Star

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 14 (AP).—Coach Jock Sutherland, preparing the Brooklyn football Dodgers for the National Professional league season, announced today the Dodgers had obtained Dick Cassiano, University of Pittsburgh back of last year. Cassiano was picked up in the draft by the Green Bay Packers. The Dodgers get him for cash and by giving the Packers the rights to one player on the Brooklyn draft list for next season. Cassiano is in Evanston, Ill., training with the College All-Stars, who will play the Green Bay Packers in Chicago Aug. 29.

Rested Cubs Are Ready for Reds Today

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The weary Cubs, who can hardly wait to get at their off-season hunting and fishing, now have rested two of the three days they have been home. Thus strengthened after the fatigue that has held them to a grand total of nine runs in their last half dozen games, the lads expect to tear into the league leading Cincinnati Reds this afternoon with irresistible fury. At least Mr. P. K. Wrigley has been promised by his board of strategy that everything is going to be all right.

If the Cubs should happen to lose this afternoon, despite the rest which they got yesterday due to a rainout, they will have two chances to do better tomorrow. There will be a double header tomorrow between the Reds and Cubs. Today's Cub pitcher will be Claude Passeau. The Reds will use Whitey Moore.

The Cubs had no double headers scheduled when they returned home Monday and the one tomorrow in a way is an unhappy one, for the boys may be all tired again Saturday and Sunday, when the Pirates arrive for a weekend series. The Pirates, who kicked the Cubs out of the first division in Pittsburgh last Sunday by taking a double header, are hustling like everything, almost to the point of being unethical, according to the Cubs.

The Nerve of Those Pirates.

The Cubs hustled against the Brooklyn Dodgers recently, but they announced they were going to only because they were mad at the Dodgers. The Pirates, it is pointed out, have no reason to be angry with the Cubs, which makes the Pirates' eagerness as mysterious as it is objectionable, according to the Cub philosophy.

The foregoing lines are written in no spirit of sarcasm. We don't blame the Cubs for becoming weary at having to play day after day with no chance at the pennant. Fighting for a place in the first division is no incentive for the Cubs, who, as we've mentioned several times, have not been out of the first division since 1925.

We get weary just sitting and watching the Cubs. Being a fair-minded fellow, we can understand why the athletes, who must watch the games with exercising in addition, should become bored. It's easy enough to holler at fellows because they don't bust blood vessels for good old Gabby and good old Clarence [Rowland], but just put on a uniform and get out there in that hot sun yourself, we always say.

They're Nice Fellows.

All good Cub fans in this dark hour should remember the glorious days of other years. When the Cubs of other seasons had a goal they gave their all to attain it. If they had had no goal those great Cub teams might have looked as bad as the 1940 one.

There isn't a mean fellow on the present squad. There is no dissension and no sneaky business of any kind. In 15 years we never have traveled with any finer group of young baseball gentlemen than the present Cubs. We feel rather futile writing about the efforts of a Cub team trying to stay out of sixth place but not enough so to join the National Guard.

We are inclined to be tolerant and wish for the best. And we urge fans who have been showering us with a postcard every few days to quit being so bitter. A team can't win 'em all, we say.

16 DIE IN FLOODS ON DIXIE COAST; DAMAGE HEAVY

Heavy Rains Send Rivers Up in 4 States.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 14 (AP).—Rampaging rivers wrought death and destruction today in four southern states.

Abnormally heavy rainfall in the wake of a hurricane that battered the South Carolina-Georgia coast Sunday sent the swift streams swirling out of their banks, washing out highways and bridges, destroying lowland crops and causing millions of dollars damage to industrial plants along their banks and driving hundreds of persons from their homes.

At least 16 deaths were attributed to the floods. North Carolina counted two drownings and four deaths in landslides. Three drownings were reported near Galax, Va.; three near Elizabethton, Tenn., and three near Augusta, Ga. A Negro woman near Augusta died of a heart attack when she learned that the flood waters were approaching her home.

City Water Supply Low.

A 100 foot washout of Asheville's principal water main forced this tourists' mecca of 51,000 to use sparingly water from a single reservoir. Officials expressed confidence that the line could be repaired by tomorrow and that the reservoir would provide sufficient water until then.

North Wilkesboro, industrial mountain town of 4,000 about 125 miles northeast, apparently was the hardest hit. The flooded Yadkin river, which rose to record heights, swept over streets and damaged 14 industrial plants. Two burned as the water rose about them. The town, isolated, was without water, light, or telephone facilities.

Fear Others Drowned.

Property damage there was estimated at $2,000,000, and Mayor R. P. McNeill said for Wilkes county as a whole it probably would reach $10,000,000. He said 500 were homeless and 2,500 out of work.

Landslides blocked highways all over the mountain area. Two persons were crushed to death in two slides near Boone.

TRAIN HITS TRUCK IN WHEATON; TWO MEN ARE KILLED

Two men in a truck were killed yesterday when their truck was struck by a North Western passenger train at the College avenue crossing in Wheaton. The victims were Lloyd Terry and Harry Hamm of nearby Warrenville, WPA workers.

Melvin Nelson, 8 years old, died in Sherman hospital in Elgin after being struck by an automobile in front of the farm home of his father, Ernest Nelson, two miles north of Lake Zurich on United States route 12. The driver was Robert D. Helms, 23, of Rollins, Mich.

Adolph Czyeka, 41 years old, of New Lenox, a deaf mute, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile driven by August Long of Manhattan, Will county. The accident occurred on the Manhattan-New Lenox road five miles east of Joliet.

John Zyganda, 73 years old, of 1517 Cortland street, died in the North Avenue hospital last night several hours after he was struck by an automobile at North and Ashland avenues. The driver was Benedict Paoli, 26, of 2717 North Marshfield avenue.

A man who died in the Columbus hospital Monday night as a result of an automobile accident was identified yesterday as Frank Waimer, 70, of 509 Arlington place. He was struck by a car at Lake View avenue and Deming place. The car was driven by Sidney L. Larson, 1149 North Kedvale avenue.

Michael Smith, 52 years old, colored, died in People's hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday night when he was struck by a car driven by James Steber of 1930 Miller street in front of 10 West Cermak road. Smith lived at 2250 Dearborn street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 512 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 386 were killed in Chicago, where 14,158 were injured in the same period.

JUDGE TO REVOKE ORDER; DOG WILL LOSE BONE FUND

Judge Oscar F. Nelson of the Superior court announced yesterday he would revoke an order which provided $12 a week worth of bones and dog food to Muffy, a German shepherd dog. The order was entered Tuesday in the form of temporary alimony to Mrs. Etta Belfus, 49 years old, 8219 Bishop street.

At the time Michael F. Zlatnik, counsel for Mrs. Belfus' husband, Herman, 56, told the judge there were no children and that Mrs. Belfus was receiving $100 a month income from an estate. Harry X. Cole, Mrs. Belfus' attorney, countered with the assertion she needed additional funds for Muffy, who weighs 80 pounds and is accustomed to liberal portions. The judge also issued an injunction to insure Mrs. Belfus custody of the dog.

Judge Nelson, directing Zlatnik to present an order to vacate the alimony provision, said he had interpreted Mrs. Belfus' request as providing for her own needs, and never contemplated granting cash for the upkeep of a dog.

Youth Pitching Hay Killed When Struck by Lightning

James Lett, who was graduated last year from the Sandwich High school, was killed by lightning yesterday as he pitched hay on the farm of an uncle, Clare Lett, a mile south of Sandwich, in De Kalb county. One of a team of horses also was killed and John Foster, 40 years old, farmhand, was knocked down.

7½ MILLION FUND TO BE SOUGHT FOR ROADS IN COUNTY

Commissioner Daniel Ryan said yesterday he would present a resolution to the county board Monday asking the state to allocate $7,550,000 to Cook county for state road improvements within the county. This is 50 per cent of the money the county has contributed to the state treasury in the last 12 months thru motor fuel tax and license fees.

Ryan, chairman of the board's committee on roads and bridges, said that in the last year the state has allotted the county only $700,000 for road construction. He termed this distribution inequitable, especially in view of the fact that there are $50,000,000 worth of uncompleted road improvements within the county.

Ryan has invited representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Regional Planning association to attend the meeting with a view of adopting similar resolutions.

Stanley J. Koldon, 2145 Chicago avenue, was sentenced to 10 days in jail for reckless driving. His driving privileges also were suspended for six months. Koldon was arrested Sunday after his automobile had struck three parked cars at Augusta boulevard and Mozart street.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14 [Special].—Authorities today were investigating the mysterious death of Mrs. Benjamin Mozee, 53 years old, wife of a United States marshal at Nome, Alaska, who disappeared from her stateroom aboard a Great Lakes steamer in Lake Erie two weeks ago.

A few hours after she was reported missing her body was found at Geneva-on-the-Lake, 50 miles from here, but was not identified until last night. The body, meantime, had been buried in Ashtabula county.

WOMAN'S DEATH LEAP FROM SHIP IS HELD SUICIDE

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Miss Helen Sauders, 26 years old, who was drowned when she leaped from the lake steamer South American Tuesday night shortly after the boat had left Ludington, Mich., on its way to Chicago, decided yesterday that she had committed suicide while temporarily insane. Miss Sauders, a clerical worker, resided at 4118 Dickerson avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Miss Sauders jumped from the top deck of the steamer, more than 50 feet above the water. Five hundred passengers, who had boarded the ship at Detroit for an eight day cruise, watched as sailors recovered her body. A note, found in Miss Sauders' purse, indicated she was suffering from nervous strain.

FARM CONTESTS SURMOUNT RAIN AT FAIR IN ELGIN

Hogs, Cows, Husbands Called Amid Cheers.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Farmers usually smile when it rains. But they frowned at it with good reason last night during the fifth annual Elgin agricultural fair, sponsored by the Elgin Association of Commerce. While their 600 prize farm animals huddled in tents on the south end of Maroon field of Elgin High school, 1,500 farmers and their families crowded under the big top of the exhibit tent.

Mrs. Emil Hattendorf.

The rain followed them there, trickling thru seams in the canvas, but it didn't dampen their spirits. Whistling and stamping feet, they cheered contestants in the hog calling, cow calling, and husband calling contests. Silver loving cups were awarded to the winners.

The hog calling champion was Gilbert Kunz, 21 years old, of Elgin, a slender youth with a raucous chant. Mrs. Emil Hattendorf of Elgin, a farmer's wife who said her husband generally is late to dinner, won the husband calling competition, and Harvey Kastling, 22, an Elgin farm boy, won the cow calling championship.

Fair Opens Amid Rain.

The fair opened in the rain Tuesday and hopes to continue thru fair weather tomorrow night. Fifteen thousand persons are expected to attend. Exhibitors and entries came from six northeastern Illinois counties, Cook, Lake, Kane, Du Page, McHenry, and Boone.

A pretty maid milking her cow generally is good for a poem or a song. Last night she was good for 9.9 pounds of milk, a $10 cash prize, a bronze compact, and a milking apron and cap. She was Mrs. Anna Lambke of Elgin, a comely farm wife, who won the milking contest.

"I was lucky," said the champ. "My cow didn't run dry. The girl's next to me did."

Another milkmaid contest, based on popularity, will be the climax of tomorrow evening. The winner will become the proud owner of a registered Guernsey cow, christened Jonacre Betty.

Barn Dance Show Is Tonight.

A horse show will be another highlight of the closing night.

Today's activities will center on the judging of sheep, swine, and beef in the open class division and a barn dance show in the evening.

Douglas Knights, 34, a farmer from De Kalb county, was awarded the Gov. Horner trophy watch last night for the best dairy animal in the fair. His cow, a registered Holstein, won second place last year in the Illinois state Holstein-Freisian show. The cow gives 80 pounds of milk during summer and raises her ante to 100 pounds during the cool weather.

One hundred farm animals raised by high school boys and girls are entered in the fair by the Future Farmers of America. William Winkler of Naperville, Du Page county, won the grand championship for F. F. A. beef with his 950 pound Hereford steer. The best Guernsey cow among the F. F. A. entries was owned by Elmer Hill of Roselle, Du Page county. Hill win the Jonacre farm trophy, a silver loving cup.

BABY COLAN DIES; VICTIM OF DREAD DISEASE OF EYE

Helaine Judith Colan died yesterday in her home at 549 Brompton place, a little more than two years after her left eye was removed in an attempt to halt the spread of glioma, a cancerous growth. The child, 2½ years old, had been gravely ill for about two months.

Before the operation in May, 1938, the question of whether to take this step was submitted to a jury of 10 medical authorities. The entire city offered advice, and suggestions came from many parts of the nation. Some urged a "mercy death," rather than a life of blindness. Others, including Helen Keller, said the infant had a right for her chance to live. The medical jury decided on an operation.

For a long time it seemed as tho Helaine could live, but recently she lost the sight of her right eye and hope was abandoned. She was the daughter of Dr. Herman Colan, a dentist, and Mrs. Estelle Colan. Funeral services will be at 11 a. m. today in the chapel at 5145 Broadway.

Services commemorating the Fort Dearborn massacre, which occurred 128 years ago, will be conducted at noon today at Wacker drive and Michigan avenue, the site of the old fort.

The ceremonies will be sponsored by the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce and the Society of the War of 1812 in the State of Illinois. Gael Sullivan, an assistant of Mayor Kelly, and Rudolph A. Shapira, past commander of the Fort Dearborn post of the American Legion, will speak.

The massacre, in which nearly 100 white persons were killed by Indians, occurred while the fort was being evacuated because it was believed to be in danger of attack by the British. A battle developed between the settlers and an escort of Indians who were supposed to be protecting the whites from attack by unfriendly tribes.

NOW POLICEMAN SEEKS A 3D WAY TO FOIL THIEVES

Sixteen months ago, when Policeman Walter Geary was living at 1100 Montana street, he rigged up an elaborate burglar system to protect his home. It didn't help much. Burglars got in one night without disturbing the alarm system and made off with two revolvers, a watch, $10, and other valuables.

Two weeks ago Geary moved to another home at 1427 Farragut street. He didn't bother about a burglar alarm. Instead, on these warm nights, he's been sleeping on the front porch.

Then early yesterday burglars came around. They got in thru a rear window, crept into a bedroom where Geary's wife was sleeping, and stole $325 from a dresser drawer. Mrs. Geary didn't hear them. Policeman Geary, sleeping blissfully on the front porch, didn't either.

NICKEL PROFITS RISE BUT TAXES GO UP FASTER

Canadian Firm's Burden Grows.

Increased earnings and heavier tax burdens were reported yesterday by International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., and the Pacific Gas and Electric company. Among others which announced larger incomes were Anaconda Copper Mining company and United Engineering and Foundry company.

Robert C. Stanley.

International Nickel, world's largest producer of nickel and platinum, had net profit for the first six months of 1940, after all charges and taxes, of $18,060,293, according to Robert C. Stanley, chairman and president. This was equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.17 a share on the 14,584,025 shares of common stock.

Taxes Are Doubled.

The total compares with $17,773,438, or $1.15 a share, for the same period of 1939, and $16,732,251, or $1.08 a share, for the first half of 1938.

Provision for income and franchise taxes in the first half of 1940 amounted to $9,246,823, or 63 cents a share of common stock, the company pointed out. This contrasted with $4,437,245, or 30 cents a share, in the first six months of 1939, and $3,903,293, or 27 cents a share, in the same period of 1938.

For the June quarter, International Nickel announced net profit of $8,240,179, or 53 cents a share, compared with $8,226,137 or 53 cents in the corresponding quarter last year.

Termed Aid to Aviation.

Discussing the rôle of nickel in aviation, Stanley in his letter to stockholders said:

"The fact that American transport aviation has completed a year of over three-quarters of a billion passenger miles without serious injury to any passenger calls attention to the reliability of the airplane engine.

"The engineers' requirements in constructing a modern airplane of the utmost dependability, with increased load capacity and improved performance, are more exacting than for most other industrial products. The wide use of nickel steels and nickel alloys in airplane engines exemplifies the diversified and exacting conditions for which these nickel bearing metals are specified."

In another letter to United States shareholders, Stanley pleaded with them to travel in Canada and help provide the dollar exchange the dominion needs in its war program.

Anaconda Profits Rise.

The Anaconda Copper Mining company reported for the six months ended June 30 net income of $17,549,546, equal to $2.02 a share on the capital stock. In addition there was a sum of $486,460 representing equity in the undistributed earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated.

For the first half of 1939 net income, excluding equity for undistributed earnings of subsidiaries not consolidated, amounted to $7,170,336, or 83 cents a share.

Net income of the Pacific Gas and Electric company for the 12 months ended June 30 totaled $25,308,981, equal to $2.78 a share, compared with $25,109,462, or $2.75, a year ago.

Utility's Costs Increased.

Most of the gain in gross revenue during the period, James B. Black, president, said, was absorbed by higher operating costs. Taxes, already the largest single item of expense, were further increased thru additional federal taxes imposed by the recently enacted revenue act of 1940, he added.

"It is estimated that the higher corporation income taxes, capital stock taxes, and taxes on electrical energy prescribed by this legislation will increase our annual costs by about $1,021,000, equivalent to 16.3 cents per share of common stock," Black said. "Heavier excise taxes on numerous items of equipment, materials, and supplies used by the company will add further to the cost of conducting our business in the future."

Allegheny Cuts Loss.

Alleghany corporation, top holding company of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway system, reported June quarter net loss of $36,613 on $1,120,463 total income, against $597,665 loss on $843,036 income the same period of 1939. For the half year, the company had $31,007 net income against $1,118,331 loss for the corresponding 1939 period.

United Engineering and Foundry company reported net income of $1,805,221 for the first half of the year, almost double the $951,813 for the same 1939 period. The per share earnings, after dividends on the preferred stock, were $2.16, against $1.12.

Profits of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., large copper fabricator, soared to $1,287,895 during the first six months of 1940, compared with net income of only $4,630 in the first half of 1939.

End Aluminum Suit Testimony After 2 Years

New York, Aug. 14 [Special].—Testimony in the longest court trial in American history came to a close in the federal court today. The trial, involving a monopoly and conspiracy prosecution of Aluminum Company of America, its subsidiaries, 24 other corporations and 37 individuals, was commenced before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey on June 1, 1938.

Judge Caffey, who stated that he will follow his usual custom and render an oral opinion from the bench, fixed Dec. 2 for the filing of briefs and Jan. 10, 1941, for the filing of reply briefs.

Charge Absolute Monopoly.

After he has had an opportunity to read and digest the briefs, he will set a date for final arguments. Counsel for both sides agreed to limit final arguments to three days for each side.

The case is regarded as one of the most important in recent years. It is the first antitrust suit involving an alleged 100 per cent monopoly in a major industry. The government's contention is that the $250,000,000 Aluminum Company of America and its subsidiaries have maintained a complete monopoly over the production of virgin aluminum in the United States since 1903.

It also charges that thru Aluminum, Ltd., a Canadian corporation organized in 1928, the alleged monopoly is protected from foreign competition by agreements allocating world production and fixing world prices.

Leading industrial figures were among the 160 witnesses who testified during the trial.

50,000 Pages of Testimony.

Arthur V. Davis, president of Aluminum Company of America, and his younger brother, Edward K. Davis, president of the Canadian company, each testified for six weeks.

When testimony ended today, the record covered 32 feet of shelf space. It comprised 50,000 pages of testimony by 160 witnesses and more than 1,800 exhibits.

The principal issues in the case center on the question as to whether the alleged 100 per cent monopoly of virgin aluminum is unlawful, and whether during its 50 years of rise to power the Aluminum Company of America has destroyed or bought out a number of corporations which attempted to compete.

Cites Competing Products.

The aluminum company admits that it produces all of the virgin aluminum obtained in the United States, but it contends that this is not a complete monopoly because of alleged competition from scrap aluminum, imports of virgin aluminum from Europe and steel, copper, nickle, brass, tin, wood, glass, plastics, paper and other products.

According to Walter L. Rice, assistant United States attorney general, the alleged monopoly by the defendants has hampered national defense. Rice contends that the maximum production in the history of Aluminum Company of America was 327,000,000 pounds in 1939. Plans for increasing that production by 120,000,000 pounds annually are being completed.

Fears Defense Hampering.

Rice contends that on the basis of 16,000 pounds required for each bombing plane, the President's program of 50,000 planes annually would required 800,000,000 pounds of aluminum annually for aircraft production alone.

Irving W. Wilson, vice president in charge of operations of Aluminum Company of America, testified that the company is prepared to meet all national defense requirements of the army and navy for two years, 1940-'41, and after meeting those requirements will have a surplus to sell to England. He testified that expansion of the production program of the company is a comparatively simple matter.

"All we have to know," he said, "is the government's program."

24,000 HUDSONS WILL BE MADE IN TWO MONTHS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14 [Special].—Following a nation-wide series of dealer meetings and public previews of the 1941 Hudson cars, George H. Pratt, general salesmanager of the Hudson Motor Car company, today said that the current production program based on orders received to date call for the manufacture of 24,000 new cars valued at more than $22,000,000 during August and September.

Pratt said that the production rate of the new models is now 600 cars a day and that this rate is to be increased.

"The acceptance accorded the new models by the dealers and public alike is not only gratifying, but also indicates the presence of a brisk general demand," Pratt declared. "Our new color harmony style idea has struck a responsive chord, particularly with feminine buyers."

Policyholders Get 8 Million 'Scandal' Fund

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 14 (AP).—A three judge federal court today ordered an $8,000,000 reimbursement of policy holders in Missouri's fire insurance rate case which figured largely in the imprisonment of Tom Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic boss.

The money, part of a long contested rate increase, has been impounded in the hands of the court's agent. Pendergast, who served a year in prison for income tax evasion, was charged with failing to report $315,000 allegedly paid him for influencing a settlement favorable to the 136 companies involved in the rate case.

Decree "Procured by Fraud."

The ruling, which said the insurance companies could not "enjoy any fruits from a decree procurgd by fraud," was written by Judge Kimbrough Stone of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and concurred in by Judges Albert L. Reeves and Merrill E. Otis.

The opinion held that the insurance companies had gone into court with "unclean hands" in an attempt to regain custody of the impounded funds and that they were not entitled to any part of the $8,000,000.

They must pay interest, expenses of the distribution, and costs incurred by the court and its agents—a total estimated at $1,000,000.

Three Cited for Contempt.

Last May 20 the court found that an apparent "gross imposition and fraud has been perpetrated upon this court" in connection with obtaining its approval of the original settlement. It ordered contempt proceedings brought against Pendergast, R. Emmett O'Malley, former Missouri state insurance superintendent, and A. L. McCormack, St. Louis insurance company executive. All three have been cited and have been given until Sept. 1 to answer in court.

FIRM TO FOLLOW CLINK OF COIN IN PAY ROLL SURVEY

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 14 (AP).—The clink of silver dollars—nearly 35,000 of them—will be almost as common here tomorrow as it ever was in the far west.

At that time, the Russell Manufacturing company will pay off in silver, mostly in good old American "cartwheels," in an experiment designed to determine the scope of weekly spending by its 1,300 employés.

President George M. Williams explained that the use of silver dollars was the only method whereby his company could determine accurately where the pay roll money went, bills being in common use at all times.

The money, now in a bank vault, will be given out in special envelopes tomorrow only.

W-G-N Local Time Sales Rise 34 Per Cent in July

July time billings of radio station W-G-N were 34 per cent greater than in the corresponding month of 1939, W. A. McGuineas, sales manager, reported yesterday. He said the month's billings were only slightly under the 1940 peak reached in May. The figures are based on local time sold directly by the station and do not include network accounts.

NOBLE, CANDY FIRM'S CHAIRMAN, RESIGNS U. S. COMMERCE POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—The White House tonight announced the resignation of Edward J. Noble, a Republican, as undersecretary of commerce, effective immediately.

Edward J. Noble.

In a letter of resignation to President Roosevelt, Noble asserted there was little he could do "on behalf of national defense," in addition to what he has already accomplished, unless he were "freed from the details of administrative office."

"Because my resignation comes in the midst of a political campaign I am especially anxious that the record show that political partisanship has had no part in either my entering or leaving government service," he wrote.

Noble came into the federal government to organize and head the Civil Aeronautics authority. He was chairman in 1938 and 1939, resigning to go to the department of commerce as a $1 a year assistant to Secretary Harry L. Hopkins.

Noble is familiar with the problems of business, having expanded a one-room candy shop into the multi-million dollar Life Savers, Inc., which earned him a fortune. He is chairman of the company and the principal stockholder.

MACHINE GUN MAKERS ASK TAX CONSIDERATION

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14 (AP).—Machine gun manufacturers asked congress today for tax consideration for losses said to have been suffered over a period of years in the interest of developing an "efficient" military weapon.

Prew Savoy of Washington, representing the Auto Ordnance company of New York, urged that the proposed excess profits tax law permit concerns engaged since the world war in making standard military equipment to include patent and development losses in capital assets. Such assets would be a factor in figuring the tax.

Savoy asserted that his concern had been in operation since the world war and had lost money each year, expecting to make up the deficits when an emergency arose.

LIFE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN JULY TOPS LAST YEAR

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—New life insurance written in July aggregated $605,326,000, an increase of 19.5 per cent over the $506,380,000 in July, 1939, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported today.

The association's figures cover 40 companies with 82 per cent of the outstanding legal reserve life insurance in the United States.

For the first seven months of this year new business was $4,284,782,000, a decrease of 1.2 per cent from the total of $4,336,687,000 in the like period last year.

Whitney Wall Jr. to Head Defense Realty Survey

Whitney Wall Jr. of Whitney Wall Jr. & Co., real estate consultant, 120 South La Salle street, was appointed yesterday chairman of a committee to assemble data on real estate for the national defense program, Morgan L. Fitch, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, announced. This is part of a national survey conducted by 457 realty boards, members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, for use by the federal government.

'Free' British Pound Rises 2 Cents to Official Rate

Rising 2 cents on the New York foreign exchange market, the "free" British pound reached $4.02½ yesterday, the highest price of the year and the official selling rate of the pound. British authorities since the outbreak of the war have taken various steps to confine sterling operations to the official basis set by the Bank of England. The Canadian dollar rose one-sixteenth of a cent to 86⅝ United States cents. Most other currencies were unchanged.

Plan U. S. Food Cost Probe in Chicago Area

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14 (AP).—Department of justice officials said today that only a lack of personnel prevented an antitrust investigation of food costs on a nation-wide scope comparable to that undertaken last year of the building industry.

Investigators working under Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, have made a preliminary study of the food situation during the last several months. Officials said the investigators found further action warranted, but the department had been unable to find enough lawyers to handle the job.

Outline Lesser Campaign.

Since it is unlikely that a full investigation can be undertaken, Arnold's aids have outlined a lesser campaign which would reach certain phases of the food industry, with studies centered on conditions in Chicago, Philadelphia, and New York.

Such an investigation, officials said, would include meat packing, bakery products, milk, cheese, and food containers. A second inquiry would be on a regional basis dealing principally with the fresh fruit and vegetable industry. A third would take in local cases, involving mostly transportation in connection with bakery products, milk, and other foods.

Pending Cases Mount.

Explaining the personnel problem, an official said that on July 1, 1939, the antitrust division had pending in courts cases involving 132 defendants, while on July 1, this year, it was proceeding against 3,709 defendants.

The antitrust division has about 180 lawyers and economists. Last fall, more than 100 were engaged in the building investigation. However, that force has now been cut to about a dozen.

Arnold visited Chicago last May to look into the food situation. On his return he said that he was interested in a "comprehensive prosecution of the restraints of trade which now obstruct the distribution of food in all our large cities."

TIERNEY TO DIRECT PROBE.

Leo F. Tierney, special assistant United States attorney who has been inquiring into building costs in Chicago, announced yesterday that he is soon to begin a federal investigation of food costs in this area. He said the inquiry will be made as a part of the probe ordered in Washington.

NORWEGIAN BOND INTEREST TO BE PAID AS USUAL

New York, Aug. 14 [Special].—The royal Norwegian government, in London, intends to make every effort to honor its outstanding financial obligations, it was stated here today in an announcement made thru the National City bank that payment will be made of interest coupons due tomorrow on the Kingdom of Norway external sinking fund 6 per cent bonds due 1943. The bank stated that license to disburse such funds against surrender of the coupons had been obtained pursuant to the executive order of President Roosevelt.

The Norwegian government provided funds to pay the interest due on Aug. 1 on its 6 per cent bonds due 1944 and on the 4 per cent bonds due 1963. The bonds of the issue due 1943 were originally issued in 1923 in the amount of $20,000,000, which has been reduced by sinking fund payments to $5,529,000.

Report New Oil Field Found in Louisiana

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 14 (AP).—Standard Oil Company of California reported today the apparent discovery of a new oil field in Plaquemines parish, Louisiana. A well drilled by its wholly-owned subsidiary, the California company, flowed 486 barrels of 42.8 gravity oil a day on "restricted test." The well was drilled on the company's 12,000-acre lease about seven miles southeast of New Orleans. The company discovered oil last year six miles northeast of the new find.

Report Supply of Apples Will Be Smaller This Year

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14 (AP).—Growers and shippers will have 83,000,000 bushels of apples to distribute this year, or 5,000,000 bushels less than last year's crop, it was estimated today at the 45th annual convention of the International Apple association.

LOANS TO LATIN AMERICA VOTED BY HOUSE GROUP

Action Is Denounced as Step to War.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Altho denounced as a "step toward war," the house banking and currency committee today approved by a vote of 15 to 6, a measure to expand the lending authority of the Export-Import bank by 500 million dollars for loans to Latin American countries.

Rep. J. P. Wolcott calls bill a "step toward war."

The senate banking and currency committee had already approved a similar measure. As approved by the house committee the bill also gives the Reconstruction Finance corporation 1 billion dollars in new borrowing power for national defense purposes.

All Dissenters Republicans.

Representative Jesse P. Wolcott [R., Mich.], ranking minority member of the committee, described the legislation as "a step toward war," and indicated that he might prepare a minority report on behalf of the other opponents of the bill, all of whom were Republicans.

The final vote on the bill came after a long executive session. Wolcott had sought to delay action until the state department had a chance to present testimony on the diplomatic aspects of the legislation.

The Michigan congressman charged after the meeting that the measure, requested specifically by President Roosevelt, was "part and parcel of the British blockade of Germany."

Terms Move Unneutral.

"The German government could interpret this act as unneutral and a step toward war," Wolcott emphasized, altho adding that we should do all within reason to assist the Latin American nations. He termed the legislation a dangerous procedure, inasmuch as no Latin American nations had requested loans, and said the measure might embarrass our relations with them.

It was understood that one of the reasons for the lengthy executive session preceding final vote was an attempt by Republicans to write into the measure specific bans against loans which might supercede loans barred by the Johnson and neutrality acts. The senate committee had placed such restrictions in the bill which it reported out. The Johnson act prohibits loans to defaulters on the world war debts and the neutrality act bars loans or credits to belligerents.

Restrictions Voted Down.

While Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones assured both committees that neither act would be violated, the senate committee took no chances. Representative Robert W. Kean [R., N. J.] asked an amendment to prevent loans contrary to the Johnson act, but it was voted down.

Representative William J. Miller [R., Conn.] then proposed an amendment specifying that none of the proposed loans violate the neutrality act, but Representative Wright Patman [D., Tex.] led the roar of Democratic opposition which killed this amendment. Republicans determined at once to wage a battle on the floor of the house to include the neutrality amendment.

N. Y. EXCHANGE FAILS TO ACT ON BUYING UP SEATS

New York, Aug. 14 [Special.]—The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange today discussed at length but failed to act on a plan for retirement of memberships presented recently by the stock exchange forum.

The move to buy up its own memberships resulted from the recent "starvation" volume of trading which has spread business so thin that many firms are operating in the red and employés have been laid off.

The seat retirement proposal calls for buying memberships when "procurable within justified [price] limits." Funds for the purpose would be raised thru transaction taxes on exchange members.

Congress Ends Excess Profits Tax Hearings

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14 (AP).—Congressional hearings on an excess profits tax were concluded today with some committee members expressing approval of at least three modifications which witnesses had recommended:

1. That corporations be permitted to select any three years from 1936 thru 1939 as a base period for computing their normal earnings instead of all four years.

2. That the five-year amortization plan apply to any plant expansion undertaken in connection with the defense program after Jan. 1, 1940, instead of only after June 10, the day the White House announced that the plan would be recommended.

3. That financially related corporations be permitted to file consolidated returns.

May Be Ready Next Week.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said he did not foresee many changes in the subcommittee proposal. He said that legislative draftsmen were having difficulty putting the proposals into legal language, but predicted that the measure would be ready for the house next week.

The final witness, W. R. Ogg of Washington, presented a statement from the president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Every reasonable person," the statement said, "recognizes the need for making tax allowances for plants expanded for defense and for a decision on the excess profits levy, so business will know its tax liabilities.

Terms Rates Too Low.

The federation suggested that "there should be some ceiling, above which all profits would be considered excess profits" and proposed an "overall limitation on earnings" in figuring corporation tax credits.

The federation also said that the 25 to 40 per cent tax rates now proposed were "too low." "Clearly," it said, "the public is entitled to greater protection from war profiteers than this."

MIDLAND CLAIMS STILL UNSETTLED AFTER MEETING

The special conference attempting to iron out the conflicting claims which Midland United company and Midland Utilities company have against each other was adjourned at noon yesterday until tomorrow, with the issue still unsettled.

The closed meeting was a continuation of the one called Tuesday by Daniel O. Hastings, special master in chancery, when he interrupted the regular hearings on the claims, which total millions of dollars. He said after the Tuesday session that he was hopeful of a plan for compromise within 24 hours.

Representatives of the interested groups who are taking part in the discussions include M. B. Kennedy and Max Swiren for the trustee of Midland United; George Haight and Benjamin Goldstein for the trustees of Midland Utilities; Lee Freeman and Irving Rooks for the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois; Francis L. Daily and Joseph Mueller for Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation and Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company annuity trust; Robert N. Golding for Middle West corporation; Leonard Ettelson and Erwin Treusch for the debenture holders committee of Midland Utilities, and Irving Goldsmith for Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

JOB INSURANCE CHEAT CASES END IN CONVICTIONS

Persons charged with job insurance cheating have been convicted in every case in which the state completed prosecution, Martin P. Durkin, Illinois director of labor, said yesterday.

The attorney general has prosecuted 97 cases in which fraudulent collection of benefits under the unemployment compensation act was charged, he said. Sentences totaling 1,228 days in jail and fines totaling $1,275 were given these defendants by Chicago Municipal and County courts of the state. The average penalty is thus 12 days in jail and a $13 fine.

Results of the prosecutions have been the restoration of money illegally collected and confession and restitution of funds received by 125 additional persons alarmed thru the publicity of the cases, Durkin said.

The severest penalty given to any person was 100 days in jail and the heaviest fine levied was $300. Most of the defendants convicted were given both jail terms and fines.

SIGN CONTRACT FOR 700 PLANES AT 11 MILLIONS

Report Agreements on Other Orders.

The war department at Washington, D. C., yesterday announced that a $11,335,631 contract for about 700 training airplanes and spare parts had been signed with North American Aviation, Inc., Inglewood, Cal. Dates for delivery of the planes were not given in the announcement.

Col. Norman F. Ramsey asks bids on contracts which may total 9 millions.

More than a dozen other plane manufacturers have agreed tentatively to sign provisional contracts, without waiting for congress to approve legislation designed to clear away uncertainty over taxes and profits, it was reported by persons familiar with the long negotiations between manufacturers and national defense officials.

Contracts for about 4,200 army planes and a small number of naval aircraft for which congress voted more than $400,000,000 in June had been delayed.

General Motors Bid Is Low.

The General Motors corporation's Diesel engine division, with headquarters at Cleveland, O., submitted the apparent low bids to the navy department for 43 sets of submarine propelling machinery. Bids were received on the basis of three groups of 24, 11, and 8 sets.

The corporation bid $19,800,000 for furnishing the first group, using General Electric company electrical equipment; $9,245,320, for the second group, using Westinghouse Electric equipment, and $6,863,104 for the third group, using Allis-Chalmers electrical equipment.

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Chicago, and the Hooven, Owens, Rentschler company, Hamilton, O., submitted bids with different types of electrical equipment. The low bidder does not necessarily obtain the complete contract under the navy's plan to speed production by spreading orders, it was said.

Ask Gun Carriage Bids.

Col. Norman F. Ramsey, commanding officer of the Rock Island, Ill., arsenal, asked for bids on gun carriages and belt links, contracts for which are expected to total between $7,000,000 and $9,000,000.

Negotiations with the Chrysler corporation, Detroit, for construction of army tanks were reported almost completed. Defense commission officials said that details of a contract probably would be announced tomorrow.

Construction of a $16,000,000 government financed factory has been discussed, accordig to persons familiar with the negotiations. About a year would be required to build the plant and tool it for production of about five tanks a day, it was said.

An initial order for 1,000 medium tanks of about 25 tons each was believed in prospect. The British government has been reported ready to spend $200,000,000 for 4,000 tanks of about the same size. Defense commission officials would not comment on this report, however.

Gets More Army Awards.

The recent purchase by the United States army of 13,556 half ton Dodge trucks and 881 specially equipped Plymouth sedans raised Chrysler corporation's total of such business in the last seven months to 27,090 units.

The latest order amounting to $10,518,435 and booked by Fargo Motor corporation, a Chrysler division, is understood to be the largest unit contract for motorized equipment which the army has placed this year.

The defense commission during the day announced two new policies designed to spread army contracts more widely and to speed deliveries of munitions and supplies.

Bids henceforth will be accepted on the basis of delivery at the manufacturing plant, instead of at an army post. In addition, split bidding

New York Stocks.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Selling diminished in the stock market today, permitting a straggling recovery in aircrafts, steels and other groups hardest hit by the war news scare in yesterday's session.

After a flurry of buying around the opening, lifting some stocks a point or more, the rally waned. At the finish many issues had yielded part or all of the forenoon advances, making a mixture of net gains and losses.

Noting the London markets refused to be flustrated by the big aerial attacks on England, Wall street traders took the war reports more calmly, brokers said. Nevertheless, there was an obvious tendency to operate cautiously.

A little short covering was sufficient to stiffen prices as offerings slackened. Aircraft issues were strengthened by a rise in Douglas on announcement the warplane manufacturer planned to spend $20,000,000 for the expansion of its productive capacity in southern California. Douglas ended 1½ higher.

Reports indicating steel orders still were running at a high level helped stocks of that industry for a time. Bethlehem was up more than a point on the rally, but lost the gain to finish with a small net loss. United States Steel retained a fractional gain.

Business data again seemed to take second place to the Anglo-Nazi struggle and United States preparations for the defense program, including alterations in federal tax laws to encourage plant expansion.

Among shares off fractions to a point at the close were American Telephone, International Harvester, General Motors, Chrysler, Kennecott, and American Can. Du Pont dropped nearly 2. Great Northern preferred, United States Rubber, J. C. Penney, and General Electric were up fractions to point.

New York Bonds.

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—Rallies appeared in a few sections of the bond market today but most issues extended Tuesday's decline. Volume of sales declined to 3,008,700 face value against $5,107,950 yesterday.

Rails, recent trading favorites, led the decline. Losses ran fractions to around 2 points in Great Northern "G" 4s of '46 at 100, Boston Maine 4s of '60 at 68½, Southern Railway Memphis 5s at 76½, and Alleghany Corp. stamped 5s of '50 at 42.

The Associated Press utility average advanced .2 of a point, reflecting some fair gains in this division.

Belgium 7s rose about 5 points, and smaller advances were made by Argentine and Scandinavian issues. British Empire bonds were mixed.

In limited dealings United States government loans declined 1/32d to 15/32ds.

Chicago Stocks.

Volume dropped on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday to 12,000 shares from the 23,000 shares of Tuesday. The downward price trend was continued, with 34 issues declining, 14 advancing, and 20 closing unchanged. Stewart Warner sold off ¾ point at 6¼ for the largest loss among the volume leaders.

Bank Stocks.

City National shares declined a point and Continental Illinois gained half a point yesterday in Chicago bank stock trading. Other leading issues were unchanged.

DROUTH BROKEN IN SOME CORN GROWING AREAS

Damage Severe in Many Downstate Counties.

The drouth which threatened the corn crop has been effectively broken in many sections of the main producing states, but rain is still needed in parts of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, and in the Dakotas and Nebraska, the weather bureau reported yesterday.

Progress of corn ranged from good to excellent from Lake Michigan southwestward across much of Wisconsin, Iowa, northern Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas. There was some deterioration in the northwest, owing to heat and dryness.

Illinois Crops Damaged.

About 50 per cent of the crop has been damaged in many central and southern counties in Illinois, and about 50 per cent of the Kansas crop is beyond help. Dry weather would be favorable in parts of Iowa. About six inches of rain has fallen in the southern part of Iowa in the last three weeks and over four inches in the northern counties, the report said.

Harvesting of the spring wheat crop made rapid progress. Threshing of small grains in the central west is about completed.

Rainfall Data.

Study Possible Federal Aircraft Plant Sites Today

Four governmental officials will arrive at 1:53 o'clock this afternoon by plane at the Chicago airport to start looking over possible sites for the proposed $8,400,000 federal aircraft engine research laboratory, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. After an inspection of the Chicago airport, the group will fly to Glenview, Ill., to study Curtiss field.

Exports and Imports of the United States by Months

will be permitted so that manufacturers may contract for only part of an order.

Split bidding will enable industry to receive a much wider distribution of orders thruout the country and will allow small businesses to participate more directly in supplying the defense program, the commission said. "It will also enable the earliest possible deliveries of materials needed by the armed forces," a statement added.

Acceptance of bids on the basis of delivery at a factory "will allow plants far removed from government depots to compete successfully with plants located near to the depots," the commission said.

The navy announced that proposals for constructing eight mine sweepers of approximately 600 tons displacement in lots of two, three, or four would be received until noon, Sept. 18.

Road Expands Equipment.

More than 2,500 new and rebuilt freight cars will be placed in service on the Chicago and North Western railway by the end of the year, R. L. Williams, chief executive officer of the road, said yesterday.

The road recently purchased 60 new all-steel 70 ton covered hoppers to facilitate the transportation of bulk cement. These are expected to go into service by the first of September. The line began the operation of 500 new 70 ton hoppers during the first three months of the year.

The first of a group of 300 box cars now being reconditioned is expected to be placed in service within 10 days. The program for the remainder of the year calls for the complete reconditioning of 500 drop end gondolas, 48 feet long, and 500 drop bottom gondolas, 40 feet long, for use in the transportation of pipe, structural steel, scrap iron, sand, and gravel, Williams said.

Downers Grove Bank's Last Payment Is Ready

A sixth and final distribution, totaling $67,328, will be paid to 3,400 depositors of the First National bank, Downers Grove, Harry Joseph, receiver, announced yesterday. Checks are available at room 1202, 100 West Monroe street, Joseph said.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Haying Almost Over

Aug. 14, 1940.

THE haying season is about over at the Du Page county farm. Harvesters started yesterday putting the last of the second cutting alfalfa in the silo. The hay is being taken from a field that made a heavy yield when it was cut the first time during the rainy period in June. There were prospects for a good second crop until drouth stunted growth of the plants, but workers say the yield is only about one-third that of the first cutting.

In the drier spots in the field the alfalfa plants are so short the hay loader fails to pick up many of them from the light windrows left by the mower. An attachment on the mower blade puts the hay in light windrows instead of the usual swaths. Part of the field has to be gone over with a dump rake to collect the plants missed by the loader and rake them into windrows so they can be loaded on the wagons.

Mixed with Molasses.

Water is being added to the alfalfa as it goes thru the hay chopper, where it is mixed with molasses at the rate of approximately 100 pounds of molasses to each ton of green hay. The plants are so ripe it would be difficult to cure them for hay without a heavy loss of leaves.

The alfalfa is not expected to fill the silo and a small field of soy beans is to be used to finish filling it. The beans were planted late and the growth was checked by dry weather, but there has been some improvement during the last week as the result of light showers. The beans are of the Wilson variety, grown primarily for hay. They were seeded with a grain drill and there has been little trouble from weeds.

High Yields of Oats.

The oat harvesters still are recording high yields. A field of 6.1 acres, harvested this week, made an average yield of 106 bushels per acre, based on the standard weight of 32 pounds per bushel. This was the second field to show a yield in excess of 100 bushels per acre, considered unusually high for this farm.

Both oat and winter wheat yields have run above average in all sections of Illinois this year, according to official figures. The oat yield is estimated at 44 bushels per acre for the entire state, the second highest on record. The 10 year average yield for oats is 30.5 bushels per acre.

Quality of the oats crop in Illinois also is considered the best in years, with many reports of test weights up to 40 pounds or more per bushel. Most of the winter wheat crop is of good quality and the average yield for the state is estimated at 22.5 bushels per acre, compared to 21 bushels last year and the 10 year average of 17.4 bushels.

Defense Commission Keeps Watch Over Scrap Prices

Everything short of actual price control is being used by the national advisory commission to keep prices of new materials used by the steel industry from rising unduly, the trade journal Iron Age said yesterday.

Despite the licensing provision of the May-Sheppard act, however, the export of scrap iron continues in substantial volume and steel companies are concerned over the possibility of another sharp rise in scrap prices, bringing about increased costs which they see no chance to recover thru higher steel prices, Iron Age said.

"Should scrap prices go up sharply, the commission is prepared to recommend the inclusion of other grades than No. 1 heavy melting steel in the licensing system," the trade journal declared.

Prices Still Climbing.

"The scrap market has experienced rising prices quite generally this week. No. 1 heavy melting steel is higher at Pittsburgh, Chicago and Philadelphia, bringing about an increase of 46 cents a ton to $18.63 in the Iron Age scrap composite quotation.

"Meanwhile," the review said, "what concerns the steel industry most is the large volume of business that lies immediately ahead.

"While the national ingot rate has slipped a point and a half this week to 89.5 per cent of capacity, this is of no significance because the decline is mostly accounted for by the shutdown for vacation of one plant in the Pittsburgh district.

Auto Makers Buying Steel.

"In addition to the growth of steel orders and inquiries for defense projects, there is the entry into the market last week and this week of the automobile industry whose purchases of steel for 1941 model production are growing. There is also the expansion of railroad purchases.

"A modified form of priority rating for steel orders placed for national defense work has been adopted by the army and navy munitions board. While there is said to be no need at present for formal priorities, each order henceforth will bear a preference classification and desired delivery date to assist the steel companies in affording full coöperation with the defense program.

"While no shortages are anticipated, except possibly in electric furnace steel—and that situation will be remedied by early fall—the need for expeditious arrangement of delivery dates has already been experienced."

AGREE ON PLAN TO HALT BOOTLEG MINING OF COAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14 (AP).—Anthracite operators and the United Mine Workers, wrestling with the free lance mining problem, agreed tentatively today on a plan providing for additional tonnage allocations to certain operators who would rehire former employés now free lancing.

The tentative plan, understood to have been proposed months ago by the union, is as follows: 1. Under the state's tonnage allocation program, additional tonnage would be offered to operators to absorb free lance miners. 2. Former employés of the legitimate collieries now working in the so-called bootleg holes would be absorbed as rapidly as practicable and additional collieries and breakers would be opened if necessary. 3. All parties would use their influence with the state and federal government to provide unemployment compensation or its equivalent for free lance miners not absorbed in legitimate mining in a reasonable time.

W. W. Inglis of the Glen Alden Coal company said free lance mining endangered the tonnage allocation program because "we are working two and three days a week and they, the free lance miners, are working six."

CATTLE FEEDERS SELLING DUE TO HIGH CORN PRICE

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14 (AP).—The state and federal departments of agriculture reported today a tendency on the part of Illinois cattle feeders to hasten the marketing of cattle this year.

"The relatively high price and difficulty in securing supplies of corn and the narrow spread between prices of feeder cattle and fat cattle have contributed to generally unprofitable feeding operations this year," the joint crop reporting service said in its Aug. 1 report of feeding intentions.

The report estimated the number of cattle on feed Aug. 1 of this year as "about the same as a year earlier." The report was based upon reports of cattle feeders.

Set Underwriting 'Spread' in Merger at $1,200,000

New York, Aug. 14 [Special].—The underwriting "spread" in the projected merger of eastern trucking lines into the Transport company, which will call for the issuance of 28 to 30 million dollars of stock, will amount to $1,200,000, an official of Kuhn, Loeb and company, banking firm, said today. Organization and promotional costs are expected to total $2,700,000. A statement that investment bankers had spent $1,250,000 for incidental expenses in connection with the trucking merger, should have read $250,000, it was said.

OUTPUT OF ELECTRIC POWER DECLINES, BUT EXCEEDS LAST YEAR'S

Production of electricity in the United States declined last week 0.6 of 1 per cent from the preceding week but was 11 per cent more than in the corresponding week last year, the Edison Electric institute reported yesterday. Electrical output previously had increased for four consecutive weeks, reaching a new peak for the year in the week ended Aug. 3.

Output last week aggregated 2,589,318,000 kilowatt hours compared with 2,604,727,000 in the preceding week and 2,333,403,000 in the corresponding week in 1939. The decline from the preceding week was against seasonal expectations.

The Commonwealth Edison company reported a reduction in its output last week, with 156,806,000 kilowatt hours against 160,649,000 in the preceding week and 140,409,000 in the corresponding week last year.

SEC RAPS DELAYS IN UTILITY DEATH SENTENCE CASES

Grants Extensions in Two Integration Hearings.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14 [Special].—With unconcealed loss of patience over the "slowness" of the integration proceedings which it started last spring, the Securities and Exchange commission today granted postponements of the hearings sought by the Middle West corporation and the Electric Bond and Share company.

Electric Bond and Share was granted an extension to Sept. 9 with the understanding the hearing would "go forward continuously" at the adjourned date.

In the Middle West case the SEC criticized failure of the company to present evidence continuously after obtaining a previous adjournment.

Company's Attorney Ill.

In granting the motion of Middle West for a further postponement to Aug. 26 the commission said it was because of the illness of Ralph D. Stevenson, one of the utility's attorneys, and "for that reason alone."

The commission objected that the Middle West proceeding "will be interminable if the introduction of evidence is not in some manner expedited."

"Counsel for the respondents," the commission added, "have had since July 1, 1940, to prepare the specific evidence which they introduced on Aug. 1, 2, 5, 6, and 8.

Results "Not Impressive."

"The results are not impressive. Nor does the statement that every two weeks of trial will take about four additional weeks' preparation appear reasonable to us.

"In view, however, of the representations made by counsel for the respondents at the time of the last adjournment that they would be able to proceed without substantial interruptions on and after July 29, and in view of the fact that we consider the evidence introduced in the five days in which hearings were held to be entirely disproportionate to the time for preparation, we shall, on the basis of the showing thus far made, be most reluctant to grant any further requests by the respondents for substantial adjournments after the hearings are recommenced."

2 SUITS ATTACK BAN ON CUTS IN INSURANCE RATES

Contest Palmer's Action on Auto Fleets.

Suits seeking to prevent Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, from enforcing an order abolishing premium discounts on automobile fleet casualty insurance were filed yesterday by two insurance companies, a broker, and a fleet operator.

Palmer's ruling, issued July 15, would have become effective today if not contested. He held that "equity rating," under which lower rates were granted fleet operators who reduced their accidents thru safety programs, violated the section of the insurance code forbidding preferential or discriminatory rates.

Fleet Operator, Others Sue.

A petition to review Palmer's order was filed in Circuit court by the Federal Storage and Moving company, operator of a truck fleet; Clark E. Nolan, president of the Insurance Broker's Association of Illinois; and the Continental Casualty company. The bill was drawn by Attorney Russell F. Locke.

The suit charged that Palmer's ruling is "unreasonable, arbitrary, and unjust, and is not supported by any evidence," and that he lacks authority to issue such a ruling. The plaintiffs asked the court to vacate the order.

Reasons for Order "Vague."

The other petition, filed in the Superior court by the American Automobile Insurance company, asked the same legal remedies. It charged that Palmer's action is an illegal attempt to compel uniformity of insurance rates on automobile fleets and that the reasons for his order are "vague and indefinite."

Seek to Void Statutes.

The government, it was said, will seek to have the court decree that the patent licensing agreements between the defendant companies are in violation of the Sherman act. It also seeks cancelation of all provisions of these agreements which give the licensor power to fix prices on products made by its licensees, and which provide for payment of royalties on patents not used by them or on products not listed within the licensing agreements.

NO COMMENT HERE.

The Chicago officials named in the suit either could not be reached or were unable to comment because they have not been notified of the charge.

"We have no means of knowing what this is all about," Knode, United States Gypsum president, said at his Winnetka home. "I assume that it's part of the proceedings started in June."

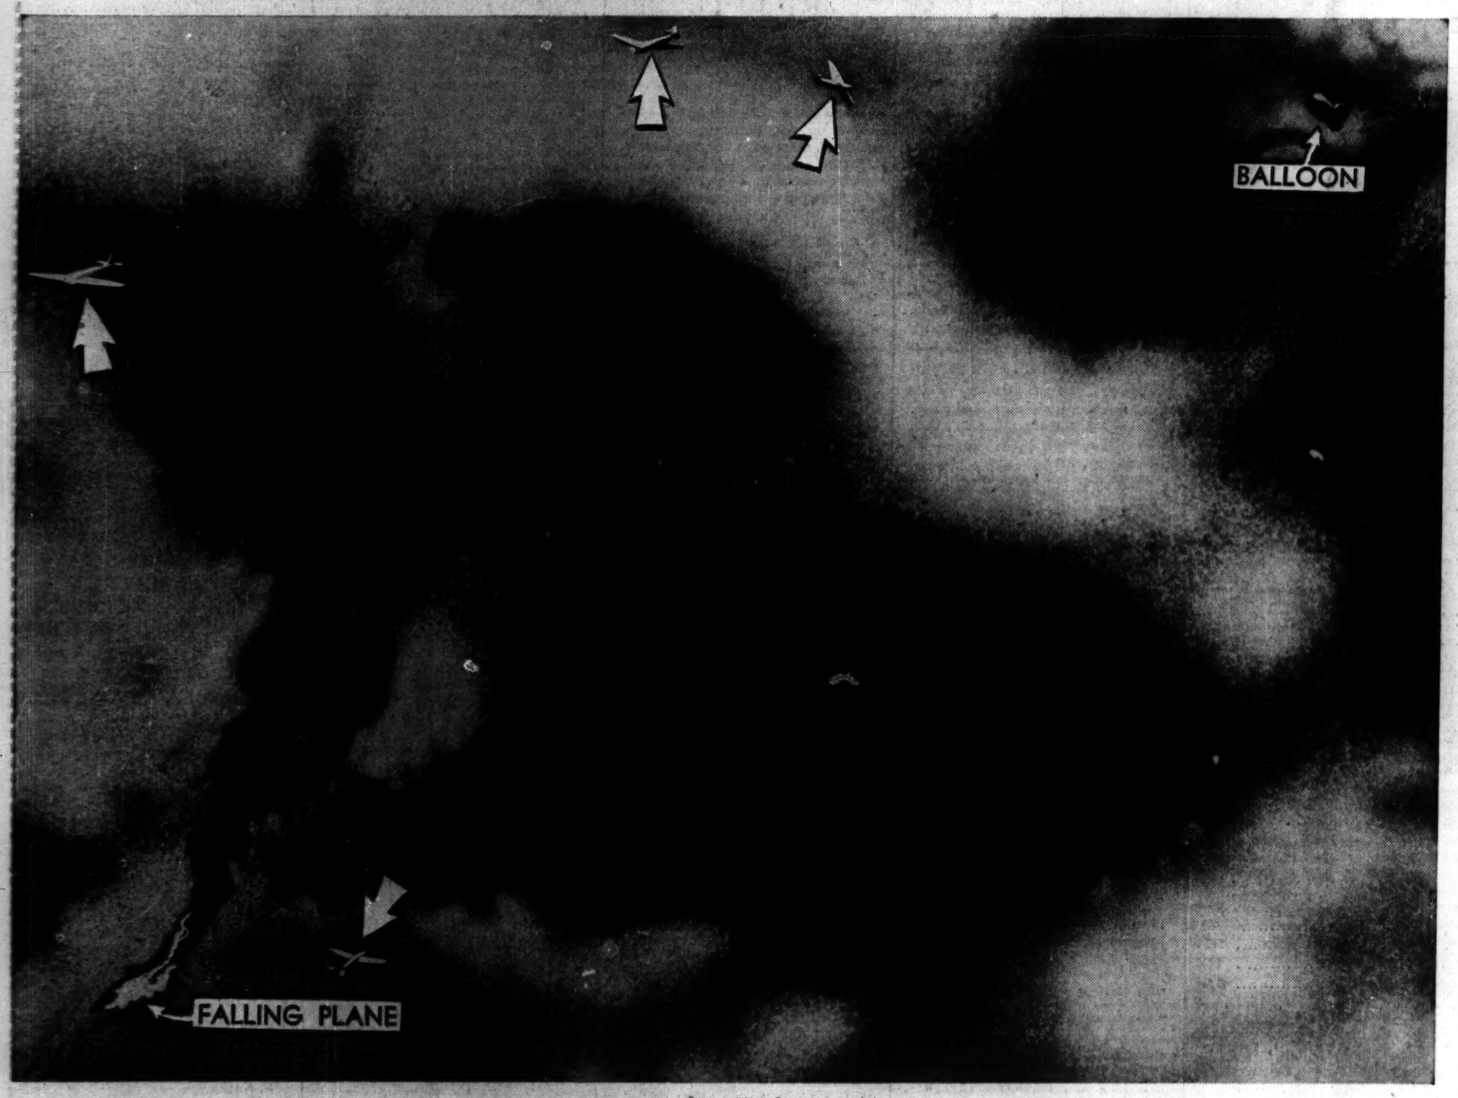
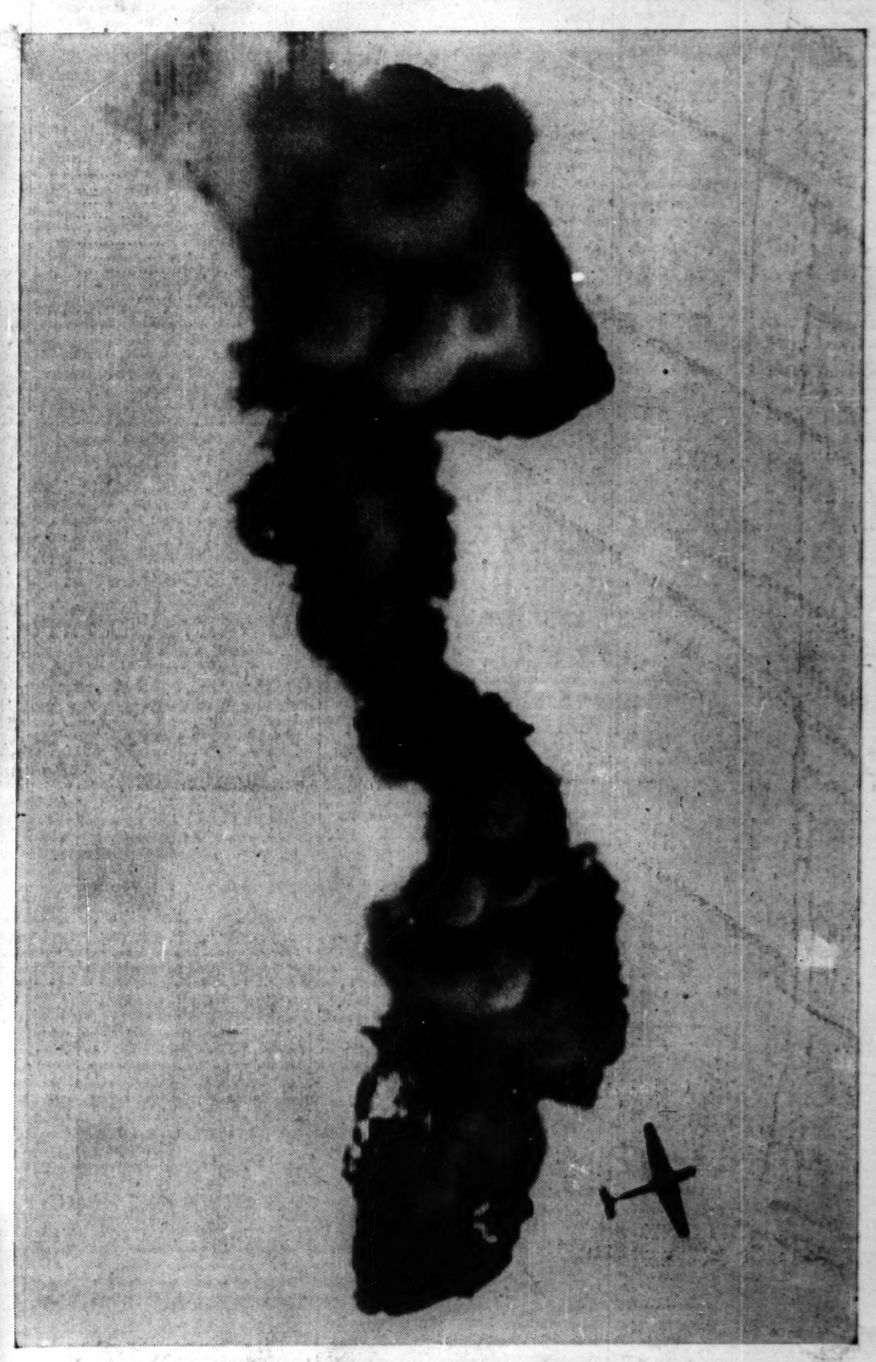
British Retaliate; Bomb German Blitzkrieg Bases in France—Hollywood Notables Accused of Joining Reds



[Acme Photo.]

A German plane plunging to destruction, trailing a plume of black smoke, in a recent battle over the English channel in which British engaged German air force unit. Arrows indicate other planes in the fight. At right is a barrage balloon, according to caption passed by British censor.



British barrage balloon falling in flames after German fighter plane successfully attacked it along England's coast. Nazi raiders blasted at England again yesterday.
